FOREWORD

I HAVE great pleasure in presenting now, as No. 80 in the Adyar Library Series, Vol. V of the Descriptive Catalogue containing the Kavya, Nāṭaka and Alaṅkāra manuscripts in the Library. The following two Volumes have already appeared:

Volume	No.	Content.	Author	Year of Issue
I	35	Vedic	K. M. Sarma	1942
VI	60	Grammar	V. Krishnamachari	1947

Volume IX containing the Mīmāṃsā and Advaita MSS. in the Library and prepared by Pandit V. Krishnamachari is in the Press. The present Volume was prepared by Sri H. G. Narahari who joined the Library in August 1939. The work of preparing this Catalogue was entrusted to him in September 1945 and the printing began in January 1948. During the author's work in the Library he had occasion to examine a large number of manuscripts and the results of his studies were being published by him through the pages of the Adyar Library Bulletin. He has also got ready some rare works for publication. Some of these have been published already. References to various items of such work are made in the body of the Catalogue. The manuscripts are written in ten different scripts, and the Pandits of the Library, especially Pandits V. Krishnamachari, K. Ramachandra Sarma and V. Narayanaswami Sastri, have helped Sri Narahari in reading through the manuscripts. The main work was done by the author himself. I take this opportunity to express my thanks to Sri Narahari for the work he has done in connection with this Catalogue and to the Pandits of the Library who have assisted him.

Dr. C. Kunhan Raja, Curator of the Library, prepared the general plan for the Descriptive Catalogue. The general lines of work for this Volume also was settled by him; and, as usual, he has added now also his Introduction to the Volume. This Introduction is not only a good and valuable summary of the important contents of this Catalogue, but also a vigorous plea for a more serious study of our Classics. I am under continual obligation to my esteemed colleague whose scholarly services to the Library can never be over-estimated.

The Vasanta Press has been carrying on this work steadily in spite of all the adverse conditions created by the recent war and its after-effects. Conditions may worsen; but the quality of the work in the Vasanta Press is never affected. Sri C. Subbarayudu, Superintendent of the Press, was responsible for the printing of the major portion of this Volume. After his retirement in March 1951, Sri D. V. Syamala Rau, Assistant Superintendent, succeeded him as Superintendent, and he continued the work to its finish with the same care and personal interest. I thank them both and also the other workers in the Press for bringing out this neat Volume amidst many pre-occupations.

PREFACE

THE Catalogue is a scientific inventory of 1848 MSS. in the Adyar Library written in various scripts like Grantha, Telugu, Malayālam, Devanāgarī, Kannaḍa, Beṅgālī, Oriya, Nandināgarī, Roman and Sāradā. A few Prākṛt Kāvyaas which would otherwise remain unnoticed have also been included here. At the time the printing of the Kāvya section was nearly complete, some MSS. which could not be traced earlier or were unknown altogether till then, came to my notice. These have been added at the end of this section as an Addendum. Three Indices, one each for the works and authors in the Catalogue and one General, conclude the Volume.

The vast majority of the MSS. have been examined by me personally, and, in the few cases where the script was unfamiliar to me, I have had to depend on the details furnished by the Pandits in the Library whose willing co-operation I must thankfully acknowledge here. I am also thankful to Sri K. Kunjunni Raja who, as a research student in the University making a special study of Sanskrit authors from Kerala, helped me in the description of many of the Malayalam MSS. in the Library. Some of the very important MSS. in the collection have been described by me elaborately in the Adyar Library Bulletin. In such cases brief summaries of my conclusions are appended to the usual descriptions. Even while the Catalogue was going through the Press many important Indologists, East and West, perused portions of it and expressed high appreciation of the methods employed in it. The credit should only go to my Professor, Dr. C. Kunhan Raja, who has guided me throughout and to whom I owe all my knowledge of modern scientific research. No less responsible in this respect is Capt. Dr. G. Srinivasamurti, Director of the Adyar Library, who, in these days when opportunities for serious work in a quiet corner are rare, has provided me with immense facilities for study.

The neat get-up is the handiwork of the Vasanta Press. That I should have been entrusted with a work of this magnitude and importance is itself a very great honour conferred on me. Klesah phalena hi punar navatām vidhatte.

INTRODUCTION

THIS Volume of the Descriptive Catalogue of Sanskrit Manuscripts in the Adyar Library deals with what may generally be called Literature, containing Kāvya (Poetry), Nāṭaka (Drama) and Alaṅkāra (Literary Criticism). On the whole there are 1848 manuscripts described in this Volume. Of these, 1229 manuscripts come under Poetry, 386 under Drama (Nos. 1230 to 1615) and 233 under Literary Criticism (Nos. 1616 to 1848). It would be found that in the collection there is predominance of Poetry.

The section on Poetry has been sub-divided under eight headings as i. Mahākāvya (Nos. 1 to 413), ii. Laghukāvya (Nos. 414 to 719: on the whole 306), iii. Gadyakāvya (Nos. 720 to 770: on the whole 51), iv.: Campūkāvya (Nos. 771 to 1019: on the whole 249), v. Aṣṭapadī (Nos. 1020 to 1054: on the whole 35), vi. Subhaṣitas (Nos. 1055 to 1184: on the whole 130), vii. Nṛti (Nos. 1185 to 1191: on the whole 7) and viii. Miscellaneous (Nos. 1192 to 1196: on the whole 5).

Some manuscripts (32 in number) that came to notice after the preparation of this portion of the Catalogue had to be entered here as addenda to this section, and to each of the above sections must be added the following figures too to get at the real total of the manuscripts under each sub-section in the Library: i., 12 (Nos. 1197 to 1208); ii., 2 (Nos. 1209 and 1210); iii., 1 (No. 1211); vi., 15 (Nos. 1212 to 1226); vii., 1 (No. 1227) and viii., 1 (No. 1228). On the whole there are 492 works dealt with here, and 371 authors are known as related to these works. There are a few works, original or commentaries, of which no information is available regarding the authorship. Besides the names of the works and authors there is accumulated here, as it should be, a fund of information about the owners and scribes of manuscripts, the teachers and the parents and others related to the authors and also about various places and families. They are, as far as possible, classified and listed in the Indices at the end of the Volume. A complete and perfect collection, classification and listing of all such information is not attempted and is not possible also.

The division of the entire manuscript-material dealt with in this Volume under the three main headings is not a difficult affair. But when it comes to the sub-division of the first section, there is sure to be considerable difference of opinion, and I shall not be surprised if there is some criticism about, and also dissatisfaction expressed at, the way in which the sub-division has been planned and worked out. I am responsible for the general plan of the Descriptive Catalogue and also for the main plan of each of the Volumes. But when it comes to details, I have to leave much to those who have been entrusted with the work. An expression of the personality of the author could not be eliminated even if there had been closer supervision on my part. And during the period when this Volume was being prepared and seen through the Press, I was pre-occupied with very heavy work of various kinds which took me often out of Madras, sometimes for long intervals. During the last twenty months when considerable portions of this Catalogue were printed, I was at this distance at Teheran in Iran and had no contact with the Library directly; as such I could not even give suggestions to the author on any point. Thus the personal element in the presentation of this Catalogue has been more prominent than in the case of Volume I in which the Vedic manuscripts were described. I am mentioning this only to state a fact and not to escape from any responsibility.

The manuscripts described here are listed in the Classified Catalogue of the Library, published in 1928 as Part II, on pages 1 to 38, and also in the Supplement at the end. The Library has collected many manuscripts after the publication of that Catalogue. The classification and sub-division here follow more or less the plan in that Classified Catalogue. The following are the sections in that Classified Catalogue corresponding to the material incorporated in this Descriptive Catalogue :

KĀVYA—(i) Gadyakāvya, p. 1; (ii) Padyakāvya, p. 2; (iii) Aṣṭapadī, p. 17; (iv) Samayocītasloka, p. 17; (v) Subhāṣita, p. 18; (vi) Campū, p. 19; (vii) Nīti, p. 24; (viii) Carita, p. 25.

NĀṬAKA—(i) Nāṭaka, p. 26; (ii) Prakaraṇa, p. 32; (iii) Bhāṇa, p. 32; (iv) Prahasana, p. 32; (v) Vyāyoga, p. 33.

ALĀṆKĀRA—(i) Sūtra, p. 33; (ii) Other Works, p. 33.

what is contained in the Śṛṅgāra Śataka in this work does not come under what is understood by Subhāṣita. There are some small treatises on Grammar for beginners brought under the Laghukāvyas (Nos. 414 ff., 665 etc.) Certainly they are not Kāvyas, and it is difficult to classify them along with Meghasandesā under the same sub-section of Laghukāvyas. There are many such points that could be raised in the matter of classification and allotment. I fully recognise the difficulties and I had to leave such details to the author's discretion, especially as I was not available for day-to-day consultation on such details when the Catalogue was being prepared.

What was actually done in defining the scope of this Volume of the Catalogue was to assign to it many works coming within the Sanskrit Literature, of which there are manuscripts in the Library, when they could not find a place in the other Volumes whose scope was more precise. As a matter of fact, if the term Kāvya be taken in the wide sense of "literature in general" and not in the sense of "poetry," then much of the uncertainty regarding the selection and classification of the works contained in this Volume may vanish. But one cannot avoid a wish that works that are definitely of the nature of Grammar, like Nos. 414, 665 etc., had been taken up in the Volume relating to Grammar. Perhaps one would also wish that the information given about these works was more adequate to form an idea of what they are like. The point is entirely different in the case of Bhaṭṭi Kāvya (No. 295), Subhadraharāṇa (No. 411) and Dhātukāvya (No. 529). Although they have a grammatical colour, still they are primarily meant as poetry, and as such they can legitimately find a place in this Volume, and should be given a place only in this and not in the Grammar Volume.

As has already been stated in the beginning and as it is quite plain, the Poetry section in this Volume is more important than the sections dealing with Drama and Literary Criticism. This remark does not refer merely to the number of manuscripts described under the three sections. It is based on the value of the manuscripts also. It is especially in the Kāvya portion that we find a large number of works of which manuscripts are rare in other Libraries and which are in themselves very important for their content. There are many works for which the only available manuscripts are found in the Adyar Library; and in many cases, the original manuscript is preserved in this Library, while the other Libraries contain only transcripts. In the case of many original manuscripts, the Library has also kept a copy for general use in so far as the original is very rare and liable to be damaged if it is handled.

The manuscripts may be divided mainly as (a) palm-leaf manuscripts written with an iron stylus, (b) old paper manuscripts, collected mostly from North India, and (c) recent paper transcripts prepared for the Library. The latter two are mainly in the Devanāgarī script, while the palm-leaf ones are in South Indian scripts. In the earlier days after the Library was founded, paper transcripts were prepared in South Indian scripts too; but at a later date, the transcription paper was standardised in quality, design and size, and nearly always, the transcripts were made in the Devanāgarī script.

In the case of many original manuscripts, there may be an opinion that most of them, being duplicates of well-known works, have little value and could have been disposed of instead of being kept in the Library which always faces the problem of accommodation. But the importance of manuscripts cannot be precisely defined. It may be based on the manuscript being the only one available, or being at least rare; then, there can be importance on account of the original owner being a famous person. The manuscript may contain scribal features of some importance, or certain names of importance or some other matter which is of value. Some manuscripts may reveal some readings of interest even in the matter of well-known works. Thus there are many ways in which manuscripts can have importance, and they should not be neglected simply because they are duplicates of well-known works. As a matter of fact, no manuscript is a duplicate of another manuscript; each manuscript has its own inherent value as a manuscript. And, after all, it is only in a Public Library that manuscripts like these can be deposited, taken care of and described. It is not possible for me to go into such details in an Introduction. Different people are interested in different aspects, and even a cursory glance through the Catalogue will show how much of extra matter of this sort the manuscripts contain and interest different research workers of different needs and approaches.

In the section on *Mahākāvya*s, the following works may be noted for their being rare; in the case of many of them the Library contains the only manuscript till now known:

- (1) No. 24, Commentary on the Kirātārjunīya by Ekanātha, called Prasannasāhityacandrikā; (2) No. 26, Commentary on the same by Devarājabhaṭṭa, called Sukhabodhinī; although other manuscripts are available, still this is an important work and rare too; (3) No. 29, Commentary on the same by Vidyāmādhava; (4) No. 45, Commentary on the Kumārasambhava by Vallabha, called Pañcika; this too is a rare work, though other manuscripts are available; (5) No. 47, Kṛṣṇavilāsa of Puṇyakoti; (6) No. 59, Kṛṣṇabhūdaya (anonymous); (7) No. 141, Commentary on the Naiṣadhyacarita (anonymous); (8) No. 142, Commentary on the same by Indrakāṇṭhi Nārāyaṇa; (9) No. 173, Commentary on the same by Ācārya Viśveśvara, called Padavakyaṛthapañcika.

In the section on *Laghukāvya*s may be mentioned, as coming under important and rare manuscripts, the following:

- (1) No. 422, Anunayamālā of Kṛṣṇakavi; (2) No. 429, Abhinavavāsavadattā of Narasiṃha Kavi; (3) No. 455, Karunārasatarāṅgiṇī of Kṛṣṇa Kavi; (5) No. 456, Kavikāṇṭhābharaṇa of Kṛṣṇa Kavi; (6) Gaṅgādhara Vijaya of Venkatasubba Kavi; (7) No. 506, Gopīvastrāpharaṇa of Venkatarāghava; (8) No. 510, Camatkāracandrikā of Kavikāṇṭhapūra Gosvāmin; (9) No. 511, Cātakāṣṭaka attributed to Kālidāsa; (10) No. 517, Tīrthaprabandha by Vādirājyati; (11) No. 518, Turagaśataka of Kuṭṭi Kavi; (12) No. 519, Turagaśataka of Gaṇapati Sāstrin; (13) No. 526, *Durghaśloka*s by Kuvalaya; (14) No. 627, its commentary (anonymous); (15) No. 532, Narasimhāvṛttamālīkā of Sītārāma Paṇḍita; (16) No. 548, Padmacarita of Raviṣeṇa; (17) No. 549, Padmapadacarita; (18) No. 450, Padyāpatrikā; (19) No. 556 Pradyumnacarita of Mahāśeṇa; (20) No. 574, Bhadrabāhucarita of Ratnanandin; (21) No. 575, Bhāgavatāmṛta; (22) No. 585, Bhūpāla-maṇḍana of Nārada; (23) No. 587, Manogarhaṇa of Kṛṣṇa Kavi; (24) No. 641, Ramakaisoralīlāmṛta; (25) No. 644, Anonymous commentary on the Rāmacarita; (26) No. 645, Rāma Vijaya of Nāganātha; (27) No. 669, Vāsudevacarita; (28) No. 709, Satyabodhaviṇaya of Kṛṣṇācārya; (29) No. 713, Sumanorāñjanakāvya of Śrīnivāsa Kavi; (30) No. 714. Seturāvijaya.

The above list is not a complete one, and this is no attempt to prepare a full list of the really important and rare works in the Catalogue. What is attempted is only to indicate a sufficient number of manuscripts of rare value so that the reader may be satisfied that it is worthwhile to study closely the content of the Catalogue. In the case of many works, only one manuscript is available and that is, of course, the manuscript deposited in the Library and described in this Catalogue. I may also draw the special attention of readers, through brief notes, to a few select manuscripts on account of their importance in point of contents. (1) No. 176, Padmī-nīpariṇaya by Aṣṭāvadhāni Vedāntācārya is a Mahākāvya of which an incomplete manuscript is available in the Library. This seems to be the only manuscript of the work, and the work follows the classical style of Sanskrit Poetry. This is a recent work and it shows that the art of classical poetry is still awake in the country. (2) No. 204, Raghuviṇḍanavilāsa of Veṅkaṭācārya is another work of the same type. For this too, manuscripts are rare. The manuscript in the Government Oriental Library in Madras, gives another name, Pāṭarācārya, as the author. (3 to 5) Nos. 246, 47 and 48, anonymous commentaries on the Raghuvaṃśa. They are all fragments. (6) No. 249, Commentary on the Raghuvaṃśa by Janārdana; this contains Gujarati explanations along with the Sanskrit commentary. (7) No. 269, Anonymous commentary on the Raghuvaṃśa; here the different reading noted is of interest. This shows that even in the matter of well-known works, a new manuscript or a commentary can reveal new facts. The discussion on the point is also of interest. The various commentaries on the Raghuvaṃśa noted after this and before this too, are all of great interest. They are rare too. (8) No. 303, Lakṣmīkāvyā of Uttamanambi Tirumalācārya is also a rare work and imitates the classical poetry in Sanskrit. Its semi-historical nature too may be taken note of. (9) No. 411, Subhadrāharṇa of Nārāyaṇa, with a commentary, is a beautiful poem which illustrates the rules of grammar according to Pāṇini. I have read through considerable portions of this poem myself, and I feel that as a poem it is far superior to the work of Bhaṭṭi.

Among the Laghukāvyas, (1) No. 423, Anyāpadesapañcāśat of Gaṇapati Śāstrin is a rare work, recent but full of the ancient vigour of language and wealth and variety of ideas; (2) Nos. 493 to 97, are poems dealing with the Mahārāja of Mysore; (3) No. 501, Kṛṣṇodanta is an easy Sanskrit poem suitable as a text for beginners; still it is good poetry, simple, but not at all insipid and stale; (4) No. 506, Gopivastrāpaharṇa of Veṅkaṭārāghava is a short poem in three Cantos dealing with an incident in the Bhāgavata, elegant and away from vulgarity which is quite possible at the hands of an inferior poet, considering the theme; (5) No. 521 f.

Tripuradahana of Vāsudeva with commentary shows the mastery of language, in keeping up the Yamaka form of Sabdalaṅkāra (adornment of sound) along with beauty, ease and flow of diction, and fine imagery; (6) No. 557, Pras'nabhinnottarāvali, from its name, appears to be questions and answers in the same words. This is by Śrīnivāsa Kavi; and there is also a commentary, presumably by the author himself. There does not seem to be another manuscript of this work. The title is very tempting, and one is sure to have a curiosity to know more about the content of the work.

Among the Prākṛt works, mention may be made especially of Śrī-cihnakavya (No. 700) which illustrates the Prākṛt grammar, like the Rāvaṇa-vadha of Bhaṭṭi and Subhadraharṇa of Nārāyaṇa for Saṅskṛit grammar (already noticed above). Upadesacintāmaṇi of Ratnaśekharasūrin, another Prākṛt work dealing with the moral principles of Jainism, is represented by the single manuscript in the Library (No. 1188). Both are very important.

Certain imitations of the famous Gītagovinda of Jayadeva are also worth noting. Kesavadhyānamṛtatarāṅgiṇī by Keśava (No. 1020) is both in form and structure an imitation of the Gītagovinda and relates to the Deity in Belūr (a famous Hoysala temple in Mysore State). Darukāvanavilāsa of Ratnārādhyā (No. 1049) and Sivagītimalikā of Kāmakoti Candras'ekharendrasarasvatī (No. 1051) are two imitations of the Gītagovinda, relating to Śiva. The commentaries on the Gītagovinda (Nos. 1036 to 1045) are also of interest.

Under Subhāṣita also there are a few important manuscripts described here. Kavirākṣasīya is a well-known work with different recensions. But the manuscript here (No. 1059) shows noticeable variations from the known recensions. Nīdviṣaṣṭika of Sundarapāṇḍya (No. 1066) shows variations from the edition available. Prasastitarāṅga (No. 1083) deals with the rules of writing Prasastis, and is a rare work. It is something like a "letter-writer." The manuscript is very much damaged and corrupt; still, it is interesting. Satpadyamuktavali of Mukundapaṇḍita (No. 1098) is an anthology of which no other manuscript is known. The manuscript described under "Miscellaneous" called Mithyāpavādhavidhvamsa by Candras'ekharasūri (No. 1193) relates to the Marika community in Mysore and is a manuscript not known to exist in any other place.

It will not be against propriety if I make some general remarks about Classical Sanskrit Literature in this Introduction. The Catalogue is not a History of Sanskrit Literature; it is only a description of the works relating to Sanskrit literature. But it is an important basis for writing a history of Sanskrit literature. We do not know anything about the beginning of Sanskrit literature. From the point of view of literary merit, there is an immense quantity of wealth in the pre-Classical period, namely, the Vedic period. Apart from the texts of the Vedas now available to us, there must have been a vast literature at that remote time. But that literary wealth is now for ever lost to humanity. Even within the available Vedic texts, especially within the R̥gveda and the Atharvaveda, there is much that can stand the test of any rules of literary criticism. Bharata, the earliest writer on Dramaturgy, and Patañjali, the earliest exponent of Grammar in detail, both knew a vast literature; but practically nothing has been handed down to us.

Kālidāsa is the oldest poet whose works have come down to us. Bhāsa is still a moot problem. All that is certain about him is that he was prior to Kālidāsa. Sūdraka's Mṛcchakatika too may have to be placed before Kālidāsa. Ignoring these doubtful cases, Kālidāsa is the earliest poet and dramatist in Sanskrit literature known to us. His poetry relates to Mahakāvya and Laghukāvya, besides his dramas. Between the Vedas and Kālidāsa there is a great gap covering many centuries.

When did Classical Sanskrit start after this long span of emptiness? We do not know. Scholars are not agreed on the date of Kālidāsa. There are two dominant views. One is that he was a contemporary of the great Gupta Emperors. The other is that he was a contemporary of the great Vikramāditya of Ujjain in whose name the Vikrama Era was started in 56 B.C. Both the views are based on the assumption that Kālidāsa was one of the court-poets of a Vikramāditya, and this assumption rests on the statement in the Jyotiṛvidābharaṇa. But no two of the nine names given in the Jyotiṛvidābharaṇa are known to have been mutual contemporaries, and there is considerable doubt about the identity of some of the names. The Jyotiṛvidābharaṇa itself is of uncertain date, some believing that it is a comparatively late work. In the earlier Vikrama traditions in India, there is no association of that great king with a Kālidāsa. If there had been a strong tradition in the country about the navaratnas (nine gems) in the court of a Vikramāditya, it is surprising that, in such a vast literature bearing on Vikramāditya, there is no reference to Kālidāsa who is one of the nine. To what extent the Vikramādityas of the Gupta dynasty were in their own times known and extolled as Vikramādityas must also be examined carefully. (Here I am referring to the title Vikramorvasiya which is supposed to allude to a Vikramāditya). Do the inscriptions of the Guptas mention them as Vikramādityas? Does any contemporary poet extoll them as Vikramādityas? When the whole theory of the association of Kālidāsa with a Vikramāditya is based on such shaky foundations, no view about the date of Kālidāsa based on it can be convincing.

If Kālidāsa lived in Ujjain under the patronage of a Vikramāditya, it is unbelievable that in the Meghadūta he does not mention that city as the seat of an Emperor; there is no mention of even a palace. As opposed to this, there is a mention there of Vidisā being the Imperial Capital famous in the whole world.¹ Agnimitra was camping in Vidisā at the time when the events of the Malavikagnimitra took place (leaving wide margins for the non-historical elements in that drama); at the end of the drama, it has been said that at that time Agnimitra was ruling the country.² Taking all such facts into consideration, there is a greater probability that Kālidāsa was a contemporary of Agnimitra.

The navaratnas (nine gems) in the court of Vikramāditya are not very well known in the traditions of India. References to them are very late. I for myself have known of Kālidāsa being associated with Bhoja, but not with Vikramāditya. Even the late references to the navaratnas of Vikramāditya are very rare in Sanskrit literature. The Jyotirvidābharaṇa and the reference to the navaratnas (including Kālidāsa) in the court of Vikramāditya became so popular and such a firm foundation for determining the date of Kālidāsa only very recently after Sir William Jones gave publicity to it. And a whole edifice has been constructed on such a flimsy foundation; and so far as I know there is no scholar who does not accept the association of Kālidāsa with a Vikramāditya, though practically no one accepts the authenticity of the Jyotirvidabharana as a contemporary work of Vikramāditya, to say nothing of its being a work of Kālidāsa.

This is not the place to discuss the date of Kālidāsa. My object in bringing this issue at this stage is to determine the length of the period of continuous growth in Sanskrit literature after its break at the end of the Vedic period. There was not a real break in the tradition of Sanskrit literature; but there is a gap in the actual products of a long period between the Vedic age and the date of Kālidāsa. From the time of Kālidāsa, the literature available in Sanskrit is continuous and without any noticeable break.

² संपत्स्यते न खलु गोसतिरि नामिमित्रे (Bharatavākya).

But prior to Kālidāsa, there is a gap the literary products in which have now been completely lost to us, though their existence is proved by Bharata and Patañjali. I do not know the cause that produced this sorry gap. The Purāṇas and the Classical Sanskrit literature are full of allusions to the activities of the enemies of the Vedic Path. There were Asuras and Rākṣasas and kings too who had the Rākṣasa element in their nature (Suyodhana and his brothers, Śiśupāla etc.). The Asuras belong to an earlier period, and were the enemies of Gods; the Rākṣasas came later, and were the enemies of the virtuous people on this earth. The Asuras had their abode in the Pātala, while the Rākṣasas were on this earth. Some Rākṣasas were later incarnations of earlier Asuras, like Rāvaṇa being the later incarnation of Hiranyakaśipu. Śiśupāla was a king with a Rākṣasa element in his nature, being the next incarnation of Rāvaṇa.

The Asuras were those enemies of the Vedic Gods who became active in this world after the earlier Vedic period and before the revival of Vedic Dharma found in the Brahmaṇa-Upaniṣadic period. The Rākṣasas belong to a period after the first revival of Vedic Dharma when there came about a second decline. This second period represents a time when kings deserted the Vedic Path and went over to the side of the opponent of Vedic Dharma. The immense Sanskrit literature, for which we find evidence in Bharata and in Patañjali but of which nothing has come down to us, belongs to this period. If there is a condemnation of certain practices and certain tendencies of the period in the later literature, one can fully realise how the people of this later period must have felt the loss of such a valuable treasure.

The Saṁhitās formed the basis for the revival of the Vedic Dharma after the first cataclysm in Indian civilisation. Similarly, the Mahābhārata and the Ramāyaṇa, but especially the former, formed the basis for the second revival of Dharma in India, represented by the classical period. In the period of the first revival, the Brahmaṇas (including the Upaniṣads) attempt an interpretation of the Vedic Saṁhitas. Similarly, in this second revival, the Kavyas and the Dramas interpret the spirit of the Mahabharata and the Ramāyaṇa. Just as the text of the Saṁhita of the Vedas available at the end of the cataclysm was collected and redacted at the time of the first revival, similarly, at the time of the second revival also, the texts that now form the Mahabharata were collected together to form that text, and the poets and dramatists gave their own interpretation of the spirit of the text.

We have practically nothing left of what may be called the secular literature that must have grown up contemporaneous with the Saṁhitas of the Vedas, except the few hymns that have a secular nature like the Maṇḍūkya hymn¹ (which too has a religious back-ground). But in the case of the second revival, a greater wealth of the secular literature was preserved, and that wealth was collected by Guṇāḍhya in his Brhatkathā. Though this original collection of secular literature is now missing, the contents are preserved in the form of two famous books, namely the Kathasaritsāgara and the Brhatkathamañjarī. I will not be far wrong if I make an assertion that the Mahabharata, the Ramāyaṇa and the Brhatkathā (in its two successors) form the basis for Classical Sanskrit Literature. I may also say with confidence that the Mahabharata and the Ramāyaṇa form the more important foundations for this Literature than the Brhatkathā. Even among the two the Mahabharata is the more important.

Classical Sanskrit Literature must be regarded as the interpretation of the spirit of the Mahabharata. As a corollary, we may also say that if one is to understand the true spirit of the Mahabharata, one has to look into the Classical Sanskrit Literature. The Mahabharata and the Ramāyaṇa have always been recognised as true poetry, and the later poetry of Sanskrit represents and interprets the spirit of these two specimens of real high class poetry in Sanskrit. The Mahabharata is not merely poetry; it is also the mirror in which is reflected the entire Indian civilisation. It is the world in its entirety and it is also absolute truth; this is what is said in the Mahabharata itself: there is nothing in the world which is not in the Mahabharata and there is nothing in the Mahabharata that is not in the world.² It follows that the Classical Literature also reflects Indian civilisation. This is the real value of Classical Sanskrit Literature.

² यदिहास्ति तदन्यत्र यत्रेहास्ति न कुत्रचित् (Svargārohaṇaparva, V. 50).

The six Systems of Indian Philosophy continue the interpretation of the Saṃhitās beyond where the Brahmaṇas (including the Upaniṣads) carried it at an earlier period. The Mīmāṃsā is a continuation of the Brahmaṇa portion and the Vedānta is a continuation of the Upaniṣads, and along with the Vedānta go the Sāṅkhya-Yoga and the Nyāya-Vaiśeṣika systems. The Mahabharata is considered a Fifth Veda, and Classical Sanskrit Literature interprets this Fifth Veda. In presenting the spirit of India, there is now-a-days too much emphasis laid on the philosophical thought of India, and little attention is paid in this connection to the Classical Literature. It is for this reason that I am drawing special attention to the significance of Classical Sanskrit Literature in evaluating Indian civilisation. I have always held the view that even if we ignore Philosophy and confine our attention to Literature, we are sure to come to conclusions not far away from the true state of facts ; but if we ignore Literature and make an estimate on the basis of the philosophical side, we will be nowhere near the real state of affairs. And what is being done now generally is to present Indian civilisation as based entirely on the philosophical aspects.

The philosophical texts are meant for those who desire to escape from this world. How can they be a basis for the determination of the conditions of actual life in this world ? And there is the great mistake committed in considering the essence of Indian culture as constituting a neglect of the world of Matter and a sole emphasis on the Spirit. India's achievements, consequently, in the fields of the practical affairs of life like literature, music, painting, sculpture and architecture do not in modern times receive the same attention as they ought to, and such aspects are studied only for antiquarian researches. But the true spirit of India is the harmony and unity of purpose between Matter and Spirit. Classical Sanskrit Literature shows how the people lived, while the philosophy tells us how they tried to escape from life. And in a nation the people in the cities and villages count far more than recluses in monasteries.

This lack of a true sense of proportion and correct perspective in understanding Indian culture is found even in the interpretation of the Mahabharata in India itself ; and that is the irony, and I may even say tragedy, in the life of a nation. I will explain my position. Bharata says nothing about Sānta (Tranquillity) as a Rasa in Drama. It does not mean that he did not regard Sānta as a possible Rasa in Dramas. What it means is that so far as the literature available to him is concerned, Sānta did not form a Rasa. But later on Sānta was included among the Rasas, and Bharata's eight-fold scheme of Rasas was expanded into a nine-fold one. Now, the question arises whether it is the writers on Alaṅkāra or the poets themselves who are the best judges about the literary qualities of a poetical work? Certainly, a poet knows poetry better than a critic. If the poets of India regarded Sānta as the true Rasa in the Mahabharata, why is it that they did not select material from the Mahabharata with a Sānta bias when they wrote poetry?

According to Bharata, Śṛṅgāra and Vīra are the Rasas found in dramas. Bhavabhūti's Uttararāmacarita is supposed to have Karūṇa as the Rasa. There is a marked difference of opinion among critics on this point. Śṛṅgāra and Vīra are as far apart from Sānta as the North Pole is from the South Pole. When poets took their material from the Mahabharata, they must have done so because they found that work the best source for their art and, if they had found the main spirit of that source unsuited for their art, they would not have gone there for their subject-matter. It is because they found a harmony between the spirit of their own art and the spirit prevailing in the Mahabharata that they looked to that great work for the supply of the material for their art. If they found Sānta as the true spirit of the Mahabharata, one has a right to wonder why it is that not a single work in Sanskrit literature brings Sānta into any sort of prominence in its poetry. Personally I have not seen a single poetic work in Sanskrit, worth the name, which has Sānta as the Rasa. And can we say that the poets rebelled against the spirit of the Mahabharata or that they simply caricatured that great work or even re-interpreted it in their own way?

The Nagānanda is the only drama (I exclude the Prabodhacandrodaya, etc. at present) of the high-class type that is supposed to have Sānta as the Rasa. But after deeply studying the work, my own view is that the Nagānanda really condemns Saṁnyāsa and extols a natural life in this world doing good to humanity through an active life. The hero runs away from the world; but the world chases him and takes hold him, and he was married even in the seclusion of the hermitage. He himself feels (perhaps only sub-consciously) the futility of renunciation when he says,

"The lawn can be the bed; the smooth rock can be the seat; abode can be under the trees; the cold water in the brook can be drinks; the roots can be food; the animals can be the companions; in this way all luxuries are available in the world without having to look for them. But there is one defect in the forest where one cannot get any needy individual, in so far as I have to live in vain without any chance to bring about the objects sought for by others."¹ The words of the hero's mother are very significant in this context, "O son, Jīmūtavāhana, you for whom there was no other joy than that of looking after your parents, how can it be that you have now gone to enjoy the happiness of heaven deserting your father?"² In the end it must be noticed that the hero, who wanted to give up his home and his throne, became the emperor of the *Vidyādhara*s and a householder too. Is this the development of a plot extolling Sainnyāsa? Is Santa the true Rasa of this drama?

In the Mahābhārata itself, if the author wanted to glorify unqualified forbearance, how is it that Veda Vyāsa and Śrī Kṛṣṇa both advocated action and winning the ancestral rights by the heroes? Even in the group of heroes, there may be some antithesis between Yudhiṣṭhira on one side and Bhīma and Draupadī on the other; but Arjuna, the friend of Śrī Kṛṣṇa, represents the harmony between the two extremes, and that must be what is really taught in the Mahābhārata. And no one can say that Arjuna symbolises Santa Rasa and Sainnyāsa.

The Mīmāṃsā evolved the theory that the Gods are not eligible for the observance of Dharma; what are prescribed for being done as Dharma have only men as the persons kept in view as eligible for such acts. Similarly, the authors of works on Alaṅkāra evolved the general theory that Śṛṅgāra is unsuited for the Gods. But the poets never worried about the precepts of the authors of Alaṅkāra Śāstras, and there is not a poet worth mention who has not described the Gods, and even the Supreme God-heads like Viṣṇu and Śiva, in an atmosphere of intense Śṛṅgāra. Is this again, an advocacy of Santa as the true spirit of Indian ideals in life represented by the Mahābhārata?

It is farthest from me to say that the Indian spirit is pervaded by a wave of Hedonism or Epicurianism; what I want to say is that so far as Classical Sanskrit Literature is concerned, monasticism and Santa Rasa do not represent the spirit of Indian life. The true Indian spirit is a happy middle path, a harmony between the two, a happy unity in life. This is the great value of Classical Sanskrit Literature.

It is very difficult to say what exactly constitutes the spirit of a nation, though the expression is often bandied about in respect of nations, ancient and modern. But if I am asked to say what the essence of the spirit of India is, I should have no hesitation in stating that it is represented by "harmony." This spirit is something unique in India, and it is also common to all aspects of Indian life, and very conspicuous too. From the time of Kālidāsa, this spirit is recorded in the available Classical Sanskrit literature. And this spirit has been kept up in an unbroken way even till our own times. There may have been attractions from the side of the advocates of indiscriminate Samnyāsa; many people may have been enticed also from their path of work and duty towards humanity. But the poets of India, who are the true leaders of the nation, remained faithful to the ideals of the Mahābhārata and continued, and still continue, to propagate the spirit of the Epic through their poetry. It is to be fervently hoped that organisations of Libraries and preparations of Catalogues would be able to hold up the currents that destroyed the vast literature of pre-Kālidāsa days, and thereby revivify a spirit that has not been wiped out from the country and that is very influential in modern times also.

The works enumerated in this Catalogue extend, chronologically from the time of Kālidāsa to our own times, and geographically through the entire length and breadth of the country. It shows, not merely the continuity of Indian tradition, but also the cultural unity of the country. I have, in an earlier portion of this Introduction, dealt with the unity in Indian tradition between the Matter and Spirit aspects of this Universe. This unity is not so limited in its scope. This spirit of unity practically pervades the entire field of Indian civilisation. There is the unity represented by unbroken continuity in the civilisation of the country from age to age. There is also the same unity among the various regions within the country.

In other places in the world, the parts of the country had been diverging from each other on account of cultural disruption; but in India there has always been a unity preserved along with differences in regional languages, in local customs and ways of life, in various aspects of religious beliefs and practices, and in various other differences. Sanskrit literature held the whole country together. There was always preserved a unity of approach and goal among religion, philosophy, science and arts. This too is another unique feature in Indian Civilisation.

Another aspect of this spirit of unity in the country is very conspicuous in the relation between intellectualism and imagination found in Sanskrit literature. Throughout the literature we find a high level of intellectualism. The reason is not merely that the poets had a very high intellectual discipline; the true reason is that the general level of intellectual development, even among the common people, was very high. Thus poetry was not written for the enjoyment of the very small and leisurely circle of intellectualists; poetry appealed to the general public too who had developed this intellectualism of a rather high order. Even when purely poetic qualities formed the real prominent feature, an element of intellectualism was not, and could not also be, excluded from that poetry. If there had not been such an element of intellectualism, the result would have been a feeling of insipidity felt by the people for whom poetry was written.

As distinct from this, there is the poetry which is essentially of an intellectualistic nature. They are the poems illustrating rules of grammar and literary criticism, like the Rāvaṇavadha of Bhaṭṭi, the Yamaka Kāvya, like the Yudhiṣṭhiravijaya of Vāsudeva, poems with a multiple entendre like the Raghavapāṇḍavayādaviya, and *Anulomapratiṇomakāvya*s where the stanzas could be read from beginning to end and also from the end to the beginning backwards. What is noteworthy in all such specimens is the high standard of literary merit kept up. Such things were not puzzles, and they presented no sort of strain to the people of those times. Instead of condemning them as intellectual monstrosities, we must admire the high intellectual level of those days in harmony with the poetic talents found in such specimens. Here again we find the same unity between intellect and imagination which is found between arts and sciences.

The development of metres is another aspect of poetic art that must not escape our close attention. New metres were attempted and developed in Sanskrit as time passed on. This shows that there was always growth and freshness in the poetic art of Sanskrit. Poetry was never static in India. New forms were created and became popular; but imitations of an original model could not be avoided, the Meghadūta of Kālidāsa being the classical instance.

The variety of poetic forms is another feature that we must examine in Sanskrit literature, and naturally, this can be seen especially in the "Minor Poems" (Laghukāvya). The Mahākāvyas have to conform to certain standards and there is not much scope for variety in form. That is why we find that the Laghukāvyas in the literature have been far more popular. It is in the Laghukāvyas that we find scope for the poets to show off their originality in form, and also their personality, with an effect greater than in the Mahākāvyas. Look at the languages outside India and see how many Mahākāvyas (Epic poetry like that in Homer) there are in the whole of that field; then compare this number with the Mahākāvyas found in Sanskrit literature. Mahākāvyas like the Raghuvamśa, the Kirātārjunīya and the Naiṣadhyacarita can stand comparison with any Epic in any language of the world and may deserve, when properly understood and appreciated, a place higher than what is now assigned to the best epic poem of the other languages.

The number of manuscripts found for such poems in Sanskrit and the number of commentaries also show how popular they must have been in the country at a certain time. Every scholar was a teacher and the house of every scholar, so to speak, was also a college for higher studies, nay even a university. Each such teacher gave his own explanations of such poems, and in many cases such explanations were preserved as regular commentaries. In most of the cases, the interpretations may be the same, and there may be little difference or originality. But this cannot be escaped. The various editions of a great poem, found in modern times, do not contain absolutely new interpretations or presentations. There are some differences, and also some cases of originality in such commentaries. Apart from their being evidences of the popularity of such works, the commentaries show also an individuality, both in presentations and interpretations, and in readings.

In this literature which was very popular we find kings, administrators and wealthy men welded together, along with the common people, into a unitary nation. Kings and administrators were also great scholars and writers ; wealthy men patronised poets and lavishly spent their wealth for the promotion of culture. This unity was not merely in the structure of the nation, but even in the whole universe as conceived and experienced by them. Gods, demi-gods and men became companions in a unified world. Further, men and what are termed lower kingdoms of animals, birds, aspects of the physical world like mountains and rivers, the seasons, trees and flowers, all come together into intimate companionship in this literature in a way unseen in any other of its kind.

Classical Sanskrit Literature is one of the richest heritages of modern India from the ancients, and we all can be legitimately proud of that heritage. It is in this literature that we find the life of the people truly reflected. If we want to understand the social structure of the nation in ancient times we must look into Classical Sanskrit Literature. This Catalogue represents only a small part of the total wealth of the Literature. There are many important works that do not find a place in this Catalogue because there are no manuscripts of those in the Library. Yet it would be found, on close examination, that this Catalogue represents one of the richest collections of specimens of poetry in Classical Sanskrit Literature. I am very happy, and even proud, to be able to present this Volume to the scholars of the world.

ACYUTARĀYĀBHYUDAYA OF RĀJANĀTHA

अच्युतरायाभ्युदयं राजनाथकृतम्

Palmyra Leaves. Foll. 81. $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{3}{10}''$. Fairly old, badly worm-eaten and injured. In tolerable condition. Medium cursory writing in Grantha. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

An historical poem in twelve cantos giving an account of the life and victories of King Acyutarāya (A.D. 1530-42) of Vijayanagar.

Begins:

.... वौ निधिरागमानामाद्यो वृषाद्रेः पतिरच्युतेन्द्रम् ।

इति राजानाथस्य कृतावच्युतरायाभ्युदये द्वादशः
सर्गः समाप्तः ।

The codex appears to be a combination of two smaller codices brought together by continuous pagination. These two smaller codices can be easily distinguished. The first of these (foll. 1-23) gives the text of the first four cantos and till the end of verse 11 of canto V; the second (foll. 24-81) gives the full text for all the twelve cantos. Fol. 2 is wrongly numbered 3 and the error is carried on till the end. The edges of many of the folia are broken.

The first six cantos of the work were printed in 1907 by the Vanivilas Press, Srirangam. Portions of cantos VII, X and XI also are printed in the Sources of Vijayanagar History by S. Krishnaswami Ayyangar (Madras, 1919, pp. 165 ff.). The Adyar Library has recently published an edition of cantos VII to XII of this work.

2. LIV. A. 5.

Modern Paper. Foll. 105. $6\frac{1}{2}'' \times 8\frac{1}{8}''$. Good medium Devanagari writing. Lines 14-15 in a page. Transcribed recently from the original MS. in the Trivandrum Palace Library.

Incomplete.

Same text as above for cantos VII to XII.

The MS. abruptly breaks off at about the end of verse 32 of the last canto. The text for the remaining cantos is available in full.

3. LIV. A. 6.

Modern Paper. Foll. 116. $8\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$. Large cursory Devanagari writing. Lines 12 in a page. Transcribed recently from the original MS. in the Govt. Oriental Library, Mysore.

Incomplete.

Same text as above for cantos VII-XII.

The text is available in full only for cantos VII to XI. It breaks off abruptly at the end of the first half of verse 29 of canto XII.

4. LIV. A. 24.

Modern Paper. Foll. 98. $6\frac{1}{2}'' \times 8\frac{1}{2}''$. Large cursory Devanagari writing. Lines 14 in a page. Transcribed on 9-8-1941 after combining two MSS. (Burnell 10209 and 10210) in the Sarasvati Mahal Library, Tanjore.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos VII to XII.

The codex is extremely faulty and abounds in gaps. The second half of page 79, pages 80-83, the first quarter of page 84 and page 93 (except for one line) and page 94 are blank. Page 98 is followed by two blank sheets. After that come 85 pages containing the result of collation of this transcript with four other MSS. (Burnell 10209-12) in the Sarasvati Mahal Library, Tanjore.

Though the MS. contains the text for all the nine cantos, it is badly mutilated. The folia 1, 5 and 9 are missing :

There are two MSS. (Nos. 3743-44) of the text in the Sarasvati Mahal Library, Tanjore. Cantos 1-4 with the commentary were published by the Nirnayasagara Press, Bombay, in A.D. 1891. The work has been subsequently edited in Mysore and Udipi.

Trivikramapaṇḍitācārya is among the immediate disciples of S'rī Madhvācārya, the founder of the Dvaita school of Vedānta, who was born in A.D. 1198. According to a legend current among the Mādhvas, he was originally a very keen exponent of Advaita and who, having been forced to surrender in the debate he had with S'rī Madhvācārya, was later converted into a Dvaitin. He was a remarkable grammarian and a respected student of logic. Besides the Uṣāharaṇa, he is the author of another work called the Vāyuvāṇī. The well-known biographer of S'rī Madhvācārya, Nārāyaṇapaṇḍitācārya, is his son.

The commentary begins on fol. 38 of the codex whose earlier portion contains the text. The MS. is badly mutilated and is highly corrupt. The following folia are missing: 73-93, 125, 225, 226, 242 and 243.

The commentator's teacher, Sārindratīrtha, is called by various names like guruṣpāda and pūjyapāda.

There are two MSS. (Nos. 3745-46) of this commentary in the Sarasvatī Mahal Library, Tanjore.

If this commentator, Sumatīndra, can be identified with his namesake who wrote a work called Sumatīndrajaya-ghoṣanā, two MSS. (Nos. 4237-38) of which are available in the Tanjore Library, and if the Sāhajī who is eulogised in this work can be the same as King Sāhajī I of Tanjore who ruled between A.D. 1684-1710, then the date of Sumatīndra is known.

7. XXXV. C. 33.

KIRĀTĀRJUNĪYA OF BHĀRAVĪ

किरातार्जुनीयं भारविविरचितम्

Grey country-made paper. Foll. 50. 10^{1/8}" X 4^{3/8}". Fairly old, but in good condition. Small Devanāgarī writing of the Maithilī type. Lines 13 in a page. Complete.

A poem in eighteen cantos describing the fight between Arjuna and S'iva in the garb of a hunter.

Begins:

The MS. concludes इति श्रीकिरातार्जुनीय-महाकाव्ये महावैयाकरणस्य लक्ष्मैकभारविकृतो अस्त्र-प्रदानो नाम अष्टादशः सर्गः ॥ १८ ॥ संपूर्णोऽयं किरातनामा ग्रन्थः ।

The MS. is well-margined with three lines in red ink at both sides. The colophons are usually painted red, though this is not done in the case of the last three cantos.

8. XLII. B. 107.

White, country-made paper. Foll. 66 (17-83). $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 3\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly old, but in good condition. Good medium writing in Bengali. Lines 5 in a page.

Incomplete.

A poem in eighteen cantos describing the fight between Arjuna and S'iva in the garb of a hunter.

Same text as above for cantos II to XV.

It is badly mutilated. Not only does it open from the 11th folio, but also folia 12-14, 22, 24-26 and 36 are missing. The verses of the text are not at all numbered. At the corners of some folia, a few notes of the student or the scribe, written in red ink, can be seen.

9. XXIV. N. 15.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 11. $4\frac{7}{16}'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$. Fairly old and slightly injured, but in good condition. Good medium writing in Malayalam. Lines 8 to 10 in a page inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos I and II.

The text is available in full only for canto I. The codex breaks off abruptly at the end of verse 30 of canto II. Folio 8 is severely damaged, a portion of it being broken off.

10. XXI. T. 5.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 46. $12'' \times 1''$. Recent and in good condition. Good medium Telugu writing. Lines 5 in a page. Uninked. Wooden board at either end.

Complete for the portion.

Same text as above for cantos II and III.

11. XXI. T. 6.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 6. $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Telugu writing. Lines 6 in a page. Uninked. Wooden board at either end.

Complete.

Same text as above for canto II.

12. XXII. J. 48.

KIRĀTĀRJUNĪYA OF BHĀRAVĪ WITH THE GHANṬĀPATHA OF MALLINĀTHA

किरातार्जुनीयं भारविकृतं मल्लिनाथकृतघण्टापथा-

ख्यव्याख्यया समन्वितम्

Palmyra leaves. Foll. (2-24). $16'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly old and worm-eaten, but in tolerable condition. Cursory writing of various sizes in Telugu. Lines 4-6 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos II & III with the Ghaṇṭāpatha of Mallinātha.

The text and the commentary are given together so far as canto II is concerned. The commentary on canto III is available only for the first two verses where it abruptly ends.

There is one extra leaf at the beginning of the codex which contains a portion of a ritualistic work called the Kṛṣṇajayanti-nirṇaya. A good portion of it is eaten away by worms:

कृष्णजयंती निर्णयः । श्रावणे कृष्णपक्षे तु यदा
सिद्धगते रवौ । तदा कृष्णजयंती स्यान्न तु कर्कट-कन्ययोः ॥ अष्टम्यां वा नवम्यां वा दशम्यां यदि

द्वाष्ट(lacunæ) स्याज्या वह्निविद्वादरोहिणी । दशम्ये- कादशीविद्वा विष्णुमक्तैर्विवर्जिता ॥

Following this are four more lines in the Telugu language where the scribe speaks of his financial position in life, his assets and liabilities. Among his creditors are mentioned Agasāla Ayyappa and Komati Rangayya.

The extra leaf at the end contains a few lines from what looks like a commentary on some work of unknown name and authorship:

श्रीरस्तु । हयप्रीवाय मंगले ।

अज्ञाननाशने दक्षं दीक्षितं भक्तक्षणे ।
वटमूलाश्रयं त्र्यक्षं दक्षिणामूर्तिमाश्रये ॥

13.

XXII. K. 15.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 51. 15½" × 1½".
Fairly old, worm-eaten and badly injured.
Medium Telugu writing in various hands.
Lines 6-7 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for cantos I and II.

The text and commentary exist separately. On fol. 18b, the commentary on canto I is concluded, while that on canto II is complete on fol. 37a. Foll. 36b and 37b are blank. The 6 folia that follow give an incomplete text of canto I, while the remaining folia in the codex contain some portions of canto II. As regards canto I, the text is available for verse 1-30; and from the last quarter of verse 135 till the end of the canto. The colophon for this portion runs:

इति श्रीमारविकृते किरातार्जुनीये महाकाव्ये प्रथमः
सर्गः समाप्तः ॥ हनुमत्सीतालक्ष्मणभरतशत्रुघ्नपरिवार-समेतश्रीरामचंद्रपरब्रह्मणे नमः ।

यादृशी पुस्तकं दृष्ट्वा तादृशी लिखितं मया ।

अबद्धं वा सुबद्धं वा मम दोषो न विद्यते ॥

Canto II is more defective and presents more complexities. Portions from two different codices seem to have been brought together here. Thus folia 44-46 give the text of this canto for verses 1-12, 27-40 and from the last quarter of verse 55 till the end of the canto. Fol. 47 contains again the commentary for verses 31 and 32 in canto II. The remaining 4 folia give the text of canto II in full.

The MS. is heavily injured both by worms and otherwise. Not only are several letters and words lost by perforation, but also two folia (40 and 45) are cut in the middle. The leaves seem to belong to different varieties in age as well as in substance, so that the codex is the compilation of portions of several codices.

14. XXVII. C. 31,

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 13 (2-14). 15½" × 11½". Old, worm-eaten and badly damaged. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 7-8 in a page. Uninked. Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for cantos VII and IX.

The text and commentary for canto VII are available only so far as the first 36 stanzas. For stanza 37, the Ghaṇṭāpatīa ends in the middle of the verse. Similarly, so far as canto IX is concerned, the text and commentary both are available for verses 1-14. The text only is found for verse 15. Fol. (2-9) contain canto VII, while canto IX is contained in Foll. (10, 11, 13 and 14). The greater part of Fol. 11b and fol. 12 are blank. There is one blank leaf at the beginning and one at the end.

The ravages of worms on the codex has been so much that a good portion of the matter in it is often illegible.

On the left-hand corner of Fol. 2a where is begun canto VII, there is the wrong inscription: श्रीराम। शुभमस्तु। भार-विषष्टमः सर्गः.

15. XXIX. B. 34.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 24 (3-26). 15" × 11½". Fairly old, badly worm-eaten and injured. Medium cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for canto I.

The text and commentary are given separately. Foll. (3-5) contain the text, and this is followed by two blank leaves. The commentary begins on fol. 8a and is completed on fol. 25b. Only the first 8 folia of the commentary are numbered. The rest of the folia have no numbering. Fol. 26a contains the text of the first three verses of canto II. Fol. 26b is blank, but fol. 27a contains the following invocation to Gaṇapati:

अगजाननपद्मार्कं गजाननमहर्निशं ।

अनेकदंतं भक्तानामेकदंतमुपास्महे ॥

The rest of this folio is blank; and it is followed by 7 more blank leaves. There are 2 blank leaves at the beginning of the codex.

Fol. 8 is broken into two, and many other folia in the middle of the codex have been very severely perforated by insects.

16. XXIX. L. 31.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. (1-16). $16\frac{1}{2}'' \times 11\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly old and slightly worm-eaten, but in good condition. Medium cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 5-6 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for canto VI.

The text of each verse is given first and the commentary follows immediately. Though some letters in the body of the text are lost here and there, yet the damage wrought by insect-perforation is prominent only at the edges of the folia. The folia are numbered.

On the left hand corner of the first folio, there is the following inscription in Telugu:

वा ॥ वैकटशिवशालि मारवि । श्री महाबायै नमः ।
श्री सरस्वत्यै नमः । श्री शारदाबायै नमः । नीवेकलमा
मारवि ६ सर्गमूलमुव्याख्य.

Venkaṭasivasāstri is, therefore, either the owner of the codex or its scribe; he may even be both.

17. XXX. J. 25.

Palmyra Leaves. Foll. (29-47). $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 11\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly old, worm-eaten, and badly injured. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 6 in a page. Mostly uninked, except for foll. 29 and 47.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for canto V.

The text and the commentary are given together, each verse being followed by its commentary. Fol. 41 concludes with the first line of verse 37. Fol. 42 is blank. The text and commentary are continued on fol. 43 and are concluded on fol. 47a. Fol. 47b is blank and is followed by 5 blank leaves. There are 5 more extra leaves; of these, the first two contain jottings relating to the personal affairs of the scribe such as his diary, his assets and liabilities; the latter are given in numerical figures. There are also some stray verses inscribed which seem to be devotional in nature, but these are mostly eaten up by insects and are hence illegible. The ravages of insects over this codex has been considerable; and the fact that it is mostly uninked only completes its defective nature.

18. XXX. J. 27.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. (2-60). $17'' \times 11\frac{1}{2}''$. Old, worm-eaten and very badly injured. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 5-6 in a page. Uninked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for cantos VI-VIII.

The text and commentary occur together so far as cantos VI and VII are concerned; but so far as canto VIII is concerned these exist separately. The text for this canto occurs first, and the commentary comes only after. Canto VI ends in the middle of folio 18a; the rest of it and fol. 18b are blank. Canto VII is begun on fol. 19a and is concluded on fol. 34b. The text of canto VIII begins on fol. 35a and ends on fol. 40b. Foll. 41 and 42 are blank. The remaining 18 folia contain Mallinātha's commentary on this canto. There is one extra folio at the end, and this is blank.

The several cantos seem to be copied by different hands. Cantos VI and VII are copied by one Gopālakṛṣṇamma as is stated in the Telugu colophon at the end of each of these cantos: गोपालकृष्णमम ब्राह्मिदि. The name of the scribe who copied the text as well as the commentary of canto VIII is not given. Fol. 6 is broken in the middle and only a portion of it is available. From the incomplete Telugu inscription on its back, it is possible to glean that the codex belongs to one Rāma-līngasāstri, (son of?) Gopālakṛṣṇasāstri of Koṇḍubhollu: कोण्डुभोल्लु गोपालकृष्णशास्त्रु रामलिंगशास्त्रु पुस्तकं.

The perforation of insects has been too considerable as regards this codex. Whole leaves have been very badly injured. Some of the leaves seem to have grown very brittle through age also.

19. XXX. L. 1.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 49. 17" × 1½". Fairly recent slightly worm-eaten and in good condition. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 6 in a page. Inked, except for the last folio.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for cantos IV, IX and X.

Canto IX is given first, next comes canto IV, and lastly canto X. The first two cantos are numbered continuously, and seem to form together part of a bigger codex; canto X seems to be part of a different codex. Fol. 23a concludes canto IX, and canto IV is continued on Fol. 24. Fol. 23b is blank. There is one extra folio at the end, and this contains pratikas of all verses in canto I and of the first 21 stanzas in the next canto. Verses 16 and 17 of canto II are not mentioned here in this Index. This folio is considerably damaged by the ravages of worms.

The name of the scribe who copied canto X is not known. Canto IX, however, seems to have been copied by Vāṭilla Venkaṭasivasāstri from the Telugu scribbling at the close of this canto: वाविल्ल वैकटशिवशास्त्रुलगारि भारवितोम्मदो सर्गसव्याख्य. Canto IV contains at the end the line: प्रयाग अप्पनशास्त्रुलु वाविलाल अप्पय्यशास्त्रुलगारि संपूर्णमुगा ब्राह्मियिचेनु. This shows that the scribe for this canto is Vāṭilla Appayya-sāstrin.

XXX. L. 2.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. (2-53). 16" × 1½". Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 4-5 in a page. Generally Inked, except for foll. 22 and 23.

Complete.

Cantos III and V of the same work with the same commentary.

Canto V is given first and canto III comes next. Canto V is concluded on fol. 23a. Fol. 23b is blank. Canto III beings on fol. 24a, and is continued till the end of the codex. Fol. 40 which occurs in the middle is blank. There is an extra leaf at each end of the codex.

Both these are blank and are broken in the middle. There is considerable damage done to the codex by worms. Some folia like 22, 23 and 52 are worn out with age.

21. XXX. L. 22.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. (1-14). 15" x 1½". Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 7 to 8 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for canto IX.

The work ends abruptly at the end of the 66th verse in the canto. The commentary is available only till the end of verse 65. The left half of fol. 4b is left blank. There are two extra leaves thereafter; the first of these is blank and the other (fol. 16) contains the following passage in prose :

The folia are not numbered. As a result of insect-bite, several letters in the body of the text and commentary of the Kirātārjunīya are missing.

XXX. L. 25.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. (2-14). 17"×1½". Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured. Cursory Medium writing in Telugu. Lines 6-8 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for canto XV.

The first folio is blank and seems to be attached extra to the codex. Insect-perforation is rather slight and has affected mostly the edges of the folia, though here and there some letters in the body of the codex are also eaten away.

The codex seems to have originally belonged to an Āndhra, Ekesvara Nṛsimhādrisāstrulu by name, as can be seen from the indistinct inscription on top of the codex.

XXX. L. 26.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. (1-19). 16"×1½". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good Medium writing in Telugu. Lines 5-6 in a page. Inked. Complete for the portion.

Same work and commentary for canto VIII only.

Canto VIII of the Kirātārjunīya ends on fol. 19b. There are three extra folia after that. The first two of these contain extracts from the Ucciṣṭhaganapathikalpa in the S'ābara Tantra. The next one gives some tabulated statement of the income and expenditure and other similar information of a personal nature regarding the scribe. There is one extra leaf also at the beginning of the codex, but this is blank.

The name of the scribe who copied the portion of the Kirātārjunīya seems to be Vāvilāla Venkaṭasiva Sāstri from the following Telugu sentence at the bottom of fol. 19b :

वाविळाल वैकटशिवशास्त्रिभारविसर्गसव्याख्यगा उन्निवि ।

XXXVI. F. 6.

COMMENTARY ON THE KIRĀTĀRJUNĪYA
(PRASANNASĀHITYACANDRIKĀ) BY EKANĀTHA

किरातार्जुनीयव्याख्या (प्रसन्नसाहित्यचन्द्रिका) एकनाथकृता

White, country-made paper. Foll. 20. 10"×4½". Old and tattered. Medium writing in Devanagari of the Maithilī type in more than one hand. Lines 14 in a page.

Incomplete.

Ekanātha's commentary on cantos VIII, XI—XIII of the Kirātārjunīya of Bhāravi.

The codex is extremely defective, considerable portions of it being mutilated, and what little portion of it that remains being too very worn out and tattered.

It begins from the middle of the commentary on verse VIII. 28, and, so far as this canto is concerned, the commentary breaks off in the middle of verse 43. The commentary on canto IX is lost, and only a portion of the last line of the commentary on canto X is available. The commentary on canto XI is intact; but as regards canto XII, the commentary is again lost for verses 30 to 38, and for the second-half of verse 29 and for the first-half of verse 39. The commentary for canto XII has no further break. Canto XIII again has a severe break. From the middle of verse 6 till the middle of verse 64 in this canto, the commentary is lost. For canto XIV, the commentary is available till about the end of verse 8.

The numbers of the folio are marked at the edges. These are not clear in the case of numerous folia which are very badly injured and worn-out.

The colophons of each canto run:

इति श्रीएकनाथभट्टविरचितायां प्रसन्नसाहित्यचन्द्रिकायां किरातार्जुनीयटीकायां . . . सर्गः ।

In his article entitled "Ekanāthabhaṭṭa's commentary on the Kirātārjunīya called Prasannasāhityacandrikā and its probable date" (Calcutta Oriental Journal, III. 52 ff.), Mr. P. K. Gode assigns the commentary to the period between A.D. 1400—1583 or the latter-half of the 15th century.

XI. E. 38.

White, country-made paper. Foll. 172. 8½"×5½". Old but in fairly good condition. Medium writing in Devanagari of the Maithilī type. Lines 15 in a page.

Complete for the portion.

Same commentary as above for cantos X to XVIII.

Some pages of this old MS. are very brittle and the letters on some of them are almost effaced. The codex appears to be 253 years old as is evidenced by the following colophon of the scribe at its end (fol. 172a):

संवत् १७४८ वर्षे कार्तिकवदि रभौमे भट्ट भवानी-
दाशसुत का . . . जीता छपितं ॥ श्रीः ॥

According to this the codex was copied by the son of Bhaṭṭa Bhavānidāsa on Tuesday, the second day in the month of Kārtika of the year Samvat 1748 (=1691 A.D.)

Canto I ends (fol. 10b) :

इति श्रीमत्कृष्णद्वैपायनभट्टसूनुना देवराजेन विरचि- तायां किरातव्याख्यायां प्रथम ॥

Canto II ends (fol. 22b) :

इति श्रीमत्कृष्णद्वैपायनभट्टसूनुना देवराजाचार्येण
विरचितायां किरातार्जुनीयव्याख्यायां द्वितीयः सर्गः ॥

Canto III breaks off at about the end of its last verse, and canto IV is available only from the middle of verse 6.

Canto IV ends (fol. 42b) :

इति श्रीमत्कृष्ण० देवराजार्येण .. विरचितायां ..
सुखबोधिन्यां किरातार्जुनीयव्याख्यायां चतुर्थः सर्गः ॥

Canto V ends (fol. 52a) :

इति श्रीमत्सुखबोधिन्याख्यायां किरातार्जुनीयव्या- ख्यायां चतुर्थः सर्गः ॥

Canto VI ends (fol. 59a) :

इति श्रीमद्वैपायनभट्टसूनुना देवराजार्येण विरचिते किरातार्जुनीयव्याख्याने षष्ठः सर्गः ॥

Canto VII ends (fol. 67b) :

इति श्रीमत्कृष्ण० देवराजार्येण विरचितायां सुख-बोधव्याख्यायां सप्तमः सर्गः ॥

Canto VIII ends (fol. 79a) :

इति श्रीमत्कृष्ण० विरचिताय lacunæ धन्या- ख्यायां अष्टमः सर्गः ।

Canto IX ends (fol. 92a) :

इति श्रीमद्वैपायनभट्टसूनुना देवराजार्येण० सुख-
बोधन्याख्यायां किरातार्जुनीयव्याख्यायां नवमः सर्गः ॥

Canto X ends (fol. 103b) :

इति श्रीमत्कृष्ण० दशमस्सर्गः ॥

Canto XI breaks off in the middle of its last verse on fol. 117a. Fol. 117b is blank. Canto XII opens (fol. 118a) only in the middle of verse 6, and ends (fol.
126b) :

इति श्रीमत्कृष्ण० सुखबोधिन्याख्याया० द्वादशः
सर्गः ॥

Canto XIII ends (fol. 144b) :

इति श्रीमत्कृष्ण० सुखबोधिन्यां व्याख्यायां त्रयो- दशः सर्गः ॥

Canto XIV ends (fol. 157a) :

इति श्रीमत्कृष्ण० सुबोधिन्याख्यायां किराता०
चतुर्दशः सर्गः ॥

The codex breaks off abruptly in the middle of verse 23 of canto XV.

The codex is very highly damaged, many of its folia being broken into two. Several folia are available only in small pieces. The text is also given along with the commentary.

Three MSS. of this commentary are available in the Govt. Oriental MSS. Library, Madras; one of them (R. No. 1854d) contains cantos I-III; another (R. No. 2912) contains 7 cantos more but breaks off in the middle of canto X; the third (R. No. 3382a) contains cantos IV-XV. The Trivandrum Palace library MS. described in the catalogue of the Library under the number 1701 is also fragmentary, and contains cantos I-X only.

From similarity in colophons it is possible to infer that our author is identical with his namesake who commented on the S'isupālavadha of Māgha also. For an account of this commentary, see below.

He cites Prakāśavarṣa as his predecessor in his commentary on the Kirātārjunīya. In his commentary on the S'isupālavadha, he mentions the commentaries of Haridāsa, Vallabha and S'rāṅgadeva. He should therefore be later than all these.

COMMENTARY ON THE KIRĀTĀRJUNĪYA
(GHANṬĀPĀTHA) BY MALLINĀTHA

किरातार्जुनीयव्याख्या (घण्टापथम्) मल्लिनाथकृता

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 48. 16½" × 11½".

Old, worm-eaten and extremely injured. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 5-7 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Commentary for cantos X-XIV only:

The codex opens in the middle of the commentary on verse 12 of canto X which is concluded on fol. 10b. Canto XI is begun on fol. 11a and is concluded in the middle of fol. 23a, the remaining portion of which is left blank. Canto XIII is begun on fol. 23b, and this concludes at about the close of fol. 33a. Fol. 33b is blank. From fol. 34a till fol. 40b, there is the commentary for canto XII, which is virtually concluded on fol. 40a, only the colophon extending towards fol. 40b which is blank for the remaining portion. The remaining folia contain canto XIV which breaks off, at the end of the codex, in the middle of verse 64.

The codex seems to be part of a bigger codex containing perhaps the commentary in full, as can be inferred from the fact that its fifth folio is numbered 243 and its last 292. The numbering, however, is irregular and inaccurate. The leaves are very badly injured, most of them existing only in halves or lesser portions. Damaging of edges as well as wear with age seems to be an almost universal feature of all the folia in the codex.

The name of the scribe is not known.

This is followed by the scribe's colophon

A complete MS. (No. 11493) of the commentary, written in Devanagari, is available in the Govt. Oriental MSS.
Library, Madras.

According to M. Krishnamachari (Classical Sanskrit Literature, p. 153n), Vidyāmādhava lived in the court of Bhūloka-malla Someśvara III whose date of accession to the throne, according to V. A. Smith (Early History of India, p. 437), is A.D. 1125—6.

KUMĀRASAṂBHAVA OF KĀLIDĀSA

कुमारसंभवः कालिदासकृतः

Palmyra leaves (S'rītāla). Foll. 22 14" × 2½". Old and in good condition. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 12 in a page. Inked. Wooden board at either end.

Incomplete.

The text of the poem dealing with the birth of Kumāra for cantos I—VIII.

The MS. breaks off abruptly at the end of verse 22 of canto VIII.

31.

XXII. K. 24.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 12. 14½" × 1½". Fairly old and insect perforated, but in good condition. Good Telugu writing in more than one hand. Lines 3-5 in each page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text as above for cantos I and VI.

The text is complete for canto I. This is immediately succeeded by canto VI which ends abruptly at the end of its 24th verse. The first 17 stanzas in canto I are written in a small round hand; but the rest of the codex is written in a big, careless and clumsy hand. The MS. is highly damaged by the ravages of worms, so much so that several letters and even words are sometimes eaten away.

XXV. N. 6.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 10. 13" × 1". Old, worn-out and injured. Cursory medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked. Wooden board at either end.

Incomplete.

Same work as above for cantos I and II.

The MS. breaks off abruptly in the middle of verse 15 of canto II. At the end of canto I there is the following wrong colophon (fol. 9a):

इति श्रीपदवाक्य सखीविन्यां
प्रथमः सर्गः which mistakes the text for the commentary of Mallinātha.

33.

XXIX. B. 31.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 15. 9½" × 1½". Fairly old, worm-eaten and slightly injured, but in good condition. Good small Telugu writing. Lines 5-7 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same work as above (cantos II and V).

The folia are of various sizes and are not numbered. Cantos II and V which are tagged on together here may be parts of different codices. Canto II seems to have been completed on Sunday, the first day in the dark fortnight of the month of Kārtika in the encyclical year Virodhikṛt, and the scribe seems to be an Āndhra as can be judged from the following Telugu lines occurring at the end :

विरोधिकृत्संवत्सरकार्तिकबहुलपञ्चमी आदिवारं
नाडुरोण्डुओमुलमीदनाल्लुगु. घडियल पोहुयेक्कि आखिर सम्पूति आय्निदि ।

The date of completion of the transcription of Canto V is not specified. This canto concludes in the middle of fol. 14a and 14b is blank. Folio 15a contains the Pratīkas of the first 40 verses of canto III, meant probably to serve the purpose of an index.

34. XXII. K. 23.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 11. 12"×1". Old, badly injured and worm-eaten. Cursory medium Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text as above for canto VIII only.

35. XXVII. J. 4.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 2. 17½"×1". Old, slightly injured and worm-eaten. Cursory medium Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 20.

On a fly leaf at the beginning there is the inscription वेदाचलस्य रघुवंशप्रथमसर्गोऽयं प्रथः. Vedācala may either be the owner or the scribe of the MS. or both.

36. XXXIV. J. 17.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 14. 13½"×1½". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Cursory medium Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Partly inked.

Incomplete.

Cantos V and VI of the Kumārasāmbhava with the Sañjivini of Mallinātha.

Folia of cantos V and VI are numbered separately. Canto V ends in the middle of folio 20b. Folio 21a consists of a few illegible Telugu verses of a devotional character. Folio 21b is blank, and the remaining 16 contain canto VI.

XXX. K. 39.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 22 (2—23). 15½"×2". Fairly old and worm-eaten, but in good condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 7 in a page. Uninked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for canto VIII.

The text and the commentary exist separately; foll. 2—6 contain the text, and the next 17 folia contain the commentary. These two portions are also numbered separately. There is an extra leaf both at the beginning as well as at the end of the codex. Overleaf the former is inscribed the stray verse :

तमोनिविष्टचित्तेन दत्तं दानं तु य (इ)वेत् ।

न तस्य फलमश्नोति न(रो?)मर्गगतो नृप ॥

Over-leaf the latter is the following Telugu passage :

Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured.
Medium Telugu writing in more than one hand. Lines 5 to 8 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for cantos VI and VII.

For canto VI, both the text and commentary are given, but only the text of canto VII is found though this portion ends with the time-honoured colophon :
इति श्री पदवाक्यप्रमाण कोलाचलमहिलांथ-
सूरिविरचितायां कुमारसंभवसव्याख्यायां सञ्जीविनी- समाख्यायां सप्तमः सर्गः संपूर्णः । Canto VI concludes on fol. 20b and canto VII begins only on fol. 25a. Intervening there are 4 extra leaves. The first of these (fol.
21b) contains overleaf the trite verse on Indian Metrics :

आदिमध्यावसानेषु यरता यांति लाघवम् ।

भजसा गौरवं यान्ति मनौ तु गुस्ताववौ ॥ which speaks of the nature of the 8 Gaṇas and its explanation :

In the same folio, the scribe has scribbled some notes pertaining to grammar :

From a minute Telugu inscription on top of the title page which runs वाविलाल-

KUMĀRASAMBHAVADĪPIKĀ OF DAKṢI-NĀVARTANĀTHA

कुमारसंभवदीपिका दक्षिणावर्तनाथकृता

S'ritālā leaves. Foll. 5. 14" × 2½". Old but in good condition. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 12 in a page. Inked. Wooden board at either end.

Complete for the portion.

Commentary of Dakṣiṇāvartanātha on canto VIII of the same text.

Ends (fol. 5b) :

इति श्रीदक्षिणावर्तनाथविरचितायां कुमारसंभव-दीपिकायां अष्टमः सर्गः ।

This portion immediately follows Mallinātha's gloss in the codex, but is independently numbered. Seven folia follow at the end. The first of these is blank. Beginning on the second of these and ending on fol. 3a is a fragmentary commentary of Mallinātha on a few select verses. Fol. 3b gives the commentary of the same author for four verses of canto II. The remaining four folia are blank.

There are two MSS. (R. 2707 and R. 3746b) in the Govt. Oriental MSS. Library, Madras, which give almost the complete commentary.

Dakṣiṇāvartanātha is known to have commented also on the Raghuvamśa and the Mcghadūta of Kālidāsa. The latter commentary is printed as No. LXIV of the Trivandrum Sanskrit Series, Trivandrum, 1919. In the preface attached to this edition, the late MM. Gaṇapati Sastri points out that, since this commentator cites Keśavasvāmin, author of the Nānārthārṇavasamīkṣeṣa composed in 12th cent. A.D. and is himself referred to by Āruṇācalanātha, he is earlier than Mallinātha and should have lived some time after the former writer and some time before the latter.

KUMĀRASAMBHAVAVIVARAṆA OF NĀRĀ-
YAṆA

कुमारसंभवविवरणं नारायणकृतम्

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 55 (1-55). 12"X2". Fairly old and slightly injured, but in good condition. Good small writing in Malayalam. Lines 11-13 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

The Vivaraṇa of Nārāyaṇa, pupil of Kṛṣṇa, on cantos I and II of the Kumārāsambhava of Kālidāsa.

The commentary for cantos I to VIII has been printed in the Trivandrum Sanskrit Series (Nos. XXVII, XXXII and XXXVI).

Among other works of this commentator are the Padārthadīpikā, a commentary on the Raghuvamśa of Kālidāsa, the Govindāṅgagunaughavarṇanavidhi (Govindacarita?), Śrīmāsotsavacāṃpū, Mānameyodaya, Āśleṣāsataka, Śrīmadbhāgavataprabandha, Nṛsiṃhacāṃpū, and the Vaidehīnavasāṅgacāṃpū. Of these, the first six cantos of the commentary on the Raghuvamśa were published by the Mangalodayam Company, Trichur, some years ago. The Mānameyodaya was published in 1912 in the Trivandrum Sanskrit Series as No. XIX. The work was re-edited with an English translation by Dr. C. Kunhan Raja and S. S. Suryanarayana Sastri, and was published by the Theosophical Publishing House, Adyar, in 1933. An examination of this work shows that our commentator was responsible only in completing what was begun by his namesake, the well-known author of the Nārāyaṇīya and the Prakriyāsarvasva. The Āśleṣāsataka has been very recently published in the pages of the Journal of the Trāvancore University Oriental MSS. Library (January-April 1946), and some of the verses of this poem have really great poetic beauty.

His mother's name seems to be Kālī and Nīlakaṇṭha that of his father. He had a brother, Śrīkumāra by name. He hails from the village Brahmakhala, situated a few miles to the south-east of the well-known Guruvāyūr temple in the Ponnani Taluk, British Malabar. From his maternal uncle Puruṣottama, a great scholar and native of the village of S'vetagrāma-vana, he learnt the fundamentals of Mīmāṃsā, as taught by the great Kumārila-bhaṭṭa. His son Subrahmaṇya and a Rāmācārya instructed him also in Kāśikā and Tarka. Our commentator's knowledge in Sāhitya was derived from the instruction he had at the hands of Kṛṣṇa whose most favoured disciple he claims to be. He was patronized by a King Mānaveḍa at whose instance he prepared the Meya portion of the Mānameyodaya.

Concerning the date of our author, we have the testimony of Mr. K. Narayana Piṣhāroṭi¹ who finds the chronogram Dhīdhr̥ksatkāvyaśr̥ṣṭāvitikalidivase at the end of his MS. of our author's commentary on the Raghuvaṃśa. Here in this chronogram we have the date of birth of the author in Kali days as 1711799. It corresponds to the month of Tulam in the Kollam year 761 (=A.D. 1586). Mr. Piṣhāroṭi is also inclined to identify Mānaveḍa, the patron of our author, with him who is the author of the Kṛṣṇagīti (A.D. 1654) and the Pūrvabhāratacampū (A.D. 1644). For more details on this subject, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, October 1945, pp. 101 ff.

Commentary for cantos II—VII of the Kumārasambhava of Kālidāsa.

This portion which immediately follows the textual portion in the codex is independently numbered.

44. XXI. A. 59.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 42, 15½"×12½". Old, worm-eaten and very badly injured. Good medium writing in Telugu. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary as above for cantos II-VII.

The codex begins from about the end of verse 13 in canto II, and the commentary goes on thenceforward, without any break, till about the end of verse 72 in canto III. There is a gap from here till canto IV-16. For canto IV, the commentary is available only from verse 17 till the end. Similarly, the commentary for canto V breaks off at the end of verse 84, and that for canto VI begins only from the middle of verse 5. This defect is complete in the case of canto VII which has the commentary only for verses 1 to 19, and from verse 35 till about the middle of verse 49.

The codex is very badly damaged and portions of several folia are lost both as a result of age as well as of the ravages of worms.

The name of the scribe is not known.

Incomplete.

The Pañcikā of Vallabha, son of Ānan-dadeva, on the Kumārasambhava of Kālidāsa (cantos II-IV and VI).

The codex opens with fol. 22 which gives the commentary on verses 35-43 of canto II.

Foll. 23 to 27 are missing. Fol. 28a opens about the end of verse 11 of canto
III which is concluded at the commencement of fol. 37a with the colophon :

इत्यानन्ददेवविरचितायां बलभट्टीकायां कुमारसंभवे
मदनदहनो नाम तृतीयः सर्गः ।

Fol. 36 is missing in the middle.

Canto IV follows the colophon immediately on the same folio, and concludes at the end of fol. 41b with the colophon :

इत्यानन्ददेवायनिश्रीबलभट्टमदेवविरचितायां कुमार-संभवपञ्चिकायां चतुर्थः सर्गः ।

Fol. 38 is missing in the middle of the canto as are foll. 42-53 thereafter. Foll.
54-57 give the commentary for verses 4 to 44 of canto VI which breaks off abruptly at the end of the codex.

The codex is highly defective in that it is as corrupt and fragmentary as it is old and worn-out.

The Leipzig MS. (Aufrecht 372) gives this commentary for the first seven Cantos. The Berlin MS. (Weber 1541) of this commentary is fuller in that it contains the first 8 cantos. For other MSS. of the commentary, see Aufrecht,
Catalogus Catalogorum, I. 110b ; III. 24b.

Vallabhadeva seems to be a prolific writer having commented also on the Raghuvamśa and Meghadūta of Kālidāsa, the Sisupālavadha of Māgha, the Sūryasataka of Mayūra, and the Vakrokti-pañcāśikā of Ratnākara. The last of these commentaries is published in the Kāvyamālā (1893), Part I, pp. 101 ff. The commentary on the Meghadūta was published by Hultzsch at London in 1911.
MSS. of the commentary on the Sisupālavadha are abundant. A MS. of the Sūryāmvādinī, Vallabha's commentary on the Sūryasataka of Mayūra is noticed under the number 1729 by Rajendralal Mitra in his Notices of Sanskrit Manuscripts, Vol. V, p. 7. In the course of his commentary on the Sisupālavadha, Vallabhadeva refers twice (on Māgha, IV.
21 ; V, 28) to a commentary of his on the Rudrāṭalāṅkāra, but as yet no MS. of this commentary seems to have been discovered. There seems to be unanimity of opinion in holding that this Vallabhadeva is earlier than and different from the anthologist of that name, though it is not possible to say with the same degree of certainly whether this Vallabhadeva is the same or different from the grand-father of Kaiyaṭa who wrote a commentary on Ānandavardhana's Devīsataka (Kāvyamālā, IX, pp. 1-30). A great many scholars believe in the identity of the two Vallabhadevas, and hold that, as the grand-father of Kaiyaṭa who wrote his gloss on the Devīsataka in the year 977-78 A.D. during the reign of Bhīmagupta of Kashmir, our author should be a Kashmirian, and have lived during the first half of the 10th cent. A. D. To K. B. Pathak, our Vallabhadeva is different from Kaiyaṭa's grand-father of the same name, because he is known to cite from Halāyudha and Kṣīrasvāmin, but S. K. De (Sanskrit Poetics, II. 378) feels that "there is nothing to show that these are cases of real borrowings or that these later writers did not themselves borrow the passages in question from our Vallabha himself."

If at all our Vallabhadeva is the grand-father of Kaiyaṭa, his son will be Candrāditya. His preceptor was Prakāśavarṣa who, to Hultsch, is perhaps identical with the poet of that name who is cited in the Subhāṣitāvalī and the S'arṅgadhara-paddhati and who commented on Bhāravi (Aufrecht, CC. I. 347). Our Vallabhadeva is certainly earlier than Mallinātha who cites him in his commentary. (See Oxford Catalogue, p. 113.)

täts-Bibliothek zu Leipzig, pp. 120-121. E. Hultsch's Preface (pp. 10-11) to his edition of the Meghadūta with Vallabhadeva's commentary (London, 1911); K. B. KṚṢṆAVIJAYA OF S'ĀṆKARAKAVI

कृष्णविजयः शङ्करकविकृतः

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 47 (3-49). 9½" × 1½". Fairly recent but worm-eaten and injured. Good small writing in Malayalam. Lines 9-10 in a page. Inked. Incomplete.

The text of the Kṛṣṇavijaya of S'āṅkarakavi for cantos I-VIII.

Begins:

श्री गणपतये नमः । अविघ्नमस्तु ।

मदापगाशीकरसेकशीता

माध्वीलिहां मांसलिता निनादैः ।

हरन्तु तापं हरनन्दनस्य

कल्याणदाः कर्णसमीरणा मे ॥

Canto I ends:

इति शङ्करकविकृतौ श्रीकृष्णविजये प्रथमः सर्गः ।

The codex abruptly ends (fol. 49b) at the end of verse 59 of canto VIII:

सुभगाप्रेसरः सुखं किमास्ते नगरे तत्र स नन्द-गोपसूनुः ।

कलहंसधुरन्धरो विलासी कुचपद्मेषु कुङ्कु- लोचनानाम् ॥

The text is available in complete only for cantos I to III and VII. There are large gaps in the middle of the other cantos.

The work is printed in full in the Mangalodayam Press, Trichur (1914).

The first two folia contain a fragment of the Mahāṣaṁgala, while the two extra folia at the end contain a few stray verses:

Colophon (fol. 13b):

इति सुकुमारकृतौ कृष्णविलासे प्रथमः सर्गः ।

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse
44 of canto III.

The poem is itself a fragment, and it is alleged that the author did not live to complete it. But even this fragment is not yet fully printed. The first known attempt to print, at least portions of this fragment, seems to have been made by the Keralagrandhamālā (1906-8, II, 2, 8), and more incomplete editions have been many subsequently.

Neither the date nor the other works of the author can be mentioned with certainty. The best known commentary on the poem is that by Rāmapāṇivāda of the 18th cent. A.D., and this date can serve as the terminus ad quem for the author also.

The MS. breaks off at the end of commentary on verse 54 of canto II.

The most complete MS. of the commentary available seems to be that found in the Travancore Palace Library (No. 1949) which goes as far as the end of Sarga IX. Only four Sargas of the commentary have so far been printed, and this has been done twice, once at the S'āstrasañjivini Press, 1914, and another time at Palghat. Two other commentaries on the poem, one the Bālapāṭhyā of Govinda and the other by Ramavarma Āyilyam Tirunal, Maharaja of Travancore (A.D. 1860-80), are also known. The only known MS. of the first of these is in the Govt. Oriental MSS. Library, Madras (No. R. 3439). The second is mentioned by M. Krishnamacharya in his History of Classical Sanskrit Literature, p. 878.

Our commentator, Rāmapāṇivāda, is one of the best known poets of Malabar in Sanskrit and Prakrit and is known to have lived in the 18th cent. A.D. His greatest poem is the Rāghaviya (Trivandrum Sanskrit Series, No. 146, 1942) which, in twenty cantos, gives the story of the Rāmāyaṇa. His Mukundasataka was published by the Travancore University Manuscripts Library in 1946, and his vṛtti on the Prākṛtasūtras of Vararuci in the Adyar Library Series (No. 54) in 1946. Both his Prakrit poems, Kaṁ- savaḥ and Usāniruddha, are available in print; the former of these was published by Dr. A. N. Upadhye in Bombay in 1940 with an English translation, and the latter has been edited twice, the text alone by Dr. Upadhye in the Journal of the Bombay University, Vol. X, part 2, 1941, and with a Sanskrit chāyā in the Adyar Library Series (No. 42) in 1943. A number of the author's other works which are unpublished, are available in MSS.

The first ten Cantos of the poem were published by Mr. G. R. Nandargikar in Bombay in 1907. The two earlier editions which have appeared are one from Calcutta, edited by Pandit Haridasa Sastri, and the other from Ceylon, edited by Principal Dharmarama of Vidyalankara Oriental College, Peliyagoda, Kelaniya, 1891. His date is not known definitely. Mr. G. R. Nandargikar, (Introduction to his edition of जानकीहरण, Poona, 1908, p. xxviii) however, assigns him 'to the close of the eighth and the middle of the ninth century of the Christian Era.'

Complete.

The text of the poem giving in twenty-two cantos the story of Nala.

62. XXX. J. 40.
 Palmyra leaves. Foll. 95. 18½" × 1½".
 Fairly recent, slightly worm-eaten, but in good condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 8-9 in a page. Inked.
 Almost complete.

Same text as above for cantos I to XXII.

The codex breaks off abruptly at the end of verse 137 of canto XXII.

Fol. 44 is blank.

The original owner of the codex seems to be one Vatsam Bhogappayya Sastri from the inscription overleaf the extra folio at the beginning.

63. VIII. F. 27.
 Paper. Pages 23. 6½" × 7½". Old but in good condition. Good small Grantha

Same text for cantos VII to IX.

The MS. breaks off abruptly at the end of verse 33 of canto IX.

64. XIX. K. 10. Same text for canto I.
 Palmyra leaves. Foll. 7. $17\frac{3}{4}'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$. The MS. breaks off at the end of Old, and slightly injured. Good small verse 40.
 Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page.
 Inked.
 Complete for the portion.
 Same text for canto VII only.
65. XIX. M. 64.
 Palmyra leaves. Foll. 16 (27-42).
 $16\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{3}{5}''$. Fairly recent, slightly insect-perforated and injured, but in good condition. Cursory Telugu writing of varying sizes. Lines 5-7 in a page. Inked.
 Incomplete.
 Same text as above for cantos III and IV.
 Canto III is complete, but canto IV abruptly breaks off in the middle of verse 48. Canto III which concludes on fol. 39a bears, obviously due to scribal absent-mindedness, the wrong colophon:
 इति श्रीपदवाक्यप्रमाणसरिणमहोपाध्यायकोलाचल-महलिनाथसूरिविरचितायां संजीविनीसमाख्यायां नैष-धव्याख्यायां तृतीयः सर्गः समाप्तः । श्रीरामाय नमः ।
 Fol. 39b is full of fantastic scribblings of portions of the same colophon. Canto IV begins on fol. 40a.
66. XX. D. 30.
 Palmyra leaves. Foll. 6. $17\frac{1}{4}'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$.
 Old, worm-eaten and injured. Cursory large Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page.
 Inked.
 Incomplete.
67. XX. N. 15.
 Palmyra leaves. Foll. 91. $15\frac{3}{4}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
 Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Partly inked.
 Complete for the portion.
 Same text for cantos I to VIII and XIII.
68. XXII. I. 54.
 Palmyra leaves. Foll. 12. $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$.
 Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Uninked.
 Complete for the portion.
 Same text for canto I.
69. XXIII. C. 30.
 Palmyra leaves. Foll. 20. $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1''$.
 Old, but in good condition. Cursory large Telugu writing. Lines 5 in a page. Uninked.
 Complete for the portion.
 Same text for canto IX.
 From an inscription on a fly-leaf the owner is known to be Yādavalli Sūrya-nārāyaṇagāru.
70. XXIV. N. 16.
 Palmyra leaves. Foll. 41. $7'' \times 1\frac{3}{4}''$.
 Fairly old and badly injured. Malayalam writing in more than one hand. Lines 7-10 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos XIX to XXII.

The MS. is very highly fragmentary. Folia 3, 5 to 9, 12 to 19, 24, 27, 32 to 34, 36 to 43, 45, 50, 54, 57 to 59, 65 and 74 are missing. The codex breaks off in the middle of verse 63 of canto XXII. The last folio containing the scribe's colophon, however, remains. This MS. contains many variant readings as compared with the Nirnayasagar Press Edn. of the text.

71: XXV. B. 24.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 16. $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Uninked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text for canto I.

Over-leaf the last folio the owner's name is given as S'āthakopan, son of Vidvān Rāmācārya.

72. XXVI. I. 36.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 52. $18\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$. Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Cursory medium Grantha writing. Lines 5-6 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text for cantos I and VII to IX.

The MS. is highly damaged and foll. 3 and 34 are broken. Foll. 46b and 47a are blank. There are fragment scribbings in Telugu here and there in the codex and one verse is once (fol. 43a) even written in Telugu characters.

From the numerous scribal inscriptions throughout the codex, the scribe seems to be a S'rīvaiṣṇava belonging to S'rīperumbudur, Coujeevaram Taluk and Chingleput District.

73. XXVII. F. 33.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 10. $13\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$. Old but slightly injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text for canto XII.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 73.

74. XXVII. I. 63.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 7. $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Large cursory Grantha writing. Lines 4 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text for canto VII.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 43.

75. XXVIII. C. 78.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 12. $14'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Old, worm-eaten and slightly injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text for canto XI.

76. XXVIII. C. 79.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 19. $17'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$. Fairly old and worm-eaten. In tolerable condition. Cursory Telugu writing of several sizes. Lines 8-12 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos I-IV.

Canto I breaks off at the end of fol. 6 at the close of verse 105. The remaining 9 folia give the full text for cantos II and III. On fol. 15b begins canto IV which breaks off at the end of verse 98 in the middle fol. 19a. The rest of this folio is blank.

The codex is defective in that it gives the complete text of only two out of four cantos. The numbering is also irregular, the last 13 folia being numbered independently.

77. XXVIII. D. 1.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 62. $13\frac{1}{4}" \times 1\frac{1}{4}"$. Old and slightly injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text for cantos I to VI.

On a fly-leaf at the beginning the name of the owner is given as Subrahmanya.

78. XXVIII. D. 6.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 80. $18" \times 1\frac{3}{8}"$. Fairly old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Cursory Telugu writing of several sizes. Lines 6-7 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same text for cantos I-XIII.

Many folia like fol. 27 are broken in the middle, fol. 3 is almost blank except for two lines. Fol. 79b is blank. There are two extra folia at the end; the first of these has some incoherent inscriptions, while the second is blank.

The codex was composed by Lakṣmīpati on the full-moon day of the month of Vaisākha in the encyclical year Krodhi:

क्रोधिसंवत्सरं वैशाखशुद्धपूर्णिम्यां लिखितमासर्गातं लक्ष्मीपतिना ॥

79. XXVIII. D. 8.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 49. $14" \times 2"$. Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Large cursory Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Not inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text for cantos II to VI.

80. XXVIII. D. 10.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 70. $17\frac{1}{4}" \times 1\frac{1}{2}"$. Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Medium cursory Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Partly inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos I to VI and XIII.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 47 of canto XIII. The text for the other cantos is complete.

81. XXVIII. D. 16.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 4. $13\frac{1}{2}" \times 1"$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Uninked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text for canto XIII.

82.

XXVIII. D. 18.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 89. $16\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page.
Inked. Wooden board at either end.

Complete for the portions.

Same text for cantos XI to XV, XVII to XXI.

XXVIII. D. 19.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 27. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Old but in Good condition. Medium cursory Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Partly inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos I to III.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 32 of canto III. The text for the other two cantos is complete.

XXVIII. D. 20.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 58. $17'' \times 1\frac{1}{8}''$.
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Cursory medium Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos I to VII.

Cantos I, IV-VII are complete. Canto II breaks off at the end of verse 23 and canto III at the end of verse 57.

85.

XXVIII. D. 21.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 7. $13'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.

Grantha writing. Lines 11 in a page.
Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text for canto V.

The last verse of the canto is missing.

86.

XXVIII. D. 22.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 12. $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{8}''$.
Fairly recent, but badly worm-eaten and damaged. Crude cursory Telugu writing.
Lines 4 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for canto II.

The canto is complete except for the last verse श्रीहर्ष०

87.

XXVIII. D. 23.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 22. $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Fairly recent, slightly worm-eaten and in good condition. Cursory medium writing in Telugu. Lines 6-9 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos I, III, IV & VI.

Fol. 1b gives the first 6 verses of canto
VI. Canto I which is commenced on fol. 2a breaks off at the end of fol. 8a at the end of verse 100. Fol. 8b is blank.
The next 12 folia (9-20a) give the complete text of canto III, except the last verse श्रीहर्ष० Fol. 20b is blank except for the inscription नैषधपुस्तकं । ३ सर्ग ॥ at its centre. Fol. 21 and 22 give the first 26 verses of canto IV. Fol. 23 is blank, except for verse 27 of the same canto which occupies but one line at its opening.

XXVIII. D. 24.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 37. $13'' \times 1''$.

Complete.

Same text for cantos I & II.

Fol. I contains the introductory portion of the जीवातु on the opening verse of the Naiṣadha. This is immediately followed by वागर्थविव०, the opening verse of the Raghuvamśa, and the two following verses which conclude the folio :

ज्ञानानंदमयं देवं निर्मलस्फटिकाकृतिम् ।

आधारं सर्वविद्यानां हृषीवमुपास्महे ॥

गुरुवे सर्वविद्यानां भिषजे भवरोगिणाम् ।

निधये सर्वविद्यानां हृषीवमुपास्महे ॥

The next 17 folia give the text of canto I ; and folio 20 to 30 contain canto

II. Folia 19 gives the text of the well-known घाटीपञ्चक of Vedāntadesika.

The scribe seems to be Visvanātha as can be deduced from his colophons at the end of fol. 19b as well as at the end of the codex which run as follows:

श्रीहर्षकविराजेन नैषधीये विनिर्मिते ।
सर्गोऽयमादि लिखितः विश्वनाथविपश्चिता ॥ ?

सर्गं संपूर्णं ।

नैषधं मूलं । (fol. 19b)

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 55. $15'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Old, worm-eaten and slightly injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and Mallinātha's commentary for cantos II and III.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 26. $16\frac{2}{3}'' \times 1\frac{2}{3}''$. Fairly recent; worm-eaten and injured. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 6-7 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for canto VIII.

In the middle of fol. 20, the text and commentary abruptly break off at the beginning of the commentary on verse 88. Fol. 21 which resumes the text and commentary, only begins from about the end of the commentary on verse 91; with the result that there is an unfilled gap in the codex. Fol. 22 is blank. Fol. 23 resumes the text and commentary which is concluded on Fol. 26a. Fol. 23 is wrongly numbered 22. There are two extra blank folia at the end and one at the beginning; several folia are badly damaged at the corners. Insect-perforation in the body of the folio is rather slight. The name of the scribe is not given; but from his inscription at the conclusion of the work श्रीवेणुगोपालस्वामिने नमः, it is possible to infer that he might be a Śrīvaiṣṇava.

The codex seems to have consisted originally of canto IX also as can be understood from the following Telugu inscription on the extra folio at the beginning :

नैषधं सव्याख्यानं यन्निर्मितं सर्गं तुम्हिनोसर्गकूडा- उन्नदि श्री पुस्तकमंदु । श्रीराम ।

114. XXIII. A. 4. 69-73, 98-102, 116-118, 129-130. The next folio is blank.
- Palmyra Leaves. Foll. 29. $16\frac{2}{3}'' \times 11\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly recent, worm-eaten and injured. In good condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 7-8 in a page. Inked.
- Complete for the portion.
- Same text and commentary for canto IX.
- Insect-perforation is considerable and this is most often at the left-hand corners of the Folio. There are two extra blank leaves at the beginning of the codex, and one at the end.
115. XXIII. A. 38.
- Palmyra Leaves. Foll. 35. $15'' \times 11\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly recent, slightly worm-eaten and injured. In good condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 6-7 in a page. Inked.
- Incomplete.
- Same text and commentary for cantos III and IV.
- The codex seems to have been compiled from parts of two different codices, canto IV occurs first and then only comes canto III. So far as canto IV is concerned, the text and commentary are available in full only for verses 1-79, and 124. Fol. 26b ends in the middle of the commentary on verse 80 of canto IV, while the next (fol. 27a) begins only from verse 124 of the same canto and concludes the canto. Fol. 27b is blank. The seven succeeding folia give the text and commentary for portions of canto III. These portions are verses 29-32, 37-41, 55-59, 116. XXIII. B. 1.
- Palmyra leaves. Foll. 23. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 11\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured. In tolerable condition. Good small writing in Telugu in a round hand. Lines 7-8 in a page. Inked.
- Incomplete.
- Same text and commentary for canto III.
- The MS. is highly imperfect and the omissions are considerable. It ends abruptly in the middle of verse 129.
- The folia are numbered consecutively. Those that are missing are Nos. 5, 9, 10, 12, 15, 16, 18, 20, 23, 27, 28, 31, 33 and 36. There are two blank leaves extra at the end of the codex.
- The commentary contains several variant readings as compared with the Bibliotheca Indica Edition of it.
117. XXIII. B. 9.
- Palmyra leaves. Foll. 43. $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 13''$. Fairly recent and slightly worm-eaten. In good condition. Cursory writing in Telugu in several hands. Lines 6-7 in a page. Inked.
- Complete.
- Same text and commentary for canto X.
118. XXIII. B. 14.
- Palmyra leaves. Foll. 83. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 11\frac{1}{2}''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for cantos I, IV & V.

Canto I breaks off at the end of commentary on verse 143 and canto IV at the end of that on verse 120. Canto V is complete.

The name of the scribe is given at the end as Mrtyuñjaya.

119. XXIII. B. 44.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 26. 15½" × 1½". Fairly recent, slightly insect-perforated, and in very good condition. Good medium writing in Telugu. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same text and commentary for canto XIV.

The codex has an extra blank folio at each end. Fol. 15 is nearly blank. The text given here agrees with the Bibliotheca Indica Edition of it. The Nirnayasagar Press Edition contains 3 verses more.

120. XXIII. B. 45.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 33. 17" × 1½". Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 6-8 in a page. Inked.

From the last line of this colophon, it is possible to infer that Bhogappa Śāstri may be the scribe.

From the introductory verses of the commentary it is known that Gaurī is the name of the author's mother and Līṅga that of his father. Our commentator is further known to belong to the Bahvṛca-sākhā and to the Kāśyapagotra. He seems to hail from the Telugu country. A great scholar well-versed in the various branches of learning, he has a lively consciousness of his own worth and speaks with no seeming reserve of the great value of his own commentary, especially in comparison with others composed before him. In Grammar, the equipment of our commentator seems to be such as to enable him to compose an independent work called Pāṇinīyasaraṇi. Among the earlier commentators mentioned in this commentary are Visvesvara and Mallinātha. Since the latter is known to have lived about the beginning of the 15th cent. A.D., this date will be the terminus a quo for that of our commentator.

For more details concerning the author and his commentary, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, February 1945, pp. 20 ff.

COMMENTARY ON THE NAIṢADHĪYA-CARITA (PRAKĀśA) BY NĀRĀYAṆA BEḌARKAR

नैषधीयचरितव्याख्यानम् (प्रकाशः) नारायणवेङ्कटकरकृतम्

White, country-made paper. Foll. 20 (89-108). 10" × 6". Fairly old and worn out, but in good condition. Fairly good medium Devanagari writing. Lines 20 in a page.

Complete for the portion.

The Naiṣadhīyapraśāsa of Nārāyaṇa, son of Narasimhapandita Beḍarkar on canto III of the same work.

The MS. is obviously a fragment of a bigger codex. The canto concludes in the middle of fol. 108a with the colophon:

इति वेङ्कटकरोपनामश्रीमन्नरसिंहपण्डितात्मजनारायणकृते नैषधीयप्रकाशे तृतीयः सर्गः समाप्तः ॥ श्रीगुरुभ्यो नमः ॥ श्री ॥ श्री ॥

This commentary (for canto XXII only) was first printed in 1875 in the Bibliotheca Indica by Jivānanda Vidyāsāgara, along with Mallinātha's Jivātu for the remaining cantos. It was made available in full later by the Nirṇayasagar Press, Bombay (4th Edition, 1912).

145. XXXV. C. 65.

White, country-made paper. Foll. 38. 11" × 4½". Fairly old and worm out, but in good condition. Fairly good medium Devanagari writing of the Mai-thilī type. Copied in Samvat 1728, Lines (11-13) in a page.

Complete for the portion.

Same commentary for canto XXII.

The codex is full of notes by the student at the corners of the folia. According to the careless scribal colophon at the end, it was copied (in Samvat 1728 = 1671 A.D.): संनत् १७२८ वरीषे आशादी शुद्धावष्टी परीवा.

154. XXVIII. D. 43.
Palmyra leaves. Foll. 61. $17\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Fairly recent, but badly worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Telugu writing. Lines 5-6 in a page. Inked.
Incomplete.
Same commentary for cantos III, IV, XIII & XIV.
The codex is highly fragmentary and very badly damaged. For none of the cantos except XIII is the commentary available in full. Canto XIII is given first, and this concludes in the middle of fol. 19b. Canto XIV immediately follows, and this breaks off at the beginning of verse 92. Earlier the folia containing the gloss for verses 26-41, 55-80 are missing. Canto III comes next. The commentary is available only for verses 11-132. The remaining folia which contain canto IV give the commentary for verses 1-4, 22-26, 39-43, 64-107.

155. XXVII. D. 45.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 65. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same commentary for cantos VI to VIII.

At the end of canto VI the date of transcription is given as Sunday, the star Dhaniṣṭha being in the ascendant, in the month of Margasīrṣa of the encyclical year Dhātu. Canto VI was copied by Rāman. Canto VII, from the inscription given at its conclusion, appears to have been completed on Tuesday, the star Mṛgasira being in the ascendant, in the month of Caitra of the encyclical year Īsvara by Aruṇācala, the scribe. Similarly canto VIII was copied by its anonymous scribe on Friday, the star Viśākhā being in the ascendant, the 24th day in the month of Phālguna in the encyclical year Dhātu.

156. XXVIII. D. 46.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 30. $17'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Recent but worm-eaten and injured.

Cursory medium Telugu writing. Lines 6-8 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary for canto II.

The scribe is one Veṅkaṭagiri who seems to be a S'rivaiṣṇava as can be understood from the following colophon:

वैकटगिरिणा लिखितेयं द्वितीयसर्गव्याख्या । श्रीमते रामानुजाय नमः ।

157. XXVIII. D. 47.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 33. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly old, badly worm-eaten and injured. Good medium writing in Telugu. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for canto I.

The codex is as highly fragmentary as it is very badly injured. The commentary is available only for verses 11-123.

158. XXVIII. D. 48.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 32. $16'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and damaged. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Uninked.

Complete for the portion.

Same commentary for canto II.

Four extra leaves at the end give the text of verses 65 to 97 of canto II.

159. XXVIII. D. 52.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 17. $16'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 11 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same commentary for canto VIII.

160. XXVIII. D. 57.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 35. 17" × 1". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Uninked.

Complete for the portion.

Same commentary for canto XI.

161. XXIX. A. 4.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 42. 19" × 1½". Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 8-9 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for cantos XX-XXII.

The commentary is complete only for cantos XX and XXI. That on canto XXII breaks off at the end of verse 134.

162. XXIX. B. 4.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 23. 17" × 1½". Fairly recent, worm-eaten and injured. In tolerable condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 10-11 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for cantos IX and X.

The commentary is complete only for canto IX. Canto X breaks off at the end of the codex in the middle of verse 38. The codex opens with the commentary on verse 105 of canto VIII. The codex should be part of a larger codex.

XXIX. B. 27.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 24 (9-32). 14" × 1½". Fairly old and worm-eaten, but in good condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 6-7 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary for canto V.

The extra folio at the end has some dim and incoherent inscriptions.

XXIX. F. 7.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 116. 14" × 1½". Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Telugu writing. Lines 8-10 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary for cantos I, III, V-IX.

At the end:

करकृतमपराधं क्षन्तुमर्हन्ति संतः । श्रीलक्ष्मी- नृसिंहार्पणमस्तु । श्रीमरकतवल्लीसमेतश्रीविजयराघव-स्वामिने नमः । श्रीसीतालक्ष्मणभरतशत्रुघ्नसमेत श्रीराम-चन्द्राय नमः । श्रीकृष्णार्पणमस्तु । श्रीरस्तु ।

There are 8 blank leaves extra at the end.

165.

XXIX. H. 10.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 65. 19½" × 1½". Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 5 to 7 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same commentary for cantos I and II.

166. XXIX. L. 20.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 25 (7-31).
17" × 1½". Fairly recent, worm-eaten and injured. Cursory Telugu writing of medium size. Lines 5-8 in a page.
Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary for canto II only.

167. XXIX. M. 10.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 34. 19" × 1½".
Fairly recent, worm-eaten and in good condition. Small cursory Telugu writing.
Lines 8-10 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary for cantos I and V.

168. XXIX. M. 27.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 61. 17" × 1½".
Fairly recent, worm-eaten and slightly injured. In good condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 9-12 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary for canto VII and X.

169. XXX. J. 5.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 102. 19" × 1½".
Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured. In इति पञ्चमः सर्गः ॥

In the margin to the left of fol. 1a, there is the inscription: नैषधव्याख्यानं विश्वे-

श्वन् । कवळनोष्ट्रं ग्रन्थं । After fol. 42, there is a small palm-leaf slip noticing a few corrections in the writing in the next folio. This must have been inserted by a later hand. Foll. 57b, 76b and 129b (except for one line) are blank. Fol. 127 is available in duplicate.

There are five MSS. (R. Nos. 2729, 2900, 3161, 4383 and D. 11603) in the Government Oriental MSS. Library, Madras, which give portions of the commentary. Two MSS. in the Sarasvatī Mahāl Library, Tanjore, described in the Catalogue under the numbers 3692 and 3693, contain the commentary for canto XIX only.

Mallinātha refers twice at least to an Upādhyāya Visvesvarabhaṭṭāraka in his commentary on the Naiṣadha (I. 5 and 118); and if this Visvesvara be the same as our commentator, we have here a pre-Mallinātha commentary on the Naiṣadha. If this be so, it will be wrong to identify our Visvesvara with the author of the Kavīndrakarṇābharaṇa and other works, as is done in the Kāvyamālā (Vol. VIII, 1891, p. 52n.), because the latter writer is said to have lived in the first half of the eighteenth century A.D. For more details, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, December 1945, pp. 159 ff.

XXI. P. 1.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 161. 17½" × 2". Fairly recent, very slightly worm-eaten and in good condition. Good small writing in Malayalam. Lines 8-10 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary as above for cantos IV to XVI.

The commentary is available in full only for cantos IV to XV. It breaks off in the middle of the 4th verse of canto XVI.

There are a number of blank folia in the codex: except for the following short sentence and two verses, the folio with which it opens is blank:

मूर्तिकण्ठनू नैषधव्याख्यानं टीक

तैलाद्रक्ष जलाद्रक्ष रक्ष मां क्षथवन्धनात् ।

याचकात्सततं रक्ष इति रोदिति पुस्तकः ॥

इति श्रीबुद्धबोषाचार्यविरचिते पद्यतूडामणौ सिद्धार्थ-चरिते दशमः सर्गः ।

The first eight cantos of the poem and a portion of the ninth were printed at Colombo in 1908 in the Bauddhagrantha-mālā. The entire text was published with a brief commentary in 1921 from the Government Oriental MSS. Library, Madras, under the editorship of S. Kuppuswami Sastri.

No definite information is available concerning either the date of the author or his personality. The author himself has left no details of a personal nature. It is believed that he was originally a brahmin who was later converted to Buddhism; but there is no denying of the fact that he is a very honoured name among the Buddhists of Burma, Siam and Ceylon. He is often pronounced the second founder of Southern Buddhism in Ceylon. T. Foulkes (Indian Antiquary, 1890, XIX. 105 ff.) points out that the probable dates of Buddhaghosa extend from 386 A. D. to 557 A. D. James Gray (Introduction to his Edition of the Buddhaghosapṛattī, London, 1892, p. 26) would have that, in A. D. 387, Buddhaghosa was "deputed to Ceylon by King Thin-li-Gyaung (Dhammapāla) in order to bring away a copy of the Buddhist Scriptures," but John M. Senavaratne (Ceylon Antiquary and Literary Register, 1915, Vol. I, part ii) holds that Buddhaghosa visited Ceylon only in 483 A. D. S. Kuppuswami Sastri would place him in "the latter part of the 5th cent. A. D." (Introduction to his Edn. of the Padya-cūḍāmaṇi, Madras, 1921. p. 5).

Nārāyaṇapaṇḍitācārya, the author, is the son of Trivikramapaṇḍitācārya to whom we owe the Uṣāharāṇa described above (No. 5). Among his other poems may be mentioned the Aṇumadhvavijaya, the Maṇimañjarī, Pārijātaḥarāṇa, and the Saṅgraharāmāyaṇa. Of these, the second with the commentary of Subrahmaṇya, has been printed in Bombay in 1882, the third, which is a yamaka poem, in Poona, and the last in Bombay and Belgaum. Of his three devotional hymns, the S'ivastuti, Viṣṇustuti and Nṛsimha-stotra, the first was published with a commentary in the Kāvya-mālā, Bombay, 1893, Part IX, pp. 109 ff.

It is not possible to fix the date of our author Vāsudeva with certainty. But since it is known that the author of the Padārthacintana, the earliest known commentary on the poem, was a protégé of Keralavarma of Kolattunād who ruled over the country from 1422 to 1445 A.D., the terminus ad quem of his date should be at least A.D. 1400. The Tripura-dahana and the Saurikathodaya are probably his other works.

The numbering in symbols like श्री is irregular. While (ब्रजलक) 205 is the last number according to this calculation, actually 211 folia are found in the codex. Fol. 211b is blank. There are 20 leaves extra in the codex towards the end. The first of these is blank and the rest contain fragments of the same commentary. The codex has some textual variations, especially regarding the number of verses in the individual cantos, as compared with the text published in the Kāvya-mālā (No. 60), Bombay, 1897.

MSS. of this commentary are available in the Govt. Oriental MSS. Library and in the Travancore Palace Library also.

The introductory portion of the commentary is rich in details concerning the commentator whose father, we are told, is Sudarsanabhaṭṭa of the Bharadvāja gotra and mother Acciambā by name. His preceptor was Hastigiribhaṭṭa of the Vatsagotra. His elder brother Rāmacandra-bhaṭṭa was a great scholar in the Smṛtis. Sāttanur in the Cola country on the banks of the Kāverī river seems to be the village to which Cokkanātha belonged. Among the many authorities cited in the commentary is Kāvyaadarpaṇa of Rājacūḍāmaṇidīkṣita who is known to have composed his Tantrasikhāmaṇi in 1636 A.D. This date should give the terminus a quo to that of our commentator. For more details regarding this commentary, see K. K. Raja, Adyar Library Bulletin, May 1946, pp. 109 ff.

XIX. O. 4.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 36. Size, 14" × 1.9". Fairly recent and in good condition. Good small writing in Malayalam. Lines 13 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary as above for cantos I and II only.

Canto I breaks off at the end of verse 95 on fol. 22b. Canto II which follows is available only from the middle of verse 49 till the end. The numbering of the folia is continuous.

201. XXI. Q. 5.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 203. Size, 14" × 2". Fairly recent and in good condition. Medium cursory writing in Malayalam. Lines 11 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary as above for cantos I-VIII.

The codex actually starts from fol. 2 from about the middle of the preamble to the commentary on verse 1. Fol. 1 is almost blank except for the following stray lines at the beginning:

हरि श्रीगणपतये नमः । अविघ्नमस्तु ।
हैरम्बं हरदुग्धाब्जिकौस्तुभं स्तुमहे महः ।
आम्नाय हरिसन्धार्यं सन्धार्यं विघ्नविघ्ने ॥

अष्टादशानां विद्यानामिष्टानां प्रभवं सताम् ।

202. XXVII. I. 57.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 213. 13" × 1½". Old but slightly injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page. Inked. Wooden board at either end.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for cantos I to VII.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 1 of the commentary on Āsvāsa VII. The remaining cantos are complete.

203. X. F. 21.

Paper. Foll. 119. Size, Foolscap quarto. Modern transcript copied on 18th December, 1915. Good cursory writing in Devanagari. Lines 15 in a page. Bound in cloth.

Incomplete.

Same commentary as above for cantos VI-VIII.

The commentary is here called Bāla-vyutpattikā. Towards the conclusion of the codex (fol. 119a) the following extra verses are found:

अष्टाध्वसी निगदितान्सप्तत्रिंशत्समचितान् ।
व्याख्यन्नवशतश्लोकान् चोक्तेनाथो यथामति ॥
विक्रमाब्दे नमोमामि रेवती सोमवासरे ।

विलेखकेष्वेव करापराधः निसर्गसिद्धो न विलोककेषु ।
यथाध्वेगेषु प्रपदो(?) परोधः सुखोपविष्टेषु कुतः स एषः ॥

The commentary should have been copied during the dark-half of the month of S'rāvaṇa on the third day which was a Monday and when the star was Revati.

The original of this transcript belongs to Ganapati Sastriar of Karassalur, Coimbatore District.

There are at least two gaps in canto VIII, one between verses 20-28 and the other between verses 70-77.

next, bearing overleaf the Telugu inscription : १० सर्ग मोदलु ९ सर्गलु. The succeeding folio starts with canto X which is copied in a different hand, so that canto IX is omitted. Fol. 42 ends with verse 84 of canto X, and in the middle of the first quarter of the next verse. Canto XI is omitted, for in the next folio canto XII begins without any further break in the middle, canto XV is concluded on fol. 61a, Fol. 61b is blank, and canto XVI begins on the next folio. There is no gap henceforward till the end of the text. The final portion of canto XVIII, and the entire portion of canto XIX are very much damaged by the ravages of insects, and a good portion of them is lost as a result.

RAGHUVANSA WITH AN ANONYMOUS COMMENTARY

रघुवंशः सव्याख्यः अज्ञातकर्तृकः

White, country-made paper. Foll. 22. 11½" × 6". Old and injured but in good condition. Good medium writing in Devanagari of the Maithili type. 11 lines in a page.

Incomplete.

The first canto of the Raghuvamśa of Kālidāsa with an anonymous commentary, styled both Subodhinī and S'isuhitaiṣiṇī.

The commentary begins (fol. 1):

श्रीगणेशाय नमः ॥

प्रणतसुरासुरभासुरकिरीटकोटिप्रमृष्टचरणाय ।

गजव(ड)नाय नमस्ते सिद्धैर्मदनाय विघ्नकदनाय ॥

यस्य लीलावशेनेदं जनः स्थितिलयं ब्रजेत् ।

निरुजितानंदगह(नां?) सर्वदेवसुरूपिणीम् ।

परां वाप्रपिणीं वन्दे सहानीलसरस्वतीम् ॥

वागर्थे इति ॥ अभिनवकाव्यारम्भे अभीष्टदेवतानां प्रणामः कार्यः । अहं कालिदासनामा कविः पार्वती-परमेश्वरी वन्दे ।

Ends (fol. 22):

इति रघुकाव्यटीकायां मुनोधिण्यां शिशुहितैपिण्यां प्रथमः सर्गः समाप्तः ॥ शुभं ॥ अस्तु ॥

The text of the Raghuvamśa is interspersed in the commentary. Many folia are perforated by insects. This commentary is different from the S'isuhitaiṣiṇī of Cāritravardhana (Weber 1548; Peterson's Report III, p. 210) and from the Subodhinī of Bhavadevamisra (Rajendralal Mitra, Notices of Sanskrit Manuscripts. VII. 141 f.)

VIII. C. 6.

White, country-made paper. Foll. 19. 11½" × 6". Old and slightly injured. Good medium Devanagari writing. 11 lines in a page.

Incomplete.

The third canto of the Raghuvamśa with a commentary, styled only Raghukāvyaṭīkā and of unknown authorship.

Begins (fol. 1):

श्रीगणेशाय नमः । राज्ञीगर्भमाधत्तेत्युक्तं । संप्रति गर्भलक्षणानि वर्णयितुं प्रस्तौति ।

Ends (fol. 19):

इति श्रीरघुकाव्यटीकायां तृतीयसर्गः समाप्तः ।

This commentary may perhaps be a continuation of that noticed above.

X. D. 25.

White, country-made paper. Foll. 22. 11½" × 6". Fairly old but in good condition. Careless writing of several hands in Devanagari. About 9 to 10 lines in a page.

Incomplete.

The ninth canto of the Raghuvamśa with a commentary of unknown name and authorship.

The commentary begins (fol. 1) :

श्रीगणेशाय नमः ॥

एकलोचनमेकार्धे सार्धलोचनमन्यतः ।

लीलार्धं नीलकण्ठार्धं महः किमपि मन्महे ॥

Ends (fol. 22a) :

इति श्रीरघुवंशमहाकाव्ये कविश्रीकालिदासकृतौ
मृगयाविहारो नाम नवमः सर्गः ॥

The MS. is not at all accurate. Numbering stops with fol. 18, and the remaining 4 folia contain no number. Several folia have their ends perforated by insects.
On the left hand corner on top of the first eighteen folia, there is the inscription रघुवं० टी०

249. XXXVI. F. 42.

RAGHUVANSA WITH THE COM-MENTARY OF JANĀRDANA

रघुवंशः सव्याख्यः जनार्दनकृतः

White, country-made paper. Foll. 87.
11" X 5". Old, worn-out and injured.
Medium writing in Devanagari of the Maithili type. Lines 12 in a page.

Incomplete.

Same work as above with the commentary of Janārdana for cantos XII-XIX.

The MS. begins with fol. 240 and concludes with fol. 365. Foll. 242, 245, 246, 249, 251, 263, 264, 266, 268, 271,
275, 280, 281, 292-302, 305, 314-316, 320, 336-338, 343, 346, 347, 353, 358 and 362 are missing. Foll. 285, 321 and 340 in particular are very severely injured. The first of these is torn almost into two, while the remaining two are torn in part.

The arrangement of the cantos is irregular; canto XIX occurs between cantos XIV and XV, while the codex begins from the middle of canto XII and ends with canto XVIII. Canto XII opens in the middle on fol. 240 and is concluded on fol. 250. The commentary on canto XIII is available only from verse 5 onwards. This portions starts on fol. 252, and the canto breaks off abruptly in the middle of the commentary on verse 76 on fol. 267. On the next available folio (269), canto XIV is started and the canto is concluded at the end of fol. 289b. Foll. 290 and 291 give the text and commentary for the first 9 verses of canto XIX. Canto XV is commenced on fol. 303a and is concluded at the end of fol. 319b. Fol. 321a opens with verse 4 of canto XVI which breaks off abruptly in the middle of the commentary on verse 75. Canto XVII starts from fol. 339a, and breaks off abruptly at the very beginning of the commentary on verse

79 on fol. 352b. From here till the end of the codex, there is the commentary for canto XVIII which is begun on fol. 354a and concluded on fol. 365a.

This highly imperfect codex seems to be about 232 years old, being copied in Samvat 1768 (=1711 A.D.) as can be understood from the following incomplete inscription written breadthwise on fol. 365b in large letters:

“स्वस्तिश्रीमन्नृपविक्रमार्कसमयातीत संवत् १७६८
वर्षे आषाढवदि र बुधक”

Traces of the hand in which this inscription is written are to be found in many places even in the body of the codex.

On the same page, but lengthwise, there is the other inscription रघुवंशटीका गोविन्ददशपुत्रस्यतृटितेयं which should inform us that the codex should originally have formed part of the Library of a गोविन्द-दशपुत्र.

The commentary has the peculiar feature of giving Gujarati explanations along with the Sanskrit commentary for the verses. The following passage which is the commentary for the last verse of canto XVIII is only typical:

राजकन्यास्तस्य यूनः श्रीभुवौ लक्ष्मीपृथिव्यौ
अधिविविदुः । सपत्न्यौ चक्रुः । राजकन्या तं ह

Canto XII concludes with the colophon (fol. 250b):

कल्याणं भूयात् ॥

Canto XIV begins (fol. 269a):

There is another MS. of this commentary in the Library of the Bombay Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society.
It is described under the number 1219 in the recent Descriptive Catalogue of the Library. This seems to contain the commentary for cantos VII to XVI and an avacūri for canto XIX. The first five cantos and canto XVIII do not seem to have any commentary. Canto VI is considered to be missing, while canto XVII has a different commentary. The colophonic verse of the commentary on canto XIII found in this codex (fol. 79b) is interesting for it gives Mahāvīra as the name of Janārdana's father :

काव्यलोलद्रघुविक्रमस्य श्रीकालिदासाद्भुतमुक्तकीर्तेः ।
श्रीमन्महावीरशरीरजन्मा त्रयोदशे भागमिदं ततान ॥

This MS. can supplement the Adyar Library MS. only in part. Aufrecht (CC.
I. 487a) mentions one MS. (B. 2. 100) which may be the same as that now available in the B. B. R. A. S. Library.
If this is so, a full MS. of Janārdana's commentary on the Raghuvamśa will have to remain for some time a mere matter of hope.

The author should be a Gujarati and seems to be a Jain as can be inferred from his father's name. But many of the citations in the commentary show that he must be a Brahmin. It is difficult to say with certainty to which community he belongs. He may perhaps be identical with the commentator of that name on the Meghadūta. For a MS. of this commentary on the Meghadūta, see Peterson's III Report, pp. 324 ff. Mr. T. M. Tripāṭhi [Tarkasaṅgraha of Ānandajñāna (Gaekwad Oriental Series, No. III), pp. vi ff.] supposes this Janārdana to be the same as Janārdana (=Ānandagiri=Ānandajñāna), the author of the Tattvāloka and the Tarkasaṅgraha; but the evidence adduced by him is insufficient to support his conjecture. Mr. P. K. Gode assigns Janārdana to the period between A.D. 1192 and A.D. 1385 [See his articles in the Calcutta Oriental Journal, (Vol. I, 1934, pp. 199-201) and in the Indian Culture (Vol. III, pp. 359 ff.).

RAGHUVAMSA WITH THE COMMENTARY OF MALLINĀTHA

रघुवंशः मल्लिनाथकृतव्याख्यासहितः

White, country-made paper. Foll. 433 (32+20+24+24+25+27+19+26+27+22+25+23+22+21+20+23+19+16+18). 11 $\frac{3}{8}$ " × 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ ". Old. Good medium Devanagari writing of the Maithilī type. 10 lines on an average in each page. Complete.

The commentary ends actually on fol. 17a of the 19th canto of the Raghuvamśa. Then, till the end of fol. 18a, we have the following lines of the scribe who speaks here about the genealogy of the family of the Raghūs. An attempt to tabulate the number of verses in each canto of the Raghuvamśa is also made, but not with success, as the figures given suffer from lack of accuracy:

Each canto being numbered separately, the enumeration of the total number of folia is not continuous. After the completion of each canto, the other side of the folio as well as the first half of the succeeding one, are left blank. A few folia are worn-out with age.

251. IX. F. 82.

Modern Paper. Foll. 8. 8" × 6½". Old but in good condition. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 32 in a page.

Almost complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for canto IV.

The commentary is missing only for the last verse.

252. XXI. E. 20.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 8. 15" × 1". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and same commentary for canto VI. On the last leaf the first twelve verses of canto VII are given.

253. XXIII. A. 5.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 32. 14½" × 1½". Fairly old and slightly damaged insect-perforated at the ends, but in good condition. Medium Telugu writing in a good hand. Lines 5 to 6 in a page.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for canto XI.

Two blank folia are attached at either end of the codex. These are also slightly injured at their corners.

254. XXIII. A. 18.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 30. 12" × 1½". Old, worm-eaten and damaged. Small Telugu writing. Lines 7 in a page.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for canto III.

Several extra leaves are found in the codex, four at the beginning and three at the end. Of the first four leaves, the first is empty and the second is scribbled all over quite carelessly. It contains the name S'ivaramasāstrulu which may be the name of the owner of the codex. On the other side of this folio there is an indistinct Telugu line. The right half of the next folio is blank; but on the other side it contains the line chandamayānām nilayya and a few stray lines from the Amarakosa. The next which appears to be the title-leaf as it bears the corrupt inscription Raghuvaṃsaṃ tṛtīyamassar-gaḥ, contains several other incoterent scribblings. On the other side of this leaf there is the verse:

जगत्प्रसूतिर्जगदेकपावनी

ब्रजोपकण्ठं तनयैरुपेयुक्ष्य ।

ज्युति समग्रां समितिर्गरीयसी

उपैति मन्त्रैरिव संहिताहुतिः ॥ and the line श्री रामाय नमः ।

The first among the three extra leaves at the end contains many scribblings. At the extreme top there is the illegible verse:

रामाश्रमाद्विगतलक्ष्मणसन्निधाना ।

सांवा पुनातु हरभूतिपवित्रिताङ्ग

वक्रं विलोक्य मदनेन विमोहितासीत ।

गंगाजलं च मदनं च कुचौ च पादौ

हरे हरेहिमकरी मकरी करे च ॥

This is followed by the line श्रीमते रामानुजायनमः. Below this are found some sentences which seem to be directions for the preparation of some Āyurvedic taila :

घृतं कुंकुमगन्धाद्यं तैलमिक्षुरसोपम् ।

लवणं गतसारस्यादार्द्रकं यालकौ च वै ॥

माषशक्तिसमप्रभं शर्करा रंगपिष्टसमप्रभा ।

On the other side of this folio as well as on both sides of the next there are some random jottings which are not quite legible. The last folio is blank.

255: XXIII. A. 38.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 4 (36-39). 14½" × 1½". Fairly recent, slightly worm-eaten and injured. In good condition. Small round hand in Telugu. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for canto VII.

The codex gives the text and commentary only for the first 15 verses of the Raghuvamśa. Verse 15 is concluded in the middle of folio 4 the rest of which is blank. These 4 folia may be part of a bigger codex. They are numbered consecutively.

256: XXIII. B. 19.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 16. 16" × 1½".

Fairly recent, but injured and worm-eaten here and there. Small cursory writing. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for canto XII.

There are two extra leaves at each end. Of the two leaves at the end, the first contains on its back the following two verses :

विद्या नाधिगता कलंकरहिता वित्तं च नैवार्जितं

शुश्रूषा च समाहितेन मनसा पित्रोर्न संपादिता ।

आलोलायतलोचना युवतयः स्वप्ने(S)पि नालिङ्गितं

लोलायच्चनलालसास्तनुभृतामित्याकलय्य द्रुतं

योगे धैर्यसमाधिसिद्धसुलभे बुद्धि विदध्वं बुधाः ॥ which occur also in the Subhāṣitaratna-bhāṣṭāgāra as VI. 225 and 186 respectively.

257: XXIII. B. 20.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 19. 15½" × 1½". Fairly recent, but worm-eaten here and there. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for canto V.

There is a fly-leaf at each end of the codex. On the right side of the fly-leaf at the end, there is the indistinct couplet :

श्रीयुक्तानपरोपरोपरोपरपरूपारूपरूपामरः ।

मुक्तोत्तरिर्भिरैर्भिरैर्भिरैर्भिरैः ॥ रामारामराम

Below this verse a diagram of a scorpion is drawn. On the left-hand corner on top of the first folio there is scribbled रघुवंशव्याख्यानं पंचमः सर्गः.

258. XXIII. B. 34.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 23. 16" × 12".
Recent and slightly damaged. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked for the most part.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for canto III.

Fol. 8b is blank, but there is no break in the text. There are 5 extra leaves in all, three at the beginning and two at the end.

रघुवंशपुस्तकं यल्लभ्यते माविको(पा?) रुद्र
रामस्वामि राशिनपुस्तकं ॥ श्रीगणेशाय नमः ॥

At the end of the codex, there is the Devanagari inscription which shows that the scribe is a Rāmasvāmi.

259. XXIV. C. 6.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 13. 13" × 2".
Old but in good condition. Cursory medium Grantha writing. Lines 9 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for cantos
I and II.

Canto I breaks off at the end of verse
18 and canto II at the end of verse 35.

260. XXV. K. 18.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 21. 13" × 1".
Old, worm-eaten and damaged. Good small Telugu writing. Lines 6 in a page.

Same text and commentary for canto
VIII.

The MS. breaks off at the end of commentary on verse 57.

262. XXVII. J. 6.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 24. 16½" × 11½".
Old, worm-eaten and very badly injured.
Good medium Telugu writing in more than one hand. Lines 5 to 6 in a page.
Inked for the most part.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for canto IX.

A few lines at the end are missing.
The MS. has no colophon; but in the left-hand corner on top of fol. 1a, there is the inscription शुभमस्तु । रघुवंश ९ मे सर्ग
सव्याख्यानम् ॥

263. XXVII. J. 7.

Same text and commentary for cantos

I and IV. On the fly-leaf at the beginning the owner's name is given as Rāma-svāmi of Ambasamudram, Tinnevely District.

264. XXVII. J. 9.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 26. $12'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$. Fairly old and worm-eaten, but in good condition. Lines 6 in a page. Small cursory Telugu writing. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for canto VI.

The manuscript is defective in that it ends in the middle of the commentary on stanza 83.

265. XXIX. A. 1.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 24. $17'' \times 1\frac{2}{3}''$. Old, insect-perforated and damaged. Minute cursory Telugu writing. Lines 7 on an average in each page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for canto IX.

The codex contains extra leaves both at the beginning as well as at the end; of the three leaves at the beginning, the first of them is permeated all over with several incoherent and undecipherable scribbles. The next two contain the text of the Kālāṃṛta of Cintalapāṭi Venkaṭayajvan for the first twelve sections.

266. XXIX. A. 3.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 29. $16\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$.

Old, injured and perforated by insects. Good medium Telugu writing. Lines 5 to 6 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same as the above.

The MS. is very badly damaged at the corners.

267. XXIX. B. 29.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. (1-71). $16\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{5}''$. Very old, worm-eaten and worn out. Good small writing in Telugu in several hands. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for cantos II-XII and XIV.

The codex which is ill-arranged starts with canto XI, and the portion of the Raghuvamśa found here ends with canto III. Neither the text nor the commentary is found in full; and the folia are not continuously numbered. Canto XI is concluded on Fol. 9b. The next folio is blank, except for the Telugu inscription: Vālu Veṅkatasīvasāstrulavāri Raghuvamśa 12 sarga, on its right side. In the succeeding folio is begun Mallinātha's gloss on canto XII, the text being excluded; and this goes on for 17 folia more, that is, till the end of fol. 27b. 15 folia thereafter contain the Saṅjīvinī on canto XIV, thus omitting canto XIII altogether. In the following 12 folia is contained the same gloss on canto XV. The right side of the next folio is blank, but over-leaf the commentary is continued from the previous folio. The commentary for this canto is not complete, for the commentary on verses 92-94 is missing. There is also some slight derangement of the folia for the folio containing the commentary on verses 95 ff. is placed after the folio which contains that for verses 110 et. seq. The next 10 folia contain the same commentary on canto VI till the end of verse 84. Four more folia that came later contain the text for canto X written in several hands. The text of canto II is concluded in the remaining folia.

There are two extra folia at the beginning of the codex and seven at the end. The first folio at the beginning contains some verses in Telugu invoking Viṣṇu and the next is blank. Of the seven at the end, the first contains some silly scribbling on both sides. In the next folio are contained the Nāndī verses found in the Rasatarāṅgiṇī of Bhānu-datta, the Vāsavadattāvivaraṇa, the Mālatīmādhava of Bhavabhūti, the Narakāsuravijaya, the Uttararāmacarita, the Mahāvīracarita of Bhavabhūti, and the Raghunāthacarita. The right side of the next contains some spurious verses which are incoherent and incomplete. The remaining folia are blank.

XXIX. M. 29.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 11 (13-23). 17½" × 13". Fairly recent and in good condition. Minute cursory Telugu writing in more than one hand. Lines 7 to 8 in a page on an average. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

• Same text and commentary for canto VII.

The codex was copied by Subrahmanya Somayāji, the eldest son of Vāvila Nṛsimhaśāstri, and was completed in the 4th ghaṭikā during the day on Monday, the 12th day during the bright fortnight of the Adhika S'rāvaṇa month of the encyclical year Rudhīrodgārī (रुधिरोग्दरि नाम संहत्सर अधिकश्रावण शु. १२ सोमवारं पगलु ४ घटियल (पेद्रुयेक्केवरकु!) वाविलनृशिहशास्त्रुलगारि ज्येष्ठपुत्रुडेन सुब्रह्मण्यसोमयाजुलुतन स्वदस्तूर्नि रघुवंश ७ सर्गं संपूर्णम्).

ANONYMOUS COMMENTARY ON THE RAGHUVANSA

रघुवंशव्याख्या अज्ञातकर्तृका

White, country-made paper. Foll. 5. 11½" × 4". Old, but in good condition. Good large Devanagari writing. Lines 15 in a page.

Incomplete.

An anonymous commentary on canto VI of the same text.

Begins:

..... वपङ्क्तिषु विद्युता रविरिव । अत्रा-

COMMENTARY ON THE RAGHUVAMSA
(DĪPIKĀ) BY KṚṢṆABHAṬṬA

रघुवंशव्याख्या (दीपिका) कृष्णभट्टकृता

White, country-made paper. Foll. 25 (6-42a). 8" X 4". Old, worn-out and tattered. Medium Devanagari writing. Lines 16-17 in a page.

Incomplete.

The Dīpikā of Kṛṣṇabhṭṭa on cantos I-IV of the Raghuvamśa.

The MS. is as highly mutilated and fragmentary as it is damaged.

Canto I begins on fol. 6a from the middle of the commentary on verse 22, and is concluded at the beginning of fol. 13b with the colophon :

इति श्रीमहोपाध्यायकृष्णभट्टविरचितायां रघुकाव्य-दीपिकायां प्रथमः सर्गः ।

Canto II immediately follows, and is concluded in the middle of fol. 23a with the colophon :

इति श्रीमहोपाध्यायकृष्णभट्टविरचितायां रघुदीपि- कायां द्वितीयः सर्गः ॥

Foll. (14-17) containing verses 3-21 of this canto are missing.

Canto III immediately succeeds the colophon of canto II on fol. 23a, and breaks off abruptly at the end of fol. 28b at the beginning of the commentary on verse 69. The commentary for the first four verses of this canto is repeated possibly out of carelessness on the part of the scribe.

Canto IV begins on fol. 33a in the middle of the commentary on verse 10, and concludes on fol. 42a thus :

इति श्रीमहोपाध्यायश्रीकृष्णभट्टविरचितायां रघुका- व्यदीपिकायां दिग्विजयो नामः चतुर्थः सर्गः । श्री ॥
छ । छ । श्री । छ । श्री । सरस्वत्यै नमः श्री । छ ।

Foll. 29-32, 34-36 and 38-40, containing the commentary for verses 1-10, 16-43 and 52-77 of this canto, are missing.

R. G. Bhandarkar's Report on the Search for Sanskrit MSS. in the Bombay Presidency mentions a MS. of this commentary. This is recorded by Aufrecht (CC. II. 113b) also. Mr. P. K. Gode assigns the commentator, Kṛṣṇabhṭṭa, to the period between A.D. 1111 and 1385 (See his article Kṛṣṇabhṭṭa's commentary on the Raghuvamśa and its chronological limits in the Calcutta Oriental Journal, Vol. I, pp. 266 ff.)

XLI. A. 4.

COMMENTARY ON THE RAGHUVAMŚA
(VĪŚEṢĀRTHABODHIKĀ) BY GUṆAVI-NAYAGAṆI

रघुवंशव्याख्या (विशेषार्थबोधिका) गुणविनयगणि- कृता

White, country-made paper. Foll. 169 (31-189); 10" X 4½". Old, worn-out insect perforated and injured. Medium writing in Devanagari of the Maithili type. Lines 15 in a page. Composed in A.D. 1589.

Incomplete.

The Vīṣeṣārthabodhikā alias the Raghuvṛtti or the Rāghavīvṛtti, a commentary on the Raghuvamśa, by Guṇavinayagaṇi, pupil of Jayasomagaṇi, chief among the pupils of Pramodamānikyagaṇi, for Cantos III-XIX, excepting Canto IV.

The MS. begins on fol. 31a in the middle of the commentary on verse 1 of canto III which, however, breaks off abruptly on fol. 39b at the beginning of the commentary on verse 70. Eleven folia thereafter are missing. Fol. 51a starts canto V in the middle of verse 3. This canto is concluded at about the end of fol. 60b. Canto VI begins on the remaining portion of the same folio and concludes almost at the end of fol. 71b on which canto VII is also begun. This canto is concluded in the middle of fol. 80a. Canto VIII is then commenced on this folio, and concluded at the tail end of fol. 92b. This folio contains also about a line of the commentary on canto IX which is also begun on it. Canto IX concludes on fol. 104b which begins canto X. This canto concludes at the very beginning fol. 113a. On the same folio canto XI begins and concludes at about the middle portion of fol. 122b. The remaining part of this folio accommodates canto XII, and this canto is concluded on fol. 132a. On the same folio commences canto XIII and concludes on fol. 141a. Foll. 141b—150b contain canto XIV. Canto XV begins on fol. 150b and actually concludes on fol. 158b, though about a line of its colophon extends to fol. 159a also. This folio starts canto XVI which is concluded at about the middle of fol. 168a. Canto XVII begins on the remaining portion of this folio and concludes in the middle of fol. 175b. Canto XVIII is begun immediately after on fol. 175b and concluded almost at the end of fol. 181a which allows space for beginning canto XIX also. This canto is concluded on fol. 188b; and the remaining portion of this folio as well as fol. 189a, which is the last contain the concluding verses of the commentary.

There are traces of correction by another hand on top of fol. 70a. The commentary is called Raghuvṛtti at the left-hand corner on top of each folio. It is called Vīṣeṣārthabodhikā also in the colophon at the end of each canto which runs:

इति श्रीमद्बृहत्वरतरंगछीयश्रीवाचनाचार्यश्रीप्रमो- दमणिक्यमणिशिष्यश्रीजयसोममणिसिद्धिष्यश्रीगुणविन-यमणिकृतायां विशेषार्थबोधिकायां श्रीरघुवृत्तौ संगे ॥

The colophon of canto XIX is slightly different from the above which is the usual way in which the other cantos end. This states that Jayasomagaṇi was the chief pupil of Pramodamānikyagaṇi and calls the commentary Raghuvamśavṛtti. It runs as follows (fol. 188b):

इति श्रीमद्बृहत्खरतरगल्लीयवाचनाचार्यश्रीप्रमोदमा- णिक्यगणिशिष्यसंख्यावंन्मुख्यश्रीजयमोमगणितच्छिष्य
श्रीगुणविनयगणिकृतायां विशेषार्थबोधिकाख्यायां श्री- गुवंशवृत्तावेकोनविंशः सर्गः ॥

The following verses follow the colophon of the commentary on canto XIX and conclude the codex :

Of these twenty-two colophonic verses which conclude the commentary, verse 20 is a chronogram and states that the commentary was composed in Samvat 1646 (= A.D. 1589) in Vikramanagara.

There is a MS. of this commentary in Berlin (Weber 1547).

It is incomplete and contains the commentary only for the first nine cantos. A complete MS. of the commentary is noticed under the number 3060 by Rajendralal Mitra (Notices of Sanskrit Manuscripts, Vol. IX, p. 152 f.).

COMMENTARY ON THE RAGHUVAMSA
(PADĀRTHADĪPIKĀ) BY NĀRĀYAṆA

रघुवंशव्याख्या (पदार्थदीपिका) नारायणकृता

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 50. (1-50).
15" X 1½". Fairly recent and in good condition. Fine small writing in Mala-yalam. Lines 10 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

The Padārthadīpikā of Nārāyaṇa, pupil of S'ri Kṛṣṇa, on the Raghuvamśa of Kālidāsa for cantos I-V.

The commentary is available in full only for cantos I, III and IV. Canto II breaks off abruptly at the end of verse 29.
So does the codex at the close of the commentary on verse 1 of canto V.

Canto I begins :

A very imperfect MS. of this commentary, consisting only of 4 cantos, is described in the Descriptive Catalogue of the India Office Library, London, under the number 6994. The MS. (R. No. 1854) of the commentary in the Govt. Oriental MSS. Library, Madras, contains only cantos I-V. The MS. (No. 1507) in the Travancore University MSS. Library gives the complete commentary. The commentary for cantos I-VI has been published by the Mangalodayam Co., Ltd., Trichur. For details concerning the author and his other works, see above
(No. 42).

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 78. Size, 11½" × 1½". Fairly old but in good condition. Good writing in Grantha in a medium hand. Lines 9-11 in a page.
Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same commentary as above for cantos
I, II, V and VI.

The folia are numbered separately for each canto, except in the case of cantos
V and VI which are numbered consecutively. The first 24 folia contain canto I; and the next 23 folia which are numbered separately give the commentary for canto II. In the 30 folia which follow we have the commentary for cantos
V and VI.

COMMENTARY ON THE RAGHUVAMSA
(SAṆJIVINĪ) BY MALLINĀTHA

रघुवंशव्याख्या (सञ्जीविनी) महिनाथकृता

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 370. 16" × 1½".
Fairly old and Injured. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 6 in a page.

Inked for the most part, except foll. 36 and 37.

Incomplete.

The Sanjivini of Mallinātha on cantos
I-III; VI-VIII and X-XIX.

Pagination of the folia is not continuous;
the first three cantos have each individual numbering, but from cantos VI to VIII the numbering is consecutive. Irregularity is again revived in numbering the remaining folia. At the close of a canto, one or more blank leaves are often attached.
The edges of several folia are either eaten off by worms or very badly injured on account of some other kind of damage.

On an extra leaf at the end are written several stray religious verses portions of which are lost by the perforation of worms.

Same commentary for canto V.

The MS. breaks off abruptly at the end of commentary on verse 72.

283. XXVII. J. 5.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 40. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and damaged. Cursory medium Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for cantos I and III.

The MS. breaks off at the end of commentary on verse 32. Canto I is complete.

284: XXVII. J. 11.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 194. $15'' \times 1\frac{1}{8}''$. Very old, worn-out and extremely damaged. Good small writing in Telugu in more than one hand. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for cantos IV to XIX.

The MS. breaks off abruptly in the middle of the commentary on XIX. 27. Only half the portion is available of the last folio which contains a portion of the commentary on verse 28. The folia are not only very much worn-out, but also their corners are so thoroughly eaten off very often that portions of the text are lost as a result.

285. XXXVI. F. 3.

White, country-made paper. Foll. 8. $9\frac{1}{8}'' \times 4''$. Fairly old and worm-eaten. Small cursory Devanagari writing. Lines 13 in a page.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for canto XVI.

This codex seems to be part of a bigger one, and is also defective in that it stops abruptly at the middle of the commentary on verse 80. Whole lines are lost as a result of the ravages of worms.

286. XXXVI. F. 4.

White, country-made paper. Foll. 22. $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 4''$. Old, worn-out and injured. Small cursory writing in Devanagari in more than one hand. Lines 11 in a page on an average.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for cantos VIII to X, XII to XIV.

The codex opens in the middle of the commentary on verse 66 of canto VIII and concludes almost at the end of the commentary on verse 84 of canto XIV. It is not at all complete and has the look of a compilation of portions of more than one codex. Folia 13-16 seem to be written in a hand clearly different from that in which the rest of the codex is written.

The commentary is available only for the following portions of the Raghuvamśa: Canto VIII. 66-83; IX. 69 to X. 79; XII. 31 to 68; XIII. 16-32; XIV. 47-51; 64-84.

The name of the scribe or the date of copying is not given.

COMMENTARY ON THE RAGHUVAMŚA
(PAÑJIKĀ) BY VALLABHA

रघुवंशव्याख्या (पञ्जिका) बलभक्त

White, country-made paper. Foll. 29, 12" x 3½." Old, worn out, and very badly injured at corners. Medium Devanagari writing, of the Maithilī type. Lines 8-13 in a page.

Incomplete.

The Raghupañjikā (Raghuvamśavarṇanapañjikā) of Vallabha, son of Ānandadeva, on cantos II-V of the Raghuvamśa.

Canto II begins (fol. 1b):

अथ ओ नमो विनायकाय । अथ प्रजेयादि ।

This folio gives the commentary till the end of verse 7 and breaks off at the beginning of the commentary on verse 8. Fol. 2a begins at the conclusion of the commentary on verse 17, so that the folia containing the commentary for the intervening verses are missing. There is no further break till the end of the canto which concludes (fol. 7b):

इत्यानन्ददेवायनिबल्लभविरचितायां रघुवंशवर्णन-पञ्जिकायां द्वितीयः सर्गः समाप्तः ॥

Canto III immediately follows this colophon on fol. 7b and concludes at about the end of fol. 16a:

इत्यानन्ददेवायनिबल्लभविरचितायां रघुव्यवहरण-टीकायां तृतीयः सर्गः समाप्तः ॥

Canto IV succeeds immediately on the same folio, and breaks off abruptly on fol. 25b almost at the end of the commentary on verse 84.

The remaining 4 folia contain the commentary for canto V. Fol. 26a begins the commentary on verse 42, and the canto is completed on fol. 29b:

आनन्ददेवायनिबल्लभविरचितायां रघुपञ्जिकायां
पञ्चमः सर्गः ॥

The damage to the folia is chiefly due to wear with age. At the corners of some of them marks of insect-perforation are also visible. The top-corners of some folia contain notes obviously from the student who used the codex for study. The folia bear several wrong marks of pagination.

The following are the citations in the commentary:

Canto XI breaks off abruptly at the end of fol. 55b in the middle of verse 81. Five folia thereafter containing canto XII and the first 4 verses of canto XIII are missing. Fol. 22 is wrongly numbered 21 and the mistake is not corrected till fol. 75 which however bears the right number.

The text is given in larger type in the centre of the codex, and the commentary is given on both the sides. Here and there several lines are written in the margin which are usually portions left out in the act of copying.

The codex gives certain Varietas Lectionæ in the text of the Raghuvamśa as compared with the Nirnayāsagar Press Edition of it. It is quite probable that our commentator is identical with his namesake to whom we owe the Naiṣadhiyapraṇāsa on the Naiṣadha of Śrī-harṣa. The terminus ad quem for the date of the commentary must be at least A.D. 1580. For fuller details, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, December 1943, pp. 272 ff.

XXXV. B. 13.

COMMENTARY ON THE RAGHUVAMŚA
(ARTHĀLĀPANIKĀ) BY SAMAYA-SUNDARA

रघुवंशव्याख्या (अर्थालापनिका) समयसुन्दरकृता

Rough, country-made white paper. Foll. 36. 11" X 6". Fairly recent, slightly insect-perforated and in good condition. Medium Devanagari writing of the Maithilī type in more than one hand. Lines 11-12 in a page. Well-margined at both ends by three lines in red ink.

Complete for the portion.

The Arthālāpanikā of Samayasūndaro-pādhyāya on cantos I and II of the Raghuvamśa.

The text also is given along with the commentary for canto I, while only the commentary is available for canto II.

Canto I begins :

श्रीगणेशायनमः । अथ रघुवंश सटीक लिख्यते ।

Ends (fol. 24a) :

इति श्रीरघुवंशे महाकाव्ये वसिष्ठाश्रमो नाम प्रथमः
सर्गः ।

Canto II begins on fol. 24b, and concludes (fol. 36a) :

इति श्रीरघुवंशे महाकाव्ये द्वितीयसर्गे श्रीसमयसुन्दरोपाध्यायविरचिताऽर्थालापनिकावृत्तिः समाप्ता ॥

Fol. 32b is blank. Numbering of the folia is irregular, and sometimes even incorrect. The first 26 folia are numbered consecutively, and the rest have a separate number. Foll. 33-36 are not at all numbered. Foll. 21 and 22 are wrongly numbered 22 and 23 respectively.

The codex seems to have been copied by more than one hand, the first 26 folia by one and the remaining by another.

There is a MS. (Stein 1384) of this commentary in the Raghunātha Temple Library of His Highness the Maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir. This contains the commentary for canto II only. No complete MS. of the commentary seems to be as yet available.

Samayasundaropādhyāya alias Samaya-sundaragaṇi seems to have been a pupil of Sakalacandra, who was a pupil of Jinacandra. The name of his own pupil is given as Harṣanandana, author of a Ṛṣi-maṇḍalaṭīkā (Weber 1974). Sāmaya-sundara seems to have commented also on the Kalpasaṭra of Bhadrabāhu (Keith 7471-72), the Dasavaikālika (Keith 7503), the Vāgbhaṭālaṅkāra (CC. II. 132a; 166b) and the Vṛttaratnākara (CC. I. 597b). The Gāthāsahasrī and the Viśaṅkavādasataka are two of his independent compositions in Prakrit. He should have lived in the first quarter of the 17th century. For fuller details regarding the author and his works, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, May 1943, pp. 123 ff.

XXXVI, F. 1.

COMMENTARY ON THE RAGHUVANŚA
(DARPAṆA) BY HEMĀDRI

रघुवंशव्याख्यानं (दर्पणः) हेमाद्रिकृतम्

White, country-made paper. Foll. 119 (42b—193). 8" x 4½". Old, worn-out and tattered. Medium Devanagari writing. Lines 14-18 in a page.

Incomplete.

The Darpaṇa of Bhaṭṭa Hemādri, son of Isvara Sūri, on the Raghuvamśa for cantos V-XVIII.

The commentary is very fragmentary. The codex is also highly deficient, the surface of several of its folia being almost effaced. The corners of several folia are strewn with addenda et corrigenda. The numbering is also not regular and correct.

Canto V begins on fol. 42b and ends at the beginning of fol. 50b with the colophon:

इति श्रीमदीश्वरसूरिसूनुमहोद्देमाद्रिकृते रघुवंशदर्पणे
स्वयंवराभिगमनो नाम पञ्चमः सर्गः ।

Canto VI which immediately follows ends at the very commencement of fol. 63b with the colophon:

इति श्रीमदीश्वरसूरिसूनु राजवर्णनो- नाम षष्ठः सर्गः ।

Fol. 56 which should have contained the commentary for verses 32-38 is missing.

Canto VII succeeds immediately and concludes at the middle of fol. 72a with the colophon:

इति श्रीमदीश्वरसूरि स्वयंवरो नाम सप्तमः सर्गः ।

Canto VIII follows the colophon and concludes at the commencement of fol. 86a with the colophon:

इति श्रीमदीश्वरसूरि नामाष्टमः सर्गः ।

Fol. 73 which should have contained the commentary for verses 4-13 is missing.

Canto IX which is commenced immediately, breaks off abruptly in the middle of the commentary on verse 77 at the end of fol. 98b.

Four folia thereafter are missing. Fol. 103a starts from about the end of verse 33 of canto X which concludes at the end of fol. 108a with the usual colophon:

इति दशमः सर्गः ।

Fol. 104 containing commentary for verses 44-54 is missing. Canto XI is commenced immediately; but this breaks off abruptly at the end of fol. 118b in the middle of verse 85. Foll. 109, 110 and 112 are missing. After fol. 118, 16 more folia which should have contained the commentary for the rest of canto XI and for the greater portion of canto XII are missing. On fol. 135a begins the commentary for verse 102 of canto XII which is concluded overleaf with the usual colophon:

इति द्वादशः सर्गः ।

Canto XIII immediately follows and breaks off abruptly on fol. 144b in the middle of verse 68. Four folia thereafter are missing. Fol. 149a starts with the final portion of the commentary on verse 26 of canto XIV which breaks off also abruptly in the midst of verse 68 at the end of fol. 153b. Four folia thence are again missing. Fol. 158a opens in the middle of verse 10 of canto XV which is concluded at the opening of fol. 167a with the usual colophon whose latter-half is eaten away by insects. From the remaining portion of this folio till about the end of fol. 178a, there is the commentary for canto XVI which concludes:

इति कुशराज्यवर्णनो नाम षोडशः सर्गः ।

The rest of fol. 178a till fol. 187a give the commentary for canto XVII which concludes with the usual colophon:

इति अतिथिराज्यस्थितिवर्णनं नाम सप्तदशः सर्गः ।

Canto XVIII starts on fol. 187b and breaks off at the end of the codex at the beginning of the commentary on verse 50.

For other MSS. of this commentary, see Aufrecht, Catalogus Catalogorum, I: 487a, 768b; II. 114a. The Govt. Oriental MSS. Library has also one MS. (R. 3766) of this commentary. The Berlin MS. (Weber 1548) deserves special mention in this context, for its colophon for canto XVIII which runs इति महिनाथसूरिसुनुभट्ट-हेमाद्रिकृते रघुवंशदर्पणे makes Hemādri son of Mallinātha. The other colophons in the same MS. say that Hemādri is the son of Īśvarasūri.

XXXVI. F. 2.

White, country-made paper. Foll. 74 (Foll. 24 to 123 + 22). 8" × 4½". Old and worn-out, Medium Devanagari writing of the Maithilī type. Lines 15-17 in a page. Well-margined at both ends. Copied in A.D. 1553.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for cantos III, V-XI, XV, XVI, XVIII and XIX.

The codex is available only from fol. 24 which opens with the final portion of the commentary on verse 6 of canto III which breaks off at the end of fol. 26b in the middle of its 29th verse. Fol. 25 is missing. So are 16 folia (foll. 27-42) thereafter. Fol. 43a which is the next available, opens in the middle of the commentary on verse 4 of canto V which breaks off on fol. 50b at the commencement of verse 53. Fol. 49 is missing in the middle, as are foll. 51-55 thereafter. Foll. 56a to 66b give the commentary for verses 32-77 of canto VI which breaks off at the end of fol. 66b. Foll. 57 to 64 are missing in the middle, as are foll. 67-69 after this folio.

Canto VII opens in the middle of verse 12 on fol. 70a, and is concluded on fol. 76b with the colophon:

इति श्रीमदीश्वरसूरिसूनुमहर्षेमादिकृते रघुवंशदर्पणे
स्वयंवरो नाम सप्तमः सर्गः ।

Foll. 72-73 are missing.

Canto VIII starts immediately on fol. 76b and concludes on fol. 88b with the same colophon:

इति श्रीमदीश्वरसूरि नामाष्टमः सर्गः ।

Canto IX which is commenced on the remaining portion of the same folio, concludes in the middle of fol. 100b:

इति . . . मृगयाविहारो नाम नवमः सर्गः ।

Canto X follows immediately in the remaining part of fol. 100b, but breaks off at the end of fol. 104b at the close of verse 43. Foll. 105-116 are missing. Fol. 117a opens in the middle of verse 34 of canto XI. At the end of fol. 123b, the canto abruptly breaks off in the middle of verse 91. Several folia are missing thereafter. The next available folio opens at about the end of the commentary on verse 3 of canto XV which is concluded at about the end of the 11th folio thereafter. The remaining portion of this folio contains the first two verses and a portion of the third of canto XVI. A number of folia hereafter are again missing. The three succeeding folia give the commentary on verses 37 to 55 of canto XVIII which concludes at about the end of the third of the folia : इत्यष्टादशः सर्गः ।

Canto XIX which closely follows this colophon, is concluded in the middle of the 8th folio thereafter which concludes the codex. Overleaf this last folio is the date of transcription given by the colophon of the scribe :

इति श्रीरघुवंशमहाकाव्ये श्रीकालिदासकृतौ एकोन-
विंशः सर्गः समाप्तः । शुभं भवतु । संवत् १६१०

छ । छ ॥

The codex was accordingly copied by Vinayaga on Sunday, the 10th day of the bright-half of the month Asvinī in Sāṃvat 1610 (=A. D. 1553).

The codex is highly imperfect, and the numbering of the folia is not regular. The last 22 folia are not at all-numbered. They may perhaps be part of another codex. The present codex is sufficiently old as is evident from most of its folia which are too worn out and nearly effaced. Yet, it cannot be as old as the date of transcription at the end would make it. This is most likely a copy of another earlier transcript of the work which was copied in A. D. 1553, and the copyist might have reproduced the date of transcription also of the codex which was his original. Whatever be the case, this date gives the terminus ad quem of the date of the author who cannot have hence lived after A. D. 1500. The province to which the author belongs is doubtful. For more details regarding the author and the commentary, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, October 1943, p. 215 f.

S'ISUPĀLAVADHA OF MĀGHA

शिशुपालवधः माघकृतः

Palmyra leaves. Fol. 53. 18" X 1½".
 Old, worm-eaten and slightly injured. In good condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 6 to 8 in a page. Inked. Incomplete.

The text for cantos I to XII of the poem which, in twenty cantos, narrates the Epic story of the death of S'isupāla at the hands of S'ri Kṛṣṇa.

The text for the first two cantos seems to be part of a different codex, with the result that the numbering of the folia is not consecutive. At the end of fol. 12a, canto II concludes with the wrong colophon : इति श्रीपदवाक्यप्रमाणपारावारधुरीणश्री महोपाध्यायकोलाचलमल्लिनाथविरचिते वणिङ्गमावकृते शिशुपालवधे द्वितीयः सर्गः ; while only the text of canto II is given, this colophon speaks of Mallinātha's commentary on the canto which is absent. Fol. 12b is blank and fol. 13a begins canto III. Without any break, the text continues till the end of canto IX. On fol. 44a, canto X stops abruptly with verse 84 thereby omitting 7 more stanzas which would complete the canto. Canto XI is commenced on Fol.

45 and the codex is complete for the rest of the portion.

There is one blank leaf at the beginning and one at the end of the codex.

305. XX. K. 40.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 3 (13—15). $16\frac{1}{2}'' \times 11\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured. Big careless Telugu writing. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for canto IV.

The text ends abruptly in the middle of fol. 15a at the end of verse उच्चारणतोऽयं which is here numbered 17. This verse is No. 18 in the Nirṇayasagar Press Edition of the S'isupālavadha, whose 17th verse दृष्टोऽपि शैलः is omitted by the present codex.

As a result of the perforation of insects, the beginnings of several verses in the codex are illegible. The name of the scribe is not stated.

306. XXIII. A. 17.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 20 (60-79). $17'' \times 11\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly recent, worm-eaten and injured, but in tolerable condition. Medium careless writing in Telugu. Lines 5-7 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos VII-X.

Owing to irregular arrangement of the folia, canto VIII occurs first, next a few verses in canto VII, and finally canto IX. Canto VIII is concluded on fol. 67a; fol. 67b contains only the first 3 stanzas of canto VII, the portion stopping abruptly. The next seven folia (68-74) contain the full text of canto IX. Fol. 75 and 76 contain the first 33 verses of canto X; fol. (77-79) resume canto VII again. Fol. 77a starts with verse 41 of canto VII, and on fol. 79b the canto is concluded.

The codex thus seems to be a hotch-potch of Māgha's work. Several letters are eaten away by worms. The name of the scribe is not mentioned.

307. XXIII. A. 39.

Palmyra Leaves: Foll. 51. $16\frac{1}{2}'' \times 11\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly recent, slightly worm-eaten and in good condition. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 5-6 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos II, III, IV and VI.

The arrangement of the cantos is irregular, canto IV occurring before canto III. Commentary is available only for canto II and that too only for a portion of it. Only the text of the other cantos is given. Also canto II has its own folio-numbers, as compared with the remaining three cantos which are numbered consecutively. Probably the two are parts of different codices. The first 31 folia contain canto II, the commentary on which is available only till the end of verse 115, only the text of verse 116 being given. The next six folia (fol. 32—38a) contain the text only of canto IV. The text of canto III begins on fol. 38b and is concluded on fol. 44b. The remaining 6 folia give the text of canto VI.

308. XXIII. I. 12. Palmyra leaves Foll. 8. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$. Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Good large Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Uninked.
Complete.
Same text for canto III.
There is no colophon at the end.
309. XXV. A. 59. Palmyra leaves. Foll. 8. $15\frac{3}{4}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Cursory medium Grantha writing. Lines 5 on an average. Partly inked.
Incomplete.
Same text for canto II.
The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 117.
310. XXV. C. 42. Palmyra leaves. Foll. 8. $17'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 10 in a page. Inked.
Complete.
Same text for cantos IV and VI.
311. XXVI. C. 3. Palmyra leaves. Foll. 10. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.
Complete for the portion.
Same text for canto III.
At the end (fol. 10b), the owner is given as Koratūr Srinivasa Iyengar.
312. XXVI. F. 19. Palmyra leaves. Foll. 24. $14'' \times 1\frac{3}{4}''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 4 in a page. Inked.
Incomplete.
Same text for cantos I and VIII.
The first six verses of canto I are missing. Canto VIII is complete.
313. XXVI. F. 47. Palmyra leaves. Foll. 7. $13\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and damaged. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Uninked.
Complete.
Same text for canto IV.
On the fly-leaf at the beginning Sudar-sana is given as the original owner of the MS.
314. XXVI. G. 25. Palmyra leaves. Foll. 8. $14'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and badly damaged. Good medium grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.
Complete for the portion.
Same text for canto V.
315. XXVII. F. 10. Palmyra leaves. Foll. 24. $15'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Mostly inked.
Complete for the portion.
Same text for cantos I, IV and V.

The colophons of all these three cantos uniformly run :

इति श्रीवणिष्ठावकृतौ शिशुपालवधे सर्गः ।

Viñjimūr Venugopālācāryar, and the scribe S'rīraṅgam Tirumalai Nallān Cakravartī from the fly-leaf at the beginning.

316. XXVII. F. 12.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 10. $13\frac{1}{2} \times 1\frac{1}{2}$ ". Old, worm eaten and badly injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Uninked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text for canto II.

The owners of the codex are given as Naḍādūr Varadācārya and Rāmānujācārya, one name at one end.

317. XXVII. F. 13.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 15. $17\frac{1}{2} \times 1$ ". Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Partly inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos XVIII and XX.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 65 of canto XVIII. Canto XX is complete.

318. XXVII. F. 15.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 12. 12×1 ". Old, worm-eaten and slightly injured. Cursory medium Grantha writing. Lines 4 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text for canto V.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 65:

The original owner appears to be

319. XXVII. F. 16.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 14. $16\frac{1}{2} \times 1\frac{1}{2}$ ". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text for cantos IV and VII.

320. XXVII. F. 17.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 41. $16 \times 1\frac{3}{4}$ ". Old, badly injured and highly insect-perforated. In tolerable condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 8 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Text of the same work as above for cantos I-IX.

Insect-bite, which is intense, is responsible for the loss of considerable portions of the text. So also, many of these are worn out with age, and some of these are almost cut in the middle. There are two extra leaves at the end of the codex.

The scribe is undoubtedly an Āndhra as can be inferred from the Telugu inscription found at the left-hand corner of each folio which begins a new sarga. Fol. 10a, which begins canto III, has the inscription मूढो सर्ग on top of its left-hand corner. Similarly, Foll. 19a, 23b, have आयिदो सर्ग and आरो सर्ग inscribed on top of their left-hand corners.

321. XXVII. F. 18.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 36. 14" × 1".
Old, worm-eaten and damaged. Good large Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same text for cantos I, III, IV, VI and XIII.

Canto XIII has wrongly the colophon of its commentary.

From the fly-leaf at the beginning the original owner is known as Desikācārya.

322. XXVII. F. 19.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 23. 16" × 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ ".
Fairly recent, slightly worm-eaten but in good condition. Large and small writing in Telugu in different hands.
Lines 4-6 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text for cantos I, III & IV.

The folia are not numbered at all. The leaves are also peculiarly arranged so that canto IV occurs first, then canto I and lastly canto III. There are two extra leaves at the end. At a corner on both sides of the first of these, the first verse of canto I, श्रियः पतिः etc., is inscribed. At the left-hand corner on one side of this folio there is the inscription, शुभमस्तु । प्रथम-स्सर्गः । which shows that the scribe originally started his copying on this folio. The other leaf is worn-out and the scribblings are almost effaced.

323. XXVII. F. 20.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 44. 15 $\frac{1}{2}$ × 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ ".

Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Good small writing, both Grantha and Telugu.
Lines 9 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text for cantos I, III, IV to VII,
IX to XIV.

All the cantos are written both in Grantha and Telugu.

324. XXVII. F. 21.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 12. 16 $\frac{1}{2}$ " × 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ ".
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 9 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text for cantos XVIII to XX.

325. XXVII. F. 22.

Palmyra-leaves. Foll. 3. 13 $\frac{1}{2}$ " × 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ ".
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 9 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text for canto VII.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse
43 of canto VII.

326. XXVII. F. 23.

Palmyra-leaves. Foll. 3. 13 $\frac{1}{2}$ " × 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ ".
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 9 in a page. Partly inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for canto I.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 47.

327. — XXVII. F. 24.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 6. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Old, worm-eaten but slightly injured.
Good medium Grantha writing. Lines
9 in a page. Uninked.

Complete.

Same text for canto VI.

The colophon wrongly calls this the commentary of Mallinātha on the same canto.

328. XXVII. F. 25.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 49. $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{3}{4}''$.
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Cursory
page. Inked.

Complete.

Same text for cantos I to VII.

The MS. seems to have been copied, from the evidence at the end of canto I,
by Kavīśvara Nāgesvara and his son, Subrahmaṇya. The original owner is given as Subbaṇṇa (Subrahmaṇya) in the following verse which follows the names of the scribes :

अवनीसुमनश्चेष्टः सुव्रज्जगत्प्रमनीषिणः ।

पुस्तकं यस्तस्करति ब्रजेतस यममन्दिरम् ॥

The names of the scribes is given at the end of each of the other cantos also.

The colophons of all the cantos uniformly run :

इति श्रीवणिङ्माधकृतौ शिशुपालवधे . . . सर्गः ॥

329. XXVII. F. 26.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 5. $17'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Cur-sory medium Grantha writing. Lines 6

in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text for canto VIII.

The first 19 verses of the canto are missing.

330. XXVII. F. 28.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 13. $14\frac{3}{4}'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$.
Old, but slightly injured. Good large Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page.
Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos VIII and IX.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 26 of canto IX. Canto VIII has no colophon at the end.

331. XXVII. F. 29.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 3. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Cursory
page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text for canto IV.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse
37. On the fly-leaf at the beginning the owner is given as Narasimha, son of Ayyā Veṅkaṭācārya, Caturvedasatakṛt, of Nāvalpākam.

332. XXVII. F. 31.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 11. $16'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Fairly recent, slightly insect-perforated, but in good condition. Large and small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 3 to 5 in a page. Inked, except for fol. 11b.

Complete for the portion.
Same text for canto III.

large Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page.
Partly inked.

Complete.

Same text for cantos II to IV.

333. XXVII. F. 34.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 6. $14'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Fairly recent, but highly insect-perforated and damaged. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for canto VII.

The codex abruptly breaks off in the middle of verse 45 at the end fol. 6b.
Foll. 3 and 4 seem to be parts of another codex, for they contain the commentary of Mallinātha also for the verses in them.
Fol. 2 is cut in the middle.

Insect-perforation has heavily damaged the codex.

334. XXVII. F. 37.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 59. $17'' \times 1''$.
Old, worm-eaten and badly injured.
Good small Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Partly inked.

Complete for the portion available.

Same text for cantos I, IV, V to IX, XI-XII.

On the fly-leaf at the beginning the owner is given as Ayyādikṣitar. This is followed by the verse :

पक्षितीर्थे पश्चिमायां वीथ्यौ दक्षिणतः स्थितः ।

मुक्ताश्रुयचलस्तस्य पुत्रः काव्यं पठयसौ ॥

335. XXVII. F. 40.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 19. $13\frac{1}{4}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good

336. XXVII. F. 41.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 6. $15'' \times 1''$.
Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Cur-sory medium Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for canto V.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 45.

337. XXVII. F. 42.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 5. $16'' \times 1''$.
Old, slightly injured, but in good condition. Good medium Grantha writing.
Lines 5 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text for canto I.

The MS. breaks off abruptly in the middle of verse 36.

338. XXVII. F. 43.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 12. $13\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos III, VII and VIII.

Canto III contains verses 1 to 71, canto
VII from verse 36 till its end, and canto VIII verses 1 to 40. The owner is given at the fly-leaf at the beginning as Sītārāman.

339.

XXVII. F. 44.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 15. $14'' \times \frac{3}{4}''$.
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Cursory large Grantha writing. Lines 4 in a page.
Inked.

Complete.

Same text for canto II.

The owner's name is given in the fly-leaf at the beginning as Visvesvara. The scribe is Visvanātha as is evident from the following verse at the end :

श्रीमाधकविराजेन माधकाव्ये विनिर्मिते ।
सर्गद्वितीयो लिखितः विश्वनाथविपश्चिता ॥
गुरुशुश्रूषया विद्या पुष्कलेन धनेन वा ।
अथवा विद्याया विद्या चतुर्थं नोपलभ्यते ॥

340.

XXVII. F. 45.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 11. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1''$.
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 4 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same text for canto III.

341.

XXVII. F. 47.

Palmyra Leaves. Foll. 22. $17\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Fairly recent, worm-eaten and injured.
In good condition. Cursory Telugu writing of various sizes. Lines 4-5 in a page. Inked, except for the final portion of fol. 22b.

Complete for the portion.

Same text for cantos IV, VIII and IX.

Cantos VIII and IX occur first, and the folia containing these are marked consecutively. Canto IV comes only at the end and bears different pagination of the folia. Perhaps this forms part of a different codex. Canto IX ends on fol. 14b, but canto IV is commenced only on fol. 16a. Fol. 15 which intervenes contains numerous incoherent scribblings in Telugu as well as Grantha characters out of which the following verses can be deciphered :

गुरवे सर्वलोकानां मिषजे भवरोगिणाम् ।
निघये सर्वविद्यानां श्रीदक्षिणामूर्तये नमः ॥
शुक्लांबरधरं विष्णुं शशिवर्णं चतुर्भुजम् ।
प्रसन्नवदनं ध्यायेत्सर्वविघ्नोपशान्तये ॥
न(ग)ध्रुवागर्भिणिनामधेयं मनुप्रयुक्तं(भर)पुंयुतं च ।
तिथिप्रयुक्तं नवभागशेषं समे च कन्या विषमे कुमारः ॥

The next 7 folia contain canto IV.
This seems to have been copied by a Visvanātha, as can be seen from the following verse which comes immediately after the conclusion of the canto :

श्रीमाधकविराजेन माधकाव्ये विनिर्मिते ।
सर्गश्चतुर्थः लिखितः विश्वनाथविपश्चिता ॥

After this scribal colophon, the following verses also are inscribed in the remaining portion of fol. 22b :

इन्दीवरेण नयनं सुखमंबुजेन
कुन्देन दन्तमधरं नवपल्लवेन ।
अङ्गानि चम्पकदलेन विधाय वेधाः
कान्ते कथं नु कृतवानुपलेन चेतः ॥
यामि न यामीति धवे वदति पुरः स कान्तायाः ।
दक्षितानि पुरो बलान्यन्यपराणि तथैव दक्षितानि ॥
यूपाय वाभ्यां शुचिशुक्रमध्ये
आतानतप्ता इव भूपसंघाः ।

भीष्मस्य बाणच्युतशस्त्रसंवेः

पार्थस्य सेनास्तनुतामवापुः ॥

नदीजलं केशव नारिकेतु-

नैगाह्वयो नाम नगारिसूनुः ।

एषोऽङ्गनावेषधरः किरीटी

जित्वा वयं नेष्यति चाद्य गावः ॥ medium Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Partly inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for cantos II, IV and IX.

The last three verses of canto II are missing. The two other cantos are complete.

Insect-perforation is not inconsiderable. The damage to the folia is chiefly at the corners.

342. XXVII. F. 52

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 8. $14\frac{3}{4}'' \times 1''$.

Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Uninked.

I am aware of no other MS. of this commentary.

There is no evidence whatever in our
MS. to be of use in determining the date of the commentator who has left very few details about himself. All that we know is that Gopāla is the son of Tripāthi

Khedū, and that he belongs to a village called Dhaturā in Sarṇār province. The name suggests that our commentator may belong to the Central Provinces.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for canto VI.

The commentary concludes on fol. 34a in the usual manner, इति श्रीमहामहोपाध्यायकोलाचलमल्लिनाथसूरिविरचिते etc. It is followed by the following extra verse :

व्यसनिन इव विद्या क्षीयते

. . . . निदेशे दैन्यमायान्ति भृङ्गाः ।

कुनृपतिरिव भूमिं पीडयत्यन्धकारो

धन इव कृपणस्य व्यर्थतामेति चक्षुः ॥

Further down on the same folia and on its left-hand corner, the following two verses occur :

चण्डालसदृशो विप्रा नोपनीतोऽतिषोडशे ।

जन्मतः पञ्चगैव हि नैष शास्त्रविशारदः ॥

मानुजनदर्शनमेयदि दर्शनमस्तु मा पुनश्चेहः ।

ज्ञेहो यदि मा विरहे विरहो यदि मास्तु जीवभारोयम् ॥

The extra leaf at the beginning also contains the following stray verses :

अनुकलतनुकाण्डालिङ्गनारंभशुभ-त्प्रतिदिशिभुजशाखश्रीसंखानोकद्वद्विः ।

स्तननयनगुलिच्छास्फारपुष्पद्विरेफा

रचयतु मयि लक्ष्मी कल्पवल्लीकटाक्षान् ॥

इन्द्रस्याग्निहुतेनैव स्वर्गस्थाद्विजभोजनात् ।

यमायां पिंडदानेन असुरा भुवि भोजनम् ॥

Slightly lower down and at the right-hand corner of the folia there is inscribed the verse :

आत्मबुद्धिः सुखं चैव गुरुबुद्धिर्विशेषतः । परबुद्धिर्विनाशाय स्त्रीबुद्धिः प्रलयान्तकः ॥ of canto XIII are given. Fol. 12 is broken and highly perforated by insects.

357. XXIII. B. 23.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 39. 14" × 1". Fairly recent and slightly worm-eaten, but in good condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 6-7 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for canto VIII.

Canto VIII concludes at the beginning of fol. 30b. Fol. 30a is blank. The canto closes virtually at the end of fol. 29b, only two lines comprising the colophon of the commentary being extended to fol. 30b. The next five folia that follow contain again the text and commentary for the first 10 verses of the same canto. The remaining four folia in the codex are blank.

A few letters are here and their eaten by lice whose havoc seems to be rather moderate, in so far as this codex is concerned.

358. XXIII. B. 27.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 19. 16½" × 1½". Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 6-7 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same as No. 355.

Overleaf the extra folio at the beginning a few lines of the commentary on verse 1

359. XXIII. C. 6.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 28. 14½" × 1½". Fairly recent, worm-eaten and slightly injured, but in good condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 7-8 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for canto IV.

The canto ends in the middle of fol. 27a, and the remaining portion of the folio is full of scribblings which are generally indecipherable. The following two, however, are somewhat clear :

(१) श्रीमत्सकलगुणसंपन्नराद किष्णप्पनायकरिगे
एकांवरसाहु माडुव नमस्कार । यि (शुद्ध?) २
वरिचगे ।

(२) समीरप्रतेजोहसदत्तबाहुभुत्वांकुरहाय पतङ्ग-कान्तैः सचानुनीतः प्रणतेन पश्चादाकृष्टलीलांशतया
दुरासदः तनेनदिशहराद्विशांपतिशृणोतु देवेश सदा निधीयतां ।

The first of these passages seems to be beginning of a Kannada letter by Ekāmbara Sāhu to Kṛṣṇappa Naik.

The second is too corrupt and may be a stray quotation from some Sanskrit work.

Fol. 27b is again suffused with illegible and incoherent scribblings and drawings. Fol. 28a contains the following passage which might have been taken from some Sanskrit prose-work :

श्री गुरुभ्यो नमः । फणिवैरिमणिघृणितसृणिताज-लकृतोपतरणसज्जनविहरणपरांतरकरणमुक्तमुक्ताभरण - कृतमज्जनसज्जनरमणीहाररमणीयरुचिमसृणिततरणिकि - रणप्रभासंमिश्रविशालसालशिखरेन्दुभित्तभित्तिकलाकला- पधवलितगगनान्तराले ॥

The injury to the codex is general at the corners. Insect-perforation, though often resulting in the loss of a few syllables here and there, is not considerable.

360. XXV. E. 34.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 35. $14\frac{3}{4}'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and damaged. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same text and commentary for canto IV.

361. XXVII. F. 60.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 10. $17\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{3}{8}''$. Fairly recent, worm-eaten, but in good condition. Five Telugu writing in medium hand. Lines 5-6 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for canto I.

The MS. abruptly breaks off in the middle of the commentary on verse 25 of canto I. The ravages of worms on some folia are considerable.

At the left-hand corner on top of fol. 1a, there is the inscription: श्री रामा । शुभमस्तु । अविघ्नमस्तु । माघं सव्याख्यानं प्र(थ)मः सर्गः । 362.

XXVII. G. 1.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 44. $14'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Old, slightly injured, but in good condition. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Partly inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for cantos IV and V.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 42 of canto IV and in the middle of verse 57 of canto V.

363.

XXVII. G. 4.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 11. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for canto V.

The MS. breaks off abruptly at the end of verse 28.

364.

XXVII. G. 5.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 65. $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly recent, worm-eaten and injured. In good condition. Good medium Telugu writing. Lines 5 in a page. Inked, except for the first three folia.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for cantos IV and V.

Canto IV is concluded at about the end of fol. 32b. Fol. 33 is blank. Canto V is begun on fol. 34a and is strictly concluded at the end of fol. 64b. Only two lines are extended to fol. 65a which for the remaining part is blank. There are 9 extra leaves at the end. These are mostly blank. One or two contain some stray scribblings in Tamil which are mostly indistinct or effaced and unimportant.

Canto IV is complete. As regards canto V its commentary is abruptly begun from the middle of verse 4. Apparently a folio or two is missing. Both the cantos are not numbered consecutively.

365. XXX. L. 13.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 28. $19\frac{1}{2}'' \times 12\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly recent and worm-eaten. In good condition. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 6-7 in a page. Uninked. Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for cantos XI and XII.

The first 3 folia contain the text of canto XI which is concluded at about the end of fol. 3b. The next 11 folia are blank. The commentary for canto XII by Mallinātha is commenced on fol. 15a and is continued till the end of the codex.

There are two small extra folia at the end which contain details regarding some domestic transactions, such as loaning of gold, of the scribe.

The codex was copied by Gopālakṛṣṇa Koṇḍubhaṭṭa on Sunday, the 4th day of the bright-half of the month of Kārtika in the encyclical year Nāla : नलसंवत्सरे वर्षे कार्तिक-मासचाष्टके शुक्लपक्षे चतुर्थ्यां तु भानुवासरमिश्रुते कौटुम्बहाख्यगोपालकृष्णेन द्वादशः सर्गः लिख्यते । करकृतमपराधं क्षन्तुमर्हन्ति संतः ॥

COMMENTARY ON THE S'ISUPĀLA-VADHA (SĀRASAṆGRAHAṆA) BY DEVARĀJA

शिशुपालवधव्याख्यानं (सारसङ्ग्रहणं) देवराज-कृतम्

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 18 (20-37).
15"X2". Fairly old, slightly injured, but in good condition. Small cursory writing in Malayalam. Lines 9-10 in a page.
Inked.

Incomplete.

The Sārasaṅgrahaṇa on the S'isupāla- vadha of Māgha by Devarāja, son of Kṛṣṇadvaipāyanabhaṭṭa, for cantos III and IV.

The commentary is available in full only for canto III whose colophon runs :

इति श्रीमत्कृष्णद्वैपायनभट्टसूनुना देवराजार्येण
विरचिते माधव्याख्याने तृतीयस्सर्गः ॥

The codex breaks off abruptly in the middle of verse 7 of canto IV. There is one blank leaf extra at the end.

Three MSS. (D. No. 11812, R. Nos.
2683 and 2718) in the Govt. Oriental MSS. Library, Madras; the first contains cantos I to III and 3 stanzas from canto IV; the second gives the commentary in full for cantos X and XI and for a portion of canto XII, while the third contains the commentary for the entire portion from canto IV to canto IX of the text. From these MSS., it can be learnt that the name of the commentary is Sārasaṅ- grahaṇa.

368. XXII. C. 52.
COMMENTARY ON THE S'ISUPĀLA-VADHA (SARVAṆKAṢĀ) BY MALLI-NĀTHA

शिशुपालवधव्याख्या (सर्वकाषा) मल्लिनाथकृता

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 40. 15½"X1".
Old, worm-eaten and slightly injured.
Good small Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Mallinātha's Sarvaṇkaṣā on canto II of the S'isupālavadha of Māgha.

The MS. breaks off abruptly at the end of verse 119.

From the fly-leaf at the beginning we learn that the owner is given as the second son of S'īnu Iyengar of Brahmadesa.

369. XXII. M. 25.
Palmyra leaves. Foll. 29 (2-30).
15"X1½". Fairly recent and worm-eaten, but in good condition. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 4-5 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for canto IV.

The codex starts almost at the beginning of the commentary on verse 6, and concludes in the middle of fol. 30a with the commentary on verse 55.

There is an extra leaf at the beginning of the codex. This contains the first 13 verses and a portion of the 14th in the canto V of the Kirātārjunīya. The text for this portion is not, however, complete for the leaf is broken on both sides resulting in loss of considerable portions of the text.

370. XXIII. B. 33.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 108. 14" × 11". Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page. Uninked.

Complete.

Same commentary for cantos XII to XVI.

From the fly-leaf at the beginning the owners are known to be Subbādikṣitar and Yajñesvaridikṣitar.

371. XXIII. C. 50.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 80. 16 $\frac{3}{4}$ " × 8 $\frac{1}{4}$ ". Old, worm-eaten and slightly injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary for cantos III to VI.

Cantos III, V and VI were copied by Mārgasahāyan on the 15th, 9th and 28th days respectively of the Tamil month Poraṭāsi (Bhādrapada) in the encyclical year Vikāri. Canto IV was copied by Seshadri in Vengu Sastri's house on the 26th day of the Tamil month of Āvaṇi (S'rāvaṇa) in the same year. This is the information we can glean from the scribal colophons at the end of each of these cantos.

372. XXIV. M. 15.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 75. 17" × 11". Old, worm-eaten and badly damaged. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary for cantos XIV, XV and XIX.

373. XXV. A. 68.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 50. 15 $\frac{1}{4}$ " × 11". Old, worm-eaten and badly damaged. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 10 in a page. Partly inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same commentary on cantos IV to VI.

From the fly-leaf at the beginning the two former owners of the codex seem to be S'rīnivāsan and Aṇṇāvayyāgar.

374. XXV. B. 25.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 22. 15 $\frac{1}{2}$ " × 1". Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for canto IX.

The codex breaks off at the end of verse 50.

375. XXV. D. 3.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 38. 16" × 1". Old, worm-eaten and damaged, Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for canto V.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 70.

376. XXVI. E. 20.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 19. 14½" × 1½". Fairly recent, worm-eaten and injured, but in good condition. Fine Telugu writing of various sizes. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for canto VIII.

The codex abruptly begins from the middle of the commentary on verse 21. The commentary is complete for the rest of the canto. As the codex begins from fol. 7, the first 6 folia seem to be lost. A portion of fol. 18 is lost.

The scribe is a Bhāskarappa who copied the codex on the 15th day of the bright-half of S'rāvaṇa in the encyclical year S'odhakṛt : शोधकृत् नाम संवत्सर श्रावणशु १५ नाडपाक्षरिभास्करप्प ब्रासुकुन्न मावं येनिमिदो-

XXVI. G. 2.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 25. 16" × 1½". Old, worm-eaten and damaged. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same commentary on canto III.

The owner is given as Bālavanam Raghunāthācāryar; from the evidence of the scribe Ilaṅgāḍu Raghunāthan recorded in the same place, this is a copy made from the MS. in possession of Velāmūr Raṅganāthan.

XXVI. G. 5.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 76. 14" × 1". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary on cantos III, IV and VI.

The MS. breaks in the middle of verse 54 of canto VI. The other cantos are complete.

S'eṭṭūr Venkatakr̥ṣṇamācāryar, son of S'rīnivāsa, is mentioned as the owner on the fly-leaf at the beginning.

379.

XXVII. F. 9.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 53. 10½" × 1½". Old, worm-eaten and slightly injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Uninked.

Complete for the portion.

Same commentary on canto VI.

On the first of the three extra leaves at the beginning the owner is given as Subbarāya. The other two leaves contain a glossary of some Sanskrit words with their Tamil equivalents.

380. XXVII. F. 11.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 5. $16\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1''$. Recent and slightly injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary on canto II.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 33.

381. XXVII. F. 14.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 35. $14'' \times \frac{3}{4}''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary on canto IV.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 75. The inscription on the fly-leaf at the beginning shows Veṅkaṭākṛṣṇa to be the scribe.

382. XXVII. F. 27.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 23 (20-43). $14'' \times 1\frac{3}{8}''$. Fairly recent, worm-eaten and badly injured. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 6-7 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for canto VI.

The MS. seems to be part of a large codex as the second-leaf bears the number 21 and the remaining folia are numbered consecutively. Foll. 34-43 are eaten away considerably at the left-hand corners, with the result they bear no number. A few words in the body of the text are also lost in some folia as a result of insect perforation.

The MS. abruptly breaks off almost at the conclusion of the commentary on verse 78.

On the left-hand corner of the opening folio there is the following Telugu inscription : शुभमस्तु । आरोग्यव्याख्यानं माधवम् ।

383. XXVII. F. 36.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 94. $18'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium writing in Grantha as well as in Telugu. Lines 5 in a page. Uninked.

Complete.

Same commentary on cantos II, III, V and VI.

The folia are alternatively written in Grantha and Telugu.

384. XXVII. F. 39.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 9. $14'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for canto VI.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 22.

385. XXVII. F. 45.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 17. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1''$.

Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary on canto III.

The commentary breaks off abruptly in the middle of verse 40.

386. XXVII. F. 48.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 43. 15" × 1½". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good large Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary for canto X.

The original owner is given in the fly-leaf as S'atakratu Yajñavarāhan.

387. XXVII. F. 49.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 11. 16" × 1½". Old, worm-eaten and damaged. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary on canto V.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 35.

388. XXVII. F. 50.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 84. 16½" × 1½". Old, highly insect-perforated and very badly injured. Medium Telugu writing in a cursory hand. Lines 6-7 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for cantos I-V.

The MS. begins abruptly from the middle of the commentary on verse 4 of canto I and breaks off abruptly in the middle of the commentary on verse 23 of canto V. Canto I concludes on fol. 24a. Canto II is begun on the same folio, and it abruptly ends on fol. 32b in the middle of verse 35. Fol. 33a begins canto III which virtually concludes on fol. 57a, only a portion of its colophon extending to fol. 57b also. Canto IV immediately follows and is concluded on fol. 76b. Canto V begins on fol. 77a and breaks off at the end of fol. 84b in the middle of verse 23. Foll. 46 and 84 are broken into two.

There is one extra folio at the end on which are inscribed the following erotic verses :

..... भैव रोदिति लुठ्ठाळाकळैश्रुभिः ॥
गाढालिंगनवामनीकृत(कु)चप्रोद्भिन्नरोमोद्गमा
सांद्रक्षेहरसातिरेकविगळत्कांचीप्रदेशां वरा ।

यस्येहोचितमीहितं प्रियमतं त्वं निर्गतः . . . ॥

The leaves are very badly damaged no less by insect-perforation-as by age. The folia containing the first two cantos seem to be part of a codex different from those containing the remaining cantos.

389. XXVII. F. 51.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 23. $16\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Old, worm-eaten and badly injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page. Partly inked.

Complete.

Same commentary for canto II.

390. XXVII. F. 53.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 21. $15'' \times \frac{3}{4}''$. Old, worm-eaten and damaged. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

Same commentary for canto V.

The MS. breaks off abruptly in the middle of verse 22. On the fly-leaf at the beginning the owner is given as Venkatasubrahmaniam alias Doraiswamy.

391. XXVII. F. 54.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 29. $13\frac{3}{4}'' \times 1\frac{1}{4}''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary for canto IV.

At the end of the codex the scribe and owner is given as Alasiṅgaṇ.

392. XXVII. F. 56.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 14. $15\frac{3}{4}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Partly inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary on cantos I and II.

The commentary is available for verses 1 to 35 of canto I and 1 to 40 of canto II where the MS. breaks off. The fly-leaf at the beginning gives the original owner as Nāvalpākam Des'ikan.

393. XXVII. F. 57.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 119. $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary on cantos IV to VI.

At the end of canto V it is stated that Sītārāman is the scribe and owner; and the owner of the portion containing canto VI is given as Rāmacandraṇ.

394. XXVII. F. 58.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 23. $15\frac{3}{4}'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Cursory medium Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Uninked.

Complete.

Same commentary on canto III.

The original owner is given in the fly-leaf at the beginning as Ayyāvayyan, grandson of Gaṇapati S'āstri.

395. XXVII. F. 59.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 32. $16\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and badly damaged.

Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary on canto II.

From the inscription on the fly-leaf at the beginning, the MS. was completed at noon of the 24th day of the Tamil month Āṇi (Mithuna) of the encyclical year Virodhi.

396.

XXVII. G. 2.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 20 (1-18; 20-21). 16" × 1½". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Cursory writing in Telugu in a medium hand. Lines 5-6 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for canto VI.

The loss of folio 19 has resulted in the absence of the commentary for verses 58 and 59. The MS. abruptly ends in the middle of the commentary on verse 65. Fol. 15 is almost broken into two through heavy damage wrought by insects. A few other folia are also perforated considerably by insects.

397.

XXVII. G. 3.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 75. 14¼" × 1½". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good large Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Partly inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary on cantos III, VI and VII.

Canto III starts from the middle of verse 33, and canto VII breaks off at the end of verse 62. Canto VI is complete, and, at the end of this canto, Anantasāstri is given as the scribe and owner.

398.

XXVII. G. 6.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 97. 14½" × 1". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Uninked.

Complete.

Same commentary on cantos I and II.

At the end of both cantos Sāmbamūrti is given as the scribe.

399.

XXVII. G. 7.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 62. 15" × 1". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 9 in a page. Partly inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary on cantos III, IV, VII and VIII.

Cantos III and IV are complete. Canto VII breaks off at the end of verse 17, and canto VIII at the end of verse 56.

At the end of canto III it is stated that the owner is Somanāthan and that the MS. was copied on the 7th day of the Tamil month Cittirai in the encyclical year Ānanda. On the fly-leaf at the beginning Ayyāsāstri is given as the owner.

XXVII. G. 8.

Palmyra leaves, Foll. 35. 15" × 1½". Old, worm-eaten and damaged. Good large Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page.

Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary on canto IV.

The MS. opens at verse 3 of the canto which is complete for the remaining portion. The scribe and owner appears to be Anantarāman of Pattamaṅgala Street, as is given at the end of the codex. The MS. was copied on the first day of Caitra in the encyclical year Dhātu.

401. XXVII. G. 10.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 53. $12'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary for canto X.

402. XXIX. C. 11.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 5. $16'' \times 1''$.
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Not inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for canto VI.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 28.

403. XXIX. C. 34.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 75. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1''$.
Old, worm-eaten and slightly injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary on cantos V, VI, X and XI.

The gloss is available only for the first seven verses of canto V. For the other cantos it is complete. The last five folia at the end give the complete text of canto VI in Telugu characters. The name of the owner is given at the end as Aruṇācala.

404. XXIX. E. 5.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 25. $17\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page. Uninked.

Same commentary for cantos II and VII.

Canto II breaks off at the end of verse 25. Canto VII is complete.

405. XXIX. H. 1.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 41. $14'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small writing in Grantha and Telugu. Lines 9 in a page. Inked. Wooden board at either end.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for cantos VII, VIII and X.

Canto VII is complete. Canto VIII breaks off at the end of verse 69 and canto X at the end of verse 25. The four extra leaves at the end contain a few stray verses from the Raghuvamśa and a few stray sūtras of the Aṣṭādhyāyī.

406. XXIX. N. 47.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 57. $12'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$.

Old, worm-eaten and badly damaged. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for cantos V and VI.

Canto VI is complete. The first three folia are missing, taking away portions of canto V.

From the colophon at the end, Anpāsvāmi appears to be the scribe.

407. XXX. L. 28.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 13. $18\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly recent, badly worm-eaten and injured. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 7-9 in a page. Uninked, except for the first three folia.

Complete for the portion.

Same commentary for canto XVI.

The MS. ends on fol. 13a, fol. 13b is blank. Insect-perforation is considerable and has usually resulted in the loss of several passages of the text.

408. XXI. P. 2.

COMMENTARY ON THE S'ISUPĀLA-VADHA BY VALLABHA, SON OF ĀNANDADEVA

शिशुपालवधन्याख्या आनन्ददेवायनिबद्धभक्तु

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 19 (1-19). $13'' \times 2''$. Fairly old, slightly injured, but in good condition. Small cursory writing in Malayalam. Lines 9-10 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

The Sandehaviṣaṇṇadhi or Sārāṭikā of Vallabha, son of Ānandadeva, on the S'isupālavadhā of Māgha for canto I only.

Begins :

श्री गणपतये नमः । अविघ्नस्तु ।

रणात्कविः श्रीपदमादौ प्रयुङ्क्ते—श्रियः पतिरिति ॥

The commentary breaks off in the middle of verse 173 of the canto.

The MS. contains a number of important variant readings as compared with the Printed Edition of the commentary.

409. XXXVI. F. 7.

White, country-made paper. Foll. 83. $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 4''$. Old and badly injured. Good medium Devanagari writing. Lines 10 in a page.

Incomplete.

Same commentary for cantos VI, VII, X-XV and XVII.

The MS. is highly fragmentary. Canto VI and XIV are complete. Canto VII breaks off at the end of verse 70. Only ten verses (81 to 91) of canto X and XII (1-10 verses) are available, verses 1 to 4 of canto XV and verses 2 to 46 of canto XVII. The first four verses of canto XI are missing, and so are verses 1 to 45 of canto XIII.

SUNDARADĀMODARA OF LOLIMBARĀJA

सुन्दरदामोदरः लोलिम्बराजकृतः

White, country-made paper. Foll. 42 (2-43). 10" × 3½". Very old and highly injured and worm-eaten. Cursive Devanagari writing in a medium hand. Lines 6 in a page. Copied in A.D. 1754.

Incomplete.

The text of the poem which, in five cantos, relates the life and exploits of Śrī Kṛṣṇa.

Begins :

श्रीकेशवः शैशवमेव नन्दगोपालगेहाभरणी बभूव ॥४॥
अंग्राल्लरुचानुरजिता रिङ्गितो भगवतो मुग्द्विषः ।
अंगणेषु निहिताः सितोपला पद्मरागपदवी प्रपेदिरे ॥९॥

Canto I ends (fol. 5a) :

इति श्रीसुन्दरदामोदरे महाकाव्ये लोलिम्बराजविर-चिते कृष्णबालक्रीडावर्णने नाम प्रथमः सर्गः ।

Canto II ends (fol. 10a) :

Canto III ends (fol. 21b) :

इति . . . ऋतुवर्णने नाम तृतीयः सर्गः ।

Canto IV ends (fol. 31a) :

इति . . . भगवद्वर्णने नाम चतुर्थः सर्गः ।

Ends (fol. 42b-43a) :

इति . . . कंसवधो नाम पञ्चमः सर्गः ॥

संवत् १८११ (प्र ?) ती जष्ट शुद्ध १ शुक्ले लिखितं ।

मथुरानाथस्य कृते कृतप्रयत्नो मुदे मुकुन्दस्य ।
श्रीस्तु । श्रीगोपालो । विजयतेतरां । शुभमस्तु । इदं
पुस्तकं श्रीबलभद्रपंडितानाम् ।

The MS. is extremely tattered. Fol. 1 is missing. Fol. 43b contains some illegible and incoherent writing. The MS. appears to have been copied by a Kāśīrāma on Friday, the first day of the bright-half of the month of Jyēṣṭha in Śamvat 1811 (A.D. 1754). Its original owner must be a Balabhadrapaṇḍita.

The work is really another version of the Harivilāsa of Lolimbarāja which was first printed in 1867 in the pages of the Pandit and later in 1895 in the Kāvya-mālā. Even the scribe seems to be aware of the fact that there are verses in common between this work and the Harivilāsa. In the left-hand corner on top of fol. 29b he scribbles thus in wrong Sanskrit: Harivilāsamāpi Kāscittloko Kathayati. For a study of the variations between this manuscript and the printed editions of the Harivilāsa, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, December 1940, pp. 139 ff.

SUBHADRĀHARAṆA OF NĀRĀYAṆA WITH A COMMENTARY

सुभद्राहरणं नारायणकृतं सविवरणम्

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 64. 12" × 1.9". Very old, highly damaged and injured. Small cursive Malayalam writing. Lines 9 in a page. Inked. An artistic Wooden boards at either end.

Incomplete.

Cantos I, II-IV and V of the poem with a commentary called vivarana.

Begins :

A highly fragmentary and extremely corrupt manuscript. On the left-hand corners of two folia there are pictures, one in each, of S'rī Kṛṣṇa and a bull, obviously carved by the scribe who might have been an artist.

The full poem seems to contain 20 cantos as evidenced by the concluding colophon of the MS. (R. 4304) in the Govt. Oriental MSS. Library, Madras. There are two other MSS. (R. 2720 and 4323) in this Library which, like R. 4303, are also incomplete. There are three incomplete MSS. (Nos. 2005, 2006 and 2007) in H. H. The Maharaja's Palace Library at Trivandrum. The first two give the text and the last gives the commentary also.

SETUBANDHA OF PRAVARASENA

सेतुबन्धः प्रवरसेनकृतः

White, country-made paper. Foll. 92.
11" X 4". Old, but in good condition.
Good medium Devanagari writing. Lines 10 in a page.

Complete.

The text of the poem which, in 15 Āsvāsas, narrates the story of Rāma's advance against Rāvaṇa, of the building of the bridge to Laṅkā, and of the final destruction of Rāvaṇa.

Begins :

गमह अवड्ढिअतुं गं अवसारिअ-वित्थअं अणोणअगहिरम् ।
अप्पल्लु अपरिसण्हं अणाअ-परमत्थपाअडं महुमहणं ॥

Colophon :

इअ सिरिपवरसेणविरइए कालिदासकएदहमुहवहे
महाकाव्ये पंचरहो आसासओ परिसप्तो ॥

On the extra folio at the beginning are inscribed the following two verses :

तुषितां हरिणीं हरिणस्तुषितं हरिणं विजानती हरिणी ।
मितमम्बुपल्वस्थं कपटे पित्रतः परस्परस्नेहात् ॥
या लक्ष्मीः सिन्धुमंभूता भूतिरेषा विभावसुः ।
पद्माविश्वावसुर्देवी सदा नो जुषतां गृहम् ॥

The poem appears to have been edited and translated, for the first time, by S. Goldschmidt between A.D. 1880 and 1884. Later came the edition with Rāmadāsa's commentary by Pandit Sivadatta and K. P. Parab (Kāvya-mālā, No. 47, Bombay, 1895).

इत्यभिनववासवदत्ता समाप्ता ।

The author belongs to the Vattipalla family. His father's name is Sāmbasīva and his mother was called Veṅkaṭalakṣmī. His grand-father was Vīreśvara, son of Sāmbasīva, a great scholar who knew all the S'āstras. He was the younger brother of Kās'īnātha Tarkālaṅkāravāgīśa, a very great dialectician in his own days. Our author appears to have been a Professor in the Sanskrit College, Tirupati, nearly fifty years ago. Among his other works are the Jñānaprasūnāmbikā and a stotra on S'rī Venkatesa both of which are available in print. For more details concerning the author and the work, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, October 1944, p. 153 f.

This commentary is no other than the S'ringārādīpikā of Vemabhūpāla though it is nowhere called so. The colophon which speaks of Goṣṭhī Kavīndrasūri as the author of the commentary suggests that this may be the real commentator, while the gloss is fathered on Vemabhūpāla by virtue of his patronage.

KṚṢṆAKARṆĀMṚTA OF LĪLĀSUKA

कृष्णकर्णामृतं लीलाशुकविरचितम्

S'ritāla leaves. Foll. 19. $10\frac{1}{2}'' \times 2\frac{1}{2}''$.
Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 16 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

The text of the Kṛṣṇakarṇāmṛta of Līlāsuka (alias Bilvamaṅgala) for cantos
I to III.

Canto I ends (fol. 6b) :

इति श्रीलीलाशुकविरचिते कृष्णकर्णामृतस्तोत्ररत्ने
प्रथमं शतकम् ।

The other cantos have no colophon.
The cantos are numbered separately ; foll.
1-7a, give canto II and foll. 1-6b give canto III. After the colophon of canto I a few extra verses follow. Towards the end of the codex the name of the owner is given as Veṅkaṭeśvara, son of Veṅkaṭa-rāmāvadhāni, of Garga Gotra and Āpa-stambasūtra and hailing from Nagercoil(?).

Two recensions of the text are known, the one containing three sections (āsvāsas) and the other containing only one ;
the former is represented by the Vani-vilas Press Edition, Srirangam, and the Venkatesvara Press Edition, Bombay,
1911, and the latter by the Radharamana Press Edition, Murshidabad, 1916, and, recently, by Dr. S. K. De's in the Dacca University Series (No. 5, 1938).

Dr. S. K. De's claim that "the Bengal tradition which is uniform in accepting only Canto I of the KK., represents the original form of the poem, and that the remaining two Cantos are interpolations incorporated into the original text by later hands," cannot bear examination.

His chief argument in support of his contention is that, while a good number of verses of Āsvāsas II and III can be traced in apocryphal works like the Sumaṅgalastotra or the Bālagopālastuti, ascribed to Bilvamaṅgala, "no verse of the first Āsvāsa occurs in any of them."
[Introduction to his edition of Kṛṣṇa-karṇāmṛta (KK.), pp. xiii ff.; Indian Historical Quarterly, June 1944, p. 179 f.]
This is highly erroneous in view of the fact that elsewhere (op. cit., pp. xxi, 373)
the learned Professor himself admits that Āsvāsa I of the KK. has not only the same maṅgalasloka as the Sumaṅgala-stotra of Bilvamaṅgala (Commonwealth Relations Office MS., Eggeling 3907), but has also four verses in common with another apocryphal work ascribed to Bilvamaṅgala, the Bālagopālastuti (West
Indian Illustrated MS. with O.C.
Gangoly). Further, two other poems of Bilvamaṅgala, the Bilvamaṅgalastotra
(Bikaner MS.) and the Kṛṣṇabālacarita
(Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute MS.) are known to have each twelve verses in common with Āsvāsa I of the KK. It is thus clear that all the three Āsvāsas of the KK. have been uniformly interpolated, and no one of them has greater claims than the other in point of genuineness. It would also be reasonable to assume that the KK., so far from taking birth in the apocryphal works of Bilvamaṅgala, is the source of all such collections of Kṛṣṇaite verses. If Caitanya, who it is that originated the Bengal tradition, took back with him to Bengal only. Āsvāsa I of the KK., it should be because only so much was available to him. His followers may not have waited to think why their guru introduced to them only so much of the KK. They may not have even realised that what was brought to them was only a fragment. They should have refrained, out of respect for the guru, from all reasoning, and attached special importance to the portion as that chosen by their preceptor, even though the fact may actually be that that was all what he could lay hands on during his pilgrimage to the south.

Since the Adyar MS. of the Viṣṇustuti, one more apocryphal work of Bilvamaṅgala, is dated saṁvat 1475 (=A.D. 1418), it should not be incorrect to look upon c. A.D. 1300 as the terminus ad quem of the KK. For fuller details, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, February 1944, pp. 37 ff.; K. K. Raja, Indian Historical Quarterly, March 1946, pp. 6 ff.

श्यात्मानं पदसंश्रितानसुखयत्सोऽयं हरिः पातु वः ॥ हरिः ॥

The work has been printed in Grantha characters. There is also a Malayalam edition of it with a Malayalam translation. This was published in Kollam 1100 (=A.D. 1925) by the Lakṣmīśahāyam Press, Kottakkal. The work is here called Dūtavākya. The last verse in this edition runs :

दूतवाक्यसमाख्यानं निबन्धनमिदं महत् ।

सम्मतं कृत्स्नविदुषां जीयते जगतीतले ॥

That the author is Nārāyaṇa is expressly stated in a verse (No. 109) found only in this edition :

नारायणाभिधमहीसुरवर्यवक्त्र-

जैवातृकामृतझरीनिकरायमाणम् ।

इयं प्रबन्धमिदमद्य समाप्तमुद्य-

इयं समस्तमनवद्यविराजि पद्यम् ॥

He is identified with Melputtūr Nārāyaṇa Bhaṭṭattiri, the celebrated author of the Nārāyaṇīya, by the editor in his introduction.

The text of the poem which, in 90 verses, gives an account of the life of S'ri Kṛṣṇa.

Begins :

हरिः ।

माधवं प्रणिपत्याहं मायाक्रीडाकृतक्षणम् ।

श्रीकृष्णोदन्तमाख्यास्ये वेदव्यासप्रकीर्तितम् ॥

पुरा कदाचिद्भुधा दुष्टभारेण पीडिता ।

 दङ्गीकृत्य स्वरूपं गमित निजपदो योगनिद्रामुवाह ॥
 भास्करेण रचितमिदं श्रीकृष्णोदन्तम् ।

From the first Malayalam line in the colophon it is clear that Bhāskara composed his work in the month of Kanyā in the Kollam year 1025 (= 1849 A.D.); the last line says that 90 verses have been composed in place of 90 chapters. The allusion to the chapters is to those of the X canto of the Bhāgavata which are only 90 in number. The verses of the text are also often accompanied by short explanations.

There are two blank folia at the beginning of the codex. There is one also at the end. On fol. 1a at the left-hand corner, there is the inscription Vattappilli Bhāskarān which gives the surname of the author. It is also possible that this is the name of the scribe or the owner of the codex.

The work resembles very much the well-known Rāmodanta which has been printed often.

For more details, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, May 1944, pp. 107 ff.

The first three verses at the beginning are missing in the MS. From its final colophon the author appears to have written another work called Rāmāyaṇa-kathāsāra. His father's name seems to be Śātakratu Tātayārya (ācārya).

There is a complete MS. of the work in the Sarasvati Mahal Library, Tanjore. It is described under No. 3862 in the Descriptive Catalogue (Vol. VII) of the Library.

The work was printed, probably for the first time, by the Komalāmbā Press, Kumbhakonam, in 1922.

एणस्ये विबुधाचार्ये कन्यास्ये दिवसाधिपे ।

तेष्वे नाप्यच्युतेनापि लिखितं पुस्तकं त्विदम् ॥

According to the last of these verses, the codex was copied by Acyuta Teyya when Jupiter was in Capricorn and the Sun in Virgo.

Sixteen broken folia which follow contain some astrological matter. These are followed by six blank folia.

There are two MSS. (R 76 and D 11838) of the work in the Government Oriental MSS. Library, Madras.

The poem seems to have been written at the instance of a King Ravivarma who belonged to the Prakāsa (Veṭṭattunād) family in Kerala, and who was known in his days both for his wealth as well as learning. The Sanikṣepabhārata and the Sanikṣeparāmāyaṇa are very likely the other poems of our author. Less certainly come the Kalyāṇanaṣadha, the S'vetā-ranyastuti and the Vāsudevavijaya in the list. For fuller details, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, May 1945, pp. 61 ff.

MSS. of the poem are available in the Government Oriental MSS. Library, Madras, and in Mysore.

The poet appears to be the son of Lokanātha and brother of Rāmacandra and Patañjali. He is known to have composed also the Pārvaṭīpariṇaya, the Jānakīpariṇaya, the Bhaiṣṇīpariṇaya and the Draupadīpariṇaya. The second is printed in the Trivandrum Sanskrit Series, XXIV, 1913 and the last in the Salṛdayā, Vols. IX and X. T. Ganapati Sastri assigns the poet to the first half of the 17th cent. A.D.

One MS. (Eggeling 4068) of this poem, identical with the present MS. in all respects except the size of the material on which it is written, is available in the Commonwealth Relations Office Library, London. Most likely on the basis of this the text of this poem was printed as an appendix to the first edition of the Hitopadesa (Serampore, 1804). I have undertaken a new edition of this little poem for the Adyar Library.

The first three cantos of the poem, along with the Manoharā thereon of Daṇḍanātha, were printed by the Vanivilas Press, Srirangam, in 1939 as No. 4 of the S'aṅkara Gurukula Series and as No. 9 of the Madras Government Oriental Manuscripts Series.

According to Gaṅgādevī, author of the Madhurāvijaya and the Virakamphaṛāya-carita, Agastyapaṇḍita is an erudite scholar and prolific writer having to his credit no less than 74 works; but our present poem appears to be the most popular of these. A MS. of our author's Kṛṣṇacarita is found in the Sarasvatī-mahal Library, Tanjore. The patron of our author appears to be King Pratāpa-rudradeva of Warangal who reigned between A.D. 1292 and 1323. For more details regarding the author, see P. P. S. Sastri's Introduction to the edition of the poem mentioned above.

BĀLARĀMARASĀYANA OF KṚṢṆASĀSTRĪ
बालरामरसायनं कृष्णशास्त्रिकृतम्

Modern Paper. Foll. 21: 8" × 6½". Very recent and in good condition. Good medium writing in Malayalam. Lines 21 in a page. Volume bound in boards.

Complete for the portion.

The text of the poem which, in two cantos, gives an account of some incidents in the life of S'rī Rāma.

Begins (fol. 2a) :

श्रीरस्तु ।

दक्षिणं भुवि शिष्टानामशिष्टानामदक्षिणम् ।
श्रितविघ्नाद्रिदम्भोलि कुम्भीन्द्रास्यमुपास्महे ॥

इति श्रीबालरामरसायये काव्ये प्रथमः सर्गः ।

Canto II ends (fol. 20a) :

इति बालरामरसायने काव्ये द्वितीयः सर्गः ॥

The author gives the following account of himself on fol. 1b :

केरळमहितसङ्गमग्रामनिकेतजातभूसुरोत्तमनारायण-
शर्मचरणकृपासमधिगतवेद्यजातेन शिवरामपुरापर-पर्यायवामवेद्यग्रहारवास्तव्येन कृष्णशास्त्रिणा बालोप-कृते कृतमिदं बालरामरसायनाख्यं काव्यं विजयते- तराम् ।

Here we know that his name is Kṛṣṇa-sāstri, that he belongs to the Vāmavedya-grahāra, called also S'ivarāmapura, and that he studied at the feet of Nārayaṇasarma of Saṅgamagrāma (Modern Kūḍalūr in Malabar).

This appears to be the only known
MS. of the poem.

The poem is of little merit and betrays great effort in composition.

The text was published in the Kāvya-mālā (No. 12), Bombay, 1897. The real name of the author appears to be Ś'ivā-dāsa, while Utprekṣāvallabha is only an honorific given to him because of his fondness for the figure of speech of that name. Our author is known to have composed also the Sundarīsataka, and this poem has also been published in the Kāvya-mālā, Bombay. Here his original name is given as Gokula. Rāja Rāja Cola appears to have been the patron of this excellent poet whatever be his real name. It is, no doubt, difficult to identify this king accurately, but it appears possible to know at least the lower limit of the work since it is cited by name in the Sāhitya-darpaṇa of Viśvanātha. This popular writer on Poetics is known to have lived towards the close of the 14th cent. A.D. which date, therefore, should serve as the terminus ad quem of our poem. M. Krishnamachari (Classical Sanskrit Literature, p. 299) is thus wrong in assigning the poet to the 16th cent. A.D.

Numerous MSS. of the poem are available in Madras, Tanjore and Mysore. Aufrecht (CC. II. 100 b; III. 94 b) is also aware of the existence of the poem in certain collections.

Out of the 519 verses which make up the work, at least 55 of them are taken out bodily from the famous Mahānāṭaka, so that the poem may well be regarded as a fourth recension of the Drama which is already known in three recensions, the western recension of Dāmodaramisra, the eastern (i.e. Bengal recension) of Madhusūdana, and that given by the eight MSS. in the Dacca University Manuscript Collection.

The authorship of the work is attributed to Immaḍi Devarāya who may be identified with King Devarāya II of Vijayanagar who reigned between A.D. 1421 and 1448. M. Krishnamachari (Classical Sanskrit Literature, p. 641) is wrong in identifying him with Devarāya V of the same dynasty. The concluding verse of the Rāmābhyudaya of Aruṇagirinātha (Soṇādrinātha) has made some think that Aruṇagirinātha is the author of our poem. But there are numerous difficulties in the way of accepting such a position although, on the basis of the final colophon of the present MS., the conclusion is inevitable that the Diṇḍima family of poets, to which Aruṇagirinātha belongs, had some connection with the Mahānāṭakasūktisudhānidhi. The author, whoever he is, was patronized by King Devarāya II of Vijayanagar, and should as such belong to the 15th cent. A.D. For fuller details on the work and its authorship, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, October 1942, pp. 227 ff.

The text and the commentary were both published from Srirangam in 1946 as No. 14 of the S'aṅkaragurukula Series. Other editions, published earlier elsewhere, are also known.

The poem, though ostensibly extolling the buffalo, appears to indicate, by double entendre, the youthful king of the time who, surrounded by evil company, neglected the learned men of his court. Our author's father appears to have held a high post in the court of King Sāhaji who ruled Tanjore from 1684 to 1710 A.D. It is to this King that our author seems to owe his nom de plume Kuṭṭi Kavi. The commentator is the great grand-son of the author and a great scholar fully conversant also with the traditions of his family. For fuller details concerning the poem, see the Introductions, English and Sanskrit, to the Srirangam Edition of the poem mentioned above.

इति रविनर्तकविरचितमुद्राराक्षसकथासारः समाप्तः ।

The text was published with a Bengali translation by S. C. Law as No. 6 in the Calcutta Oriental Series (Calcutta, 1921).

An edition of it, with a short gloss attached to the text, brought out by Rājagopālan of Madura, is also known. If the tradition obtaining in Malabar that our poet is the contemporary of the famous Nārāyaṇa Bhaṭṭattiri who lived between A.D. 1560 to 1646, is correct, then his date is known. Ravinartaka's poem is known to be based on an earlier version of the story in prose; but, as yet, it is difficult to identify this original prose-version.

MEGHASANDESA OF KĀLIDĀSA

मेघसंदेशः कालिदासकृतः

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 13. $15'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured. Medium cursory writing in Telugu in more than one hand. Lines 6 in a page. Mostly Inked.

Complete.

The text of the well-known poem in 119 stanzas.

Book I ends: इति श्रीकालिदासविरचिते मेघसंदेशे पूर्वमेघः समाप्तः । Book II ends: इति कालिदासस्य कृतौ महाकाव्ये मेघसन्देशे उत्तरमेघः समाप्तः । श्रीशारदांबायै नमः । श्रीदत्तात्रेयगुरुवे नमः । शुभमस्तु । अविघ्नमस्तु । श्रीगणाधिपतये नमः ।

After verse 58 of Book I, the remaining portion of it as well as Book II seem to be copied by a different hand. The distinction between पूर्वमेघ and उत्तरमेघ is observed and the verses in each canto are numbered separately. Individual colophons for these cantos also occur. Several letters and often whole lines are lost as a result of the ravages of worms.

The name of the scribe is not mentioned.

XIX. K. 22.

Palmyra leaves. Fol. 1. $17'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text as above for Book II.

The portion available in this codex seems to be a solitary leaf belonging to a bigger codex containing the text in full. This folio begins in the middle of the verse आलोके ते निपतति (II. 22) and stops abruptly at the end of the third quarter of the verse जाने सख्यास्तव (II. 31).

603.

XIX. M. 64.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 16 (42-58). $15'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly old, and injured, but in good condition. Small cursory writing in Telugu in more than one hand. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text for Books I and II.

The leaves not being arranged regularly, the numbering of the folio is not regular. Fol. 4b stops in the middle of verse 35 (पत्रश्यामा०) of book I. Fol. 5a starts only in the middle of verse 47 (त्वन्निग्रन्दो-च्छसित०), and this book, consisting of 68 verses, is concluded on fol. 9a. Fol. 9b is blank and from fol. 10a till the end book II is continued. At the last folio (16b), this book, however, ends abruptly in the middle of the last verse, तत्सन्देशं जलधर etc. whose number here is 55.

Several folia are very badly damaged at their left-hand corners often causing loss of portions of the text. Book II seems to be written by another hand.

XXII. F. 50.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. (2-11). $17\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly recent, but worm-eaten. In good condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text as above.

At the end of fol. 3, book I stops breaking off at the end of the 28th verse वक्रः पन्था यदपि भवतः etc. Fol. 4a contains a few verses in praise of S'iva and a line of this extends to fol. 4b also which is blank otherwise. Fol. 5a is again half filled with a few verses similar in nature and 5b in blank. Book II begins from fol. 6a and is continued till the end. This contains 54 verses in all. Fol. 11b is blank. Fol. 12a and a portion of its reverse contain Mallinātha's commentary on verse 1 and a portion of verse 2 of canto.

605. XXVII. F. 37.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 10. 17" × 1". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Cursory medium Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Uninked.

Incomplete.

Same text as above for Book I.

The MS. breaks off in the middle of the colophon of the Book.

606. XXVII. H. 53.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 10. 16" × 1". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text as above for Book I.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 54.

607.

XXVII. H. 54.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 8. 15" × 1½". Old, worm-eaten and damaged. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text as above for Book I.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 64.

608.

XXXIX. B. 7.

Grey modern European paper, Foll. 15 (4-18). 8" × 12½". In good condition. Good medium writing in Roman Script. Lines 22 in a page.

Incomplete.

Same text as above.

The first part of the codex opens only with the verse त्वामारूढं (I. 8), the earlier verses being omitted. This portion is concluded in the middle of folio 12. The second part is continued from here till the end of the codex which stops with the verse रक्ताशोकं (II. 15). In the body of the text of Book II given in this codex are included the two verses यत्रोन्मत्तं and आनन्दोत्थं which Mallinātha discards as interpretations.

In the 3 extra folio at the beginning, there are a few verses from the Devī-stotra. The codex is well bound in calico.

XL. D. 39.

White, country-made paper. Foll. 31. 9" × 3". Old, worn-out and worm-eaten, but in good condition. Good medium Devanagari writing of the Kashmirian type. Lines 6 in a page.

Complete.

Same text as above.

No distinction like the Pūrvamegha and Uttaramegha is observed in this codex. The stanzas of both these sections are numbered consecutively, so that the text of the Meghadūta consists of 120 stanzas in the aggregate. This number exceeds by 5 the number of verses contained in the Nirṇayasāgara Press Edition of the text. This excess is due to the inclusion here of verses which Mallinātha dubs interpolations.

The scribe is full of veneration for Kālidāsa and all admiration for the poem as can be inferred from the manner in which he concludes his copy :

इति कविचक्रवर्तिश्रीकालिदासकृतौ मेघदूताभिधानं काव्यं समर्थितमिति ।

यावद्वणसमुद्रो यावन्नक्षत्रमण्डितो मेरुः ।

यावत्तरणिहिमांशू तावदयं पुस्तको जयतु ॥

At the corners of many of the folia are frequently seen many notes, obviously from the pen of one who utilized the codex for study.

610. XLI. D. 31.

White, country-made paper. Foll. 26. 8" × 4½". Old and worn-out, but still in good condition. Large Devanagari writing of the Maithilī type. Lines 6 in a page.

Complete.

Same text as above in 125 verses.

The margins are full of notes by the student. As in the case of the India Office MS. (Eggeling 3781), there is the following colophonic verse at the end which speaks of Kālidāsa's authorship :

इत्थंभूतं सुचरितपदं मेघदूतं च नाम्ना
कामक्रीडाविरहितजने विप्रयुक्ते विनोदः ।
मेघस्यास्मिन्नतिनिपुणता बुद्धिभावः कवीनां
नत्वार्यायाः चरणयुगलं कालिदासश्चकार ॥

The MS. was copied in Samvat 1647 (=1590 A.D.) by Murārika in (Jamshedpur) Samṣetākāpura: स्वस्ति श्रीविक्रमार्कसमयातीतसंवत् १६४७ वर्षे आपाढ शुदि ११ शुके मुरारिकेन लिखितं । संपेठकपुरे वसति ।

The following proverbial scribal verse is at the end:

यादृशं पुस्तकं दृष्ट्वा तादृशं लिखितं मया ।

यदि शुद्धमशुद्धं वा मम दोषो न विद्यते ॥

MEGHASANDESA WITH A TAMIL GLOSS

मेघसंदेशः द्राविडटीकासहितः

White, modern paper. Pages 160. 8" × 6". In good condition. Good small writing in Grantha and Tamil. Lines 19 in a page. Bound in boards.

Incomplete.

The text and gloss on the poem for Book I.

The MS. breaks off abruptly at the end of the gloss on verse 51.

XL. E. 36.

ANONYMOUS COMMENTARY ON THE MEGHASANDESA

मेघसंदेशव्याख्या अज्ञातकर्तृकृता

White, country-made paper. Foll. 11 (3-7, 13, 17, 18, 20-22). 7" × 4". Old and damaged, but in good condition. Medium and small Devanagari writing of the Maithilī type in more than one hand. Lines 11 in each page on an average.

Incomplete.

Commentary of unknown authorship on the first thirty-two verses of the text.

The first two folia are missing; and the MS. begins with folio 3, from the concluding portion of the gloss on verse 1, and continues without gap till the end of the commentary on verse 9. Folio 13 starts from the middle of the commentary on verse 19 and stops at about the end of that on verse 20. Folia 14-16 are missing. Folio 17 begins from the middle of the gloss on verse 24. The commentary continues without break till the middle of verse 27 where folio 18 stops. Again, folio 19 is missing, and the next (fol. 20) starts from the middle of verse 28, and there is no more break in the subject matter till the end of the MS.

Not only is the MS. so highly defective, but also many of its folia are very badly damaged. Folia 3 and 4a seem to be written in one hand, and the rest in another.

MEGHASANDESA WITH THE COM-MENTARY OF MALLINĀTHA

मेघसंदेशः मल्लिनाथकृतव्याख्यासहितः

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 97. 13½" × 1½". Old, worm-eaten and badly damaged. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same text with the Sanjivini of Mallinātha for Books I & II.

The MS. was completed on Monday, the twelfth day in the bright-half of the month of Mīna in the encyclical year S'ubhakṛt. The scribe and owner of the MS. is Nāgu, son of Vīrāsvāmi Josyar. This MS. was bought by Anantācārlu in the month of Paṅgunī.

XIX. A. 38.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 10. 13" × 1¾". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 10 in a page. Inked. Wooden board at either end.

Same text and commentary for Book I.

The MS. breaks off at the end of verse 15 and the commentary thereon.

615.

XIX J. 59.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 27. 17" × 1½". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 9 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for Book I. 618.

XXVI. D. 20.

The original owner of the MS. is given at the fly-leaf in the beginning as Svāmi Dikṣita.

616. XXIII. B. 10.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 54. $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Old, worm-eaten and damaged. Good large Grantha writing. Lines 9 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for Books I and II.

The MS. breaks off abruptly at the end of verse 45 of Book II.

617. XXV. H. 15.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 86. $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Uninked. Wooden board at either end.

Complete.

Same text and commentary for Books I and II.

The copying of the MS. was completed, when the star Rohiṇī was in the ascendant, on Saturday, the eighth day in the month of Śrāvaṇa of the encyclical year Nandana. The scribe is the brother of Vilānkuppam Tirumalai Tātācārya and from him the MS. was originally purchased by Rāmānuja Tātācārya, son of Kṛṣṇamācārya.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 103. $12'' \times 1''$. Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good large Grantha writing. Lines 4 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same text and commentary for Books I and II.

The copying of the MS. was completed, according to the inscription at the end, on the 6th day in the month of Kanyā of the encyclical year Vikrama.

619. XXVII. H. 11.

Palmyra Leaves. Foll. 38. $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly old and worm-eaten, but in good condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for Books I and II.

The codex breaks off abruptly in the middle of verse 22 in book II. Book I consists of 67 stanzas. Till the end of I. 57 (fol. 24a), the script used is Telugu. Then till about the middle of verse 60 (fol. 25a), the scribe takes a fancy for the Grantha script. The rest of the codex is written in Telugu.

620. XXVII. H. 38.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 51. $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly old, worm-eaten and injured. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same text and commentary for Books I and II.

The edges of several of the folia are very badly damaged, to a great extent, by the ravages of worms and insects. The folia are also often perforated in the body and then whole lines or parts of them are lost as a result.

Fol. 51b contains a few verses from देवीमानसिक.

621. XXVII. H. 39.

Palmyra Leaves. Foll. 36. 16" × 12". Fairly old, worm-eaten and damaged, but in tolerable condition. Medium Telugu writing. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for Books I and II.

The first three folia of the codex are lost; and it only begins from the middle of the commentary on the verse त्वय्यायत्तं (I. 16). The Pūrvamegha is almost concluded on fol. 19a except for a single line which extends to its other side (fol. 19b). The rest of this folio is blank; and the Uttaramegha is begun on fol. 20a and continued till the end of the codex which breaks off abruptly in the middle of the commentary on the last verse, एतत्कृत्वा० (II. 53).

There are a few textual variations between the commentary given in this codex and that printed in the Nirnayasagara Press Edition of it. Many folia are so severely damaged that a good portion of the text is lost thereby.

XXVII. H. 47.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 58. 14" × 1". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 9 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same text and commentary for Books I and II.

The MS. was completed in the month of Caitra of the encyclical year S'ubhakṛt.

623.

XXVII. H. 52.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 46. 14½" × 1½". Old, but in good condition. Good small Grantha writing. Lines 8 in a page. Inked.

Incomplete.

Same text and commentary for Books I and II.

624.

XXVII. H. 54.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 42. 15" × 1½". Old, worm-eaten and injured. Good medium Grantha writing, Lines 6 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same commentary as above for Book I.

The MS. breaks off at the end of the commentary on verse 51.

625.

XXIX. L. 31.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. (19-46). 17" × 1½". Fairly recent and in good condition. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 6 in each page. Inked.

Complete for the portion;

Same text and commentary for Book II.

A good number of the folia contain the number of lines in them counted. Though the commentary accompanying the text is easily identified as by Mallinātha, the final colophon इति श्री महामहोपाध्याय etc. which usually concludes this commentary is not found in this codex.

According to the Telugu inscription at the back of the codex which runs वाविल्लो वेङ्कटशिवशास्त्रुलगारि उत्तरमेघं etc., the codex originally belonged to Vāvilla Venkaṭasivasāstri who may also be the scribe.

626. XXX. J. 25.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. (1-25). $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly recent, but highly insect-perforated. Small cursory Telugu writing. Lines 5 in a page. Mostly uninked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for Book II.

Except the first three folia, the rest are all uninked. Whole lines in the folia are often undecipherable owing to the havoc wrought on them by insects or worms.

627. XXX. J. 31.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 36. $17'' \times 1\frac{1}{10}''$. Old, and worm-eaten, but in good condition. Small cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 5 in a page. Inked.

Complete for the portion.

Same text and commentary for Book I.

There are two blank leaves both at the beginning as well as at the end of the codex: After the blank leaves at the commencement, two more extra folia contain some stray invocations to several deities. From the Telugu inscription on top of the codex which runs : वाविल्लो-वेङ्कटशिवशास्त्रुलगारि पूर्वमेघं सव्याख्यानं पुस्तकं, it is clear that the codex originally belonged to Vāvilla Venkaṭasivādhāni; and the scribal inscription at the close of the work shows that this man is the scribe also of this codex and that he is the eldest son of Vāvilla Subrahmanya Dīkṣita.

628. XXX. K. 8.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 51. $17\frac{3}{4}'' \times 1\frac{1}{2}''$. Fairly old worm-eaten and injured. Medium cursory writing in Telugu. Lines 5 in a page. Uninked.

Complete.

Same text and commentary for Books I and II.

The commentary of Mallinātha is available here only for book I. Only the text of book II is found, and that too at the beginning of the codex in the first 7 folia. Fol. 7b is blank, and, from the 8th till the end, continues the text of canto I with Mallinātha's gloss thereon.

There are six extra folia at the beginning. The first three are blank. The fourth contains the invocatory verses of the Saṁjivini. The remaining two contain some stray verses which are not of much consequence.

MEGHASĀNDESA WITH THE COMMENTARY OF STHIRADEVA

मेघसंदेशः स्थिरदेवकृतव्याख्यायुतः

White, country-made paper. Foll. 26.
10" X 4½". Old and worn out. Medium Devanagari writing of the Maithilī type.
Lines 11 in a page.

Incomplete.

Same text as above with the ṭīkā of Sthiradeva.

The MS. is defective beginning from the middle of the commentary on the verse उत्पश्यामि त्वयि० (I. 59), and ending abruptly in the middle of the gloss on आश्वास्यैव० (II. 50). The numbers marked on the edges of the folia are generally indistinct and very often invisible.

The commentary with the text was published from Poona by V. G. Paranjpe (II Edn., 1941).

Our commentator is quoted by name by Janārdana, another commentator on this poem, who is placed by P. K. Gode between A.D. 1192 and 1385 (see above, No. 249). Janārdana's date should thus be a definite terminus ad quem for that of our commentator. V. G. Paranjpe (Introduction, p. xxx) would place our author "somewhere in XI century" and definitely "later than IX century A.D."

The text has been published by the Nirṇayasāgara Press, Bombay and in Madras. An incomplete MS. (D. 11890) of the commentary is available in the Government Oriental MSS. Library, Madras. The MS. (D. 14905) of another commentary on the poem, though anonymous, is also found in the same Library.

The traditional date given to Madhva is A.D. 1198 or 1199; but there are scholars who would place him in the 13th century A.D. According to B. N. K. Sarma (IHQ., 1940, XVI. 373f.), the "most satisfactory date for Madhva" would be the period between A.D. 1238 and 1317. The same writer (New Indian Antiquary, 1940, III. 292) places Vedesa, preceptor to our commentator, between c. A.D. 1570 and 1620. Accordingly, our commentator could be placed in the first-half of the 17th century A.D. From the statement of Yadupatiyācārya in the last of his introductory verses, it would appear that, before him, there was a metrical commentary on the poem.

From the final colophon of the poem, the author appears to be the son of Jinvali Immaḍi Veṅkaṭarāja and Viramāmbā. M. Krishnamacharya (Classical Sanskrit Literature, p. 373) identifies our poet with Immaḍi Aṅkusa's descendant of the same name and feels that he must have lived in the latter-half of the 18th cent. A.D. He also speaks of a MS. of the commentary on the poem written in Ś'aka 1706 (= A. D. 1784).

मैसूरु शेषय्यङ्गार निकटादगतं पत्रात्मकं कोशं
दृष्ट्वा लिखितमिदं पुस्तकम् ।

Many MSS. of the poem are known, and it appears it is printed also.

The author appears, from the concluding verse, to belong to Dharalā in the Cola country and to have written eight works. He must have been a well-known writer in Kannada also, since he is cited by name by important Kannada authors.
Since Ponna (c. A.D. 950) mentions him as an earlier poet of repute, R. Narasimha-charya (Karṇāṭaka Kavīcarite, Bangalore, 1924, I. 39) would infer that he lived about A.D. 945. Our MS. makes all such guesses unnecessary. From the first of its concluding verses we learn that the poem was composed in Samvat 910
(=A.D. 853).

Sections I to III of the poem giving an account of the life of Vādirāja, an important writer in Dvāṇta Vedānta.

Begins :

Colophon (foll. 20) :

इति श्रीरघुनाथाचार्यविरचितश्रीमद्वादिराजवृत्तरत्न-सङ्ग्रहे द्वितीयः प्रबन्धः ।

The MS. opens on the 16th verse of Prabandha I and breaks off in the middle of verse 41 of Prabandha III.

The Ratnāsāṅgrāha of Raghunāthā-cārya, a MS. (Keith 6051) of which is available in the Commonwealth Relations Office Library, London, is very likely identical with our work.

No information is available in either of the MSS. about Raghunātha, the author of our work. The date of Vādirāja, the subject of the present poem, has been much debated. R. G. Bhandarkar (Report, 1882-83, pp. 8, 203) and, following him, P. P. S. Sastri (Introduction to his edition of the Sabhāparva of the Mahābhārata) hold that he died in A.D. 1339. This pure conjecture is against Mādhva tradition which would hold that Vādirāja was a contemporary and disciple of Vyāsarāja (A.D. 1478-1539). P. K. Gode (ABORI, 1935-36, XVII. 203 ff.) adduces literary and epigraphic evidence to prove that Vādirāja "flourished about the second half of the 16th cent. A.D." Supporting this and adding more evidences, B. N. Krishnamurti Sarmā (ABORI., 1936-37, XVIII. 187 ff.) holds that this important Mādhva writer must have been "alive between 1539 and 1597, and flourished entirely within the sixteenth century."

The MS. was copied by Devarāja on the tenth day of the bright half of the month of Caitra in Śaṁvat, 1475 (= A.D. 1418).

Though the MS. calls itself Viṣṇustuti, it really contains the text of the Kṛṣṇa-karṇāmṛta. Except for 15 verses which are its own, the rest are all found in cantos II and III of the Kṛṣṇakarṇāmṛta which obviously is its basis. For more details on the subject, see H. G. The name of the scribe is given at the end as Villivākam Tāta Desikācāri.

The full text of the poem was printed in the Saṅgrahāṇ (Vols. V-VI), Madras, 1912-14.

The author is the son of Ratnakheṭa Śrīnivāsa Dīkṣita and Kāmākṣī. As a protégé of King Raghunātha Naik of Tanjore who came to the throne about A.D. 1614, he must have lived in the 17th century. A great scholar, well-versed in various branches of learning, especially Mīmāṃsā, Rājacūḍāmaṇi is believed to have composed at least 27 works. His Tantrasikhāmaṇi, a gloss on the aphorisms of Jaimini, was composed in A.D. 1636. For fuller details regarding the author, see T. R. Chintamani's Introduction to Rukmiṇīkalyāṇa (Adyar Library, 1929) and M. Krishnamachari, Classical Sanskrit Literature, p. 235 f.

MSS. of the poem are known in Bengal and Bikaner. Aufrecht (CC., I. 686a) notes a MS. in Oudh which contains both the text and the commentary.

Our author appears to be the son of Jayasimha and the pupil of Priyādāsa. Har Dutt Sharma (S. Krishnaswami Aiyangar Commemoration Volume, Madras, 1935, p. 53) would have that he ruled over Rewa between A.D. 1853-54. From the evidence of our MS. the royal author must have come to the throne much earlier, i.e., about A.D. 1770. It is clear from the colophons of the commentary that Viśvanāthasīmha had already become a King (Mahārājādhirāja) when he composed it; and our MS. of the commentary was copied in Śaṁvat 1866 (=A.D. 1810). The text may go back by about 26 years, i.e., c. A.D. 1750. From its colophons it appears that the author was then only a Prince (Rājakumāra). For fuller details, see Pandit V. Krishnamacharya, Adyar Library Bulletin, December 1948, pp. 233 ff.

The poem is known to have been printed in Bombay and Belgaum. Our author's father, Trivikrama Paṇḍitācārya, is placed by B. N. K. Sarma (Journal of the Annamalai University, 1933, II, 209) between c. (A.D.) 1258 and 1320. Nārāyaṇa Paṇḍitācārya, the son, should thus have lived in the last quarter of the 13th century A.D. For details regarding the other works of the author, see above, Nos. 178 and 419.

The MS. opens at the close of verse 25 canto I and breaks off at the beginning of canto X.

This appears to be the only known MS.
of the poem.

The name of the author's father is given as Rāmācārya in the colophons and in the concluding verses of Cantos
I to VIII. The latter appear also to state that Satyabodhācārya, the subject of this poem, was the preceptor of Sumatī who is probably the same as Sumatīndratīrtha, the third pontifical descendant of Rāghavendrasvāmin. According to B. N. K. Sarma (New Indian Antiquary, 1939, I. 675), Sumatīndra lived between A.D. 1692 and 1725. Satyabodha may accordingly have lived about A.D.
1675.

This appears to be the only known
MS. of the poem.

The author is not known by name, but seems to be a native of the Telugu country. He might have been a protégé of Koṇḍalarāya who might have been the last of the poligars of Ūrkāḍ still retaining the glory of his ancestors, and who,
along with three of his predecessors,
Seturāya, Venkaṭācala and S'rīnivāsa, forms the subject of the poem. The poem is of ordinary merit. There is not in it much ease or clarity in expression, and lapses in language are not unknown.
The author frequently indulges in high-sounding exaggerations, not at all attractive, and poetic juggleries such as using a single passage for the edification of more than one poligar. An uninteresting attempt to imitate the Raghuvamśa is made at the beginning of the work.

The text of the artificial poem giving, in 253 verses, the story of S'ri Kṛṣṇa.

Begins :

गीर्नः श्रेयः परं दद्यादजा सा चतुराकृतिः ।
अनुरूपमजं वव्रे या पतिं चतुराननम् ॥

धेनवः श्रीपतेरीप्सितास्तद्वपुः
ज्वाद्रिये धेनवं नान्यदित्यात्तधीः ।

तेन गत्वाब्रवीद्भारखेदं विधिं
भर्तृपाश्व स्वयं वर्तमानैव भूः ॥

Ends :

भवेत्सुखं परमपरं धनं तपः
सुपुत्रता विशदतरा मतिर्विशः ।

यया नृणां भगवति भक्तिमाशु
तामिदं पठन् हरिचरितं समश्नुते ॥

Colophon : Nil.

The text was published, for the first time, by the Adyar Library in its Series (No. 63) in 1948.

Nothing is stated anywhere in the MS. to prove that the author of the poem is Paramesvara, although there are many reasons why he should be the author. It is possible that the work was composed in the latter part of the thirteenth cent. A.D. For fuller details, see the Introduction to the printed edition of the poem mentioned above.

The text was, for the first time, edited and translated by Dr. C. Kunhan Raja in the Adyar Library Bulletin. In 1943 it was issued as No. 8 in the Adyar Library Pamphlet Series.

Darā Shukoh mentioned here is the son of Shah Jahan and half-brother of Aurangzeb. His addressee, Gosvāmi Nṛsimha Sarasvatī, is identified by P. K. Gode (Adyar Library Bulletin, October 1942, pp. 172 ff.) with Brah-mendra Sarasvatī who was a resident of Benares and a contemporary of Shah Jahan (A.D. 1628-1658).

The name of the person to whom the second letter is addressed is not known by name; nor are any details available about his correspondent. In the course of this letter a letter from Sāhajika is mentioned. The reference may probably be to the Raja of Tanjore of that name whose date is given as A.D. 1684 to 1711. For fuller details see the Introduction to the printed edition.

The commentator, Ghanasyāma, is known to have been the erudite minister of King Tukkoji I (A.D. 1729-1735) of Tanjore. He is the son of Mahādeva and Kāśī, and had two learned wives, Kamalā and Sundarī, who co-operated with him in his work especially by commenting on some of his works. All branches of Indian literature put together he is reputed to have composed more than one hundred works. Of these the Damaruka, a pra-hasana in Sanskrit, was published from Srirangam in 1939 as No. 11 of the Madras Government Oriental Manuscripts Series.

The MS. appears to have belonged originally to Ratnasancaya Nainar of Ālagramam, Tindivanam Taluk, South Arcot District. It was copied by Ayyanna Nainar on the seventh day in the bright half of the month of Phālguna in the encyclical year Paridhāvi.

The poem was edited and published by T. S. Kuppaswami Sastri in Srirangam in 1939 as No. 1 of the Sarasvativilāsa Series. Other editions of the poem are also known.

The real name of the author appears to be Ajitasena; and it is to his great skill in dialectics that he appears to owe his nom de plume. He is known to have been a Jaina ascetic of the Digambara school and a pupil of Puṣpasena. Kṣatracūḍāmaṇi appears to be his other work, and this poem is known to be, in many places, a rendering into Sanskrit of the Tamil poem Jīvakacintāmaṇi. In his introduction to his edition of the Gadya-cintāmaṇi (p. 9), T. S. Kuppaswami Sastri places our author in the 11th cent. A.D. For more details, see this Introduction as also M. Krishnamachari, op. cit., p. 476 f.

The date of Subandhu has been very frequently discussed. General opinion appears to be in favour of placing him in the 7th cent. A.D. For a good summary of the different views in this respect, see M. Krishnamachari, op. cit., p. 469 f.

Library, Madras.

Our commentator appears to be the son of Nāgesvarayaṅjan and Narasakka of the Kolācala family, and a disciple of Gopālendrasarasvatī. He traces his descent from Mallinātha, the celebrated commentator on our important Mahākāvyas. The great-grand-father of our commentator is believed to have performed a sacrifice with the help only of the members of his family. For fuller

Canto IV is not complete, while the others are so ; but the MS. is extremely ill-arranged.

There is one MS. (D. No. 4037) of the poem in the Sarasvatimahal Library, Tanjore, but this is also incomplete.

A younger brother of the celebrated South Indian poet, Nīlakaṇṭha Dīkṣita, our author belongs to the 17th cent. A.D. He appears to have been also a very great scholar, well-versed in many branches of learning. Among his other works we have the play, Kusakumudvatīya and the poem, Pratiraghuvaṁsa. For fuller details, see M. Krishnamacharya, op. cit., p. 696.

Many editions of this very popular poem are known.

Such is the popularity that the poem has enjoyed that a host of commentaries on it is available. Caṇḍapāla and Guṇavinayagaṇi, Dāmodara and Nāgadeva are among the well-known commentators.

Simhāditya appears to be another name of our author. His father was Nemādityā (Devāditya) and S'rīdhara of S'āṇḍilyagotra is the grand-father. Our author is known to be a poet in the court of the Rāṣṭrakūṭa King, Indra III (A. D. 914-916) who inflicted a crushing defeat on

King Mahīpālā of the Pratihāra dynasty and captured Kanauj.

Ucchvāsa III. The two earlier sections are complete. Many MSS. of the poem are known.

Our author is known to belong to the Bhāradvājagotra and to have lived in Pārthapura. His ancestor Rāma was a poet in the court of the Devagiri King of the same name who was defeated by Allauddin in A. D. 1294. Our author's forte appears to be Astronomy, and his work Sūryaprakāśa was composed in
A. D. 1539. His gloss on Bhāskara's
Līlāvati was written in A. D. 1542.
Among his poetical works are the Rāma- kr̥ṣṇavilomakāvya (see above, No. 639) and the Āryārāmāyana, a MS. (No. D. 11828) of which is available in the Govt. Oriental MSS. Library, Madras. Sūryapaṇḍita is known to have commented also on the Kavikalpalatā of Devesvara.

The poem was printed in Telugu characters with a short gloss in Bangalore, 1888.

Known to be a contemporary of the famous Nilakaṇṭhadikṣita, our author, a native of Conjeevaram, must have lived in the latter-half of the 17th cent. A. D. A versatile writer hailing from a very learned family, he is known to have composed a number of works, chief of them being his very popular Viśvagunādarsa, a review of the India of his time, Yādava-rāghavīya (see above, No. 635) and the Varadābhyudaya. His Subhāṣitakaustubha is an anthology of verses, and among his plays are Pradyumnānanda, Sṛīgārādīpikā and Subhadraṇṇaparīṇaya. For an elaborate study of this writer, see M. Krishnamachari, op. cit., pp. 513 ff.

इति वेतालपञ्चविंशतिः समाप्ता ।

The text of the poem is known in at least five recensions, two by Śivadāsa and one each by Jambhaladatta, Soma-deva and Kṣemendra. The last two of these are merely portions of their famous works, the Kathāsaritsāgara and the Bṛhatkathāmañjarī. Uhle published Śivadāsa's recensions in 1881 and 1914. Jambhaladatta's version was published by Jivānanda Vidyāsāgara at Calcutta in 1873; but was re-edited and translated by M. B. Emeneau in the American Oriental Series, No. 4, 1934. Our MS. appears to contain a recension different from all these.

Overleaf one extra leaf found at both ends is inscribed often : Niroṣṭhyacampū-kāvyam. This appears to be another name for the work.

Our author appears to belong to the family of the celebrated polymath of South India, Appayyadīkṣita who had a brother named Accādīkṣita, the son of whose great-grand-son was Nārāyaṇadīkṣita. His great-grand-son was Samara-puṅgavadīkṣita who and Minākṣī are our author's parents. Tenth in descent from Appayyadīkṣita, our author should have lived in the middle of the 18th century.

The MS. is very corrupt in many places.

Here and there explanations are given in Kannada.

The author seems to belong to Belur, Mysore State, and the deity referred in the work seems to belong to the Cennakesava temple at Belur.

MSS. of the commentary are abundant in South India.

The commentator is the son of Yajñesvara and Sarvāmbā and brother of Koṇḍubhaṭṭa. He is known to be a grand-son of Timmayasomayāji of Cerukūru and a native of the Kṛṣṇā District in the Madras State. A great scholar, well-versed in the different branches of traditional learning, he is the author of Ṣaḍbhāṣācandrikā, Svaramañjarī, Rasamañjarī and Alāṅkaramuktāvalī and has commented also on the Prasannarāghava and Anargha-rāghava. As a poet in the court of Tirumala I of the Aravidu dynasty of Vijayanagara (A.D. 1567-1575), the commentator must have lived in the 16th cent. For fuller details, see M. Krishnamachari, op. cit., p. 342 n.

At least three editions of the poem are known. The Telugu edition, probably the earliest, gives also the commentary of Nāganārya, son of Devanārādhyā. The Devanagari edition was published by the Nirnayasagara Press, Bombay, in 1901. A third edition of the poem was started in the now defunct Calcutta Oriental Journal during the years 1935-36. The present MS. gives a text different from and longer than what is given in any of these editions.

The author appears to be a well-known Telugu poet belonging to a place called Drākṣārāma in the Āndhra country. He is known to be the author also of a work on Poetics, called Ādinārāyaṇacarita. He must have lived some time after Nannayya Bhaṭṭa and before Tikkana Somayājī. For fuller details, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, October 1946, p. 195; December 1946, p. 264.

Colophon :

इति सुन्दरपाण्ड्यशतकं संपूर्णम् ।

Fol. 5b is blank. The MS. is extremely corrupt.

The work was published in Madras in 1928 with the caption Nītidviṣaṣṭikā.

The present MS. which calls it Sundara-pāṇḍyasataka, contains many variant readings as compared with this edition. For details, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, May 1946, pp. 133 ff.

1067. XXXIII. F. 28.

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 11 (28—39). 9 $\frac{3}{4}$ " X 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ ". Fairly old and very slightly injured. Good medium Grantha writing. Lines 7 in a page. Inked.

Complete.

Same work as XXI. Q. 8.

The text concludes on fol. 39a of the codex.

Like the other MS., this also differs from the printed text in many ways. Besides its variant readings which are of very minor value, the MS. has 13 extra verses 11 of which are found in the Malayalam MS. described elsewhere. The following two verses which occur respectively on fol. 33a and fol. 38a are its own :

शतमप्यपराधानां सुकृतेनैकेन नाशयत्यार्यः ।
नाशयति सुकृतशतान्यपि नीचस्त्वेकापराधेन ॥
यौवनमफलं धनिनां व्रतमफलं दुर्विनीतस्य ।
निर्गुणमप्यनुरक्तं प्रायो न समाश्रितं जगति सन्तः ॥

1068. XIX. G. 48.

An anthology compiled from several source-books in ancient Hindu literature and containing verses didactic and biographical.

Begins:

यस्य संपुरिकामास्ति पिता यस्य न पण्डितः । सकृदुक्तं न गृह्णाति ॥

यन्मुक्तशास्त्रं वदनं ताम्बूलरसवर्जितम् ।

स्तनोपान्ते शब्दच्छुरिमबलां विह्वलयति ॥

An Index of the Paddhatis is given at the beginning. The leaves are in disorder.

Many MSS. of the anthology are known in South India.

The author appears to have lived in the village of Kākamrāṇi believed to have been founded by King Mukkuṇḍa. His gotra is Vādhūla and he is the son of S'īṅgaṇārya and S'īṅgāmbā. The anthology seems to have been composed in A.D. 1466. For fuller details, see the description of the MS. (D. 12068) in the Govt. Oriental MSS. Library, Madras and M. Krishnamachari, op. cit., p. 408.

XXI. Q. 8.

BHALLAṬAS'ATAKA OF BHALLAṬA

भल्लटशतकं भल्लटकृतम्

Palmyra leaves. Foll. 9 (9—17). 14" X 1.8". Fairly recent and in good condition. Cursory medium Malayalam writing. Lines 10—11 in a page. Inked. Complete.

A gnomic century of verses by Bhallaṭa.

Begins (fol. 9a) :

तां भवानीं भवानीत क्लेशनाशविशारदाम् ।

शारदां शारदाम्भोदसितसिंहासनं नुमः ॥

युष्माकमम्बरमणेः प्रथमा मयूखा-

स्ते मङ्गलं विदधतूदयरागभाजः ।

कुर्वन्ति ये दिवसजन्ममहोत्सवेषु

सिन्दूरपाटलमुखीरिव दिक्पुरन्ध्रीः ॥

Ends (fol. 17b) :

रज्ज्वा दिशः प्रवितता सलिलं विषेण

खातो मही द्रुतभुजा ज्वलिता वनान्ताः ।

व्याधाः पदान्यनुसरन्ति गृहीतचापा-

स्तं देशमाश्रयतु मु पतिदगणां (?) ॥

इति भल्लटशतकं समाप्तं । मङ्गलं भवतु ॥

Foll. 13b, 14b and 15b are blank. The text concludes at the beginning of fol. 17b and the rest of the folio is left blank.

The work was first printed in the Kāvya-mālā (Part IV, pp. 140 ff.) in 1887. Our MS. has some textual differences with this edition. Apart from change in the order of verses and variant readings, the MS. omits verses 35, 36, 50, 105 and 106 in the printed edition and has five new verses which are not found there. The total number of verses in both is 108. The first of these five extra verses is the opening verse तां भवानीं cett; two others, रे रे ध्वांस (No. 22) and छाया नात्मन एव (No. 43) are found as anonymous verses in the Subhāṣitāvalī of Vallabhadeva (Nos. 772, 821 respectively). The following two verses (Nos. 96, 106) which remain are not traceable in the other anthologies known so far :

हे माणिक्य तदेतदेव हि वरं यद्भानरेणामुना

ह्यन्तत्सारनिरीक्षणव्यसनिना चूर्णाकृतो नाश्मना ।

आघ्रातं परिचुम्बितं प्रतिमुहुर्लुङ्घं पुनश्चर्वितं

निक्षिप्तं भुवि नीरसेन मनसा खेदं कृथा मा कृथाः ॥

पाषाणजालजटिलोऽपि गिरिविशालः

तोयस्य नित्यगमनादुपयाति भेदम् ।

कर्णेजपैरहरहः प्रतिपाधमानः

को वा न याति विकृतिं दृढसौहृदोऽपि ॥

The poem has been commented on by Mahesvara. A MS. (R. 2907) is deposited in the Govt. Oriental MSS. Library. Mahesvara's text, not only consists of 105 verses only, but also omits many verses of the Kāvya-mālā edition.

For more details concerning the poem and its available versions, see Annals of S. V. O. I., Tirupati, 1940, I. 37 ff.

The last folio gives an Index of the number of verses of each sub-section in the work. As the author's patron belongs to the 15th century (M. Krishnamachari, op. cit., p. 387), this should be the date also of our author who received from him the title, Prabandhasāgara.

संवत् १८५३ श्रावणशुद्धदशमी इनवासेरे ।

Towards the bottom of the codex there is an inscription showing Anantadeva as the original owner of it.

This appears to be the only known MS. of the anthology.

The work appears to have been compiled at Benares. Though it is known to have some verses in common with well-known anthologies like the Sūktimuktāvalī of Jalhana, the Subhāṣitāvalī of Vallabhadeva and the S'ārngadharaṣaddhātī, it has many verses of its own that are endowed with considerable poetic excellence. Concerning the author, we are told that he is the son of Timmājīpāṇḍita of Puṇyastambha, a village situated on the banks of the Godāvarī. Though the work seems to be recent in origin, its exact date is not known. For fuller details, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, February 1946, pp. 57 ff.

The original of this transcript seems to be incomplete and this is noted by its copyist. The break is towards the end of the S'aratpaddhati.

Two complete MSS. (R. 797, D. 12138) are deposited in the Govt. Oriental MSS. Library, Madras. There is one MS. (No. 841) in the Govt. Oriental Library, Mysore.

The author of this work is the well-known Vedic commentator Sāyaṇa who was the minister successively of Bukka I,

Kaṡpaṇa, Saṅgama II and Harihara II as can be gleaned from the colophons to his Subhāṡitasudhānidhi, Dhātuvṛtti, Prāyaścittasudhānidhi, Yajñatantrasudhānidhi, and Alaṅkārasudhānidhi and to his commentaries on the S'atapatha, Taittirīya, and Yajurveda Brāhmaṇas. Sāyaṇa is reported to have composed two more works, the Puruṡārthasudhānidhi and the Āyurvedasudhānidhi. Concerning the latter of these at least there is room for legitimate doubt whether Sāyaṇa himself wrote it or some protégé of his actually wrote it and fathered it upon him in return for his patronage. According to the Alaṅkārasudhānidhi referred to above, the author of the Āyurvedasudhānidhi is Sāyaṇa himself (Āyurvedasudhānidhivyasanibhis s'risāyaṇāryoditani bhaiṡajyam); but a later medical work, the Prasnotṭaramālā of S'risailanātha, written under the patronage of Veṅkaṭadrivibhu, would have that it is an ancestor of the author of that work who is the real author of the Āyurvedasudhānidhi:

एकाम्रनाथो यत्तातः सायणामात्यचोदितः ।
समग्रहीत्सुबोधार्थमायुर्वेदसुधानिधिम् ॥

For more information concerning Sāyaṇa, see R. Narasimhācārya, Indian Antiquary, 1916, XLV. 1 ff.; 17 ff.

The MS. breaks off at the end of the second quarter of verse 20 in the Prabhā-tavarṇanapaddhati.

The anthology was published as No. 82 in the Gaekwad Oriental Series, Baroda, 1938.

Jalhana is known to be the son of Lakṣmīdeva. Both father and son were ministers of the Yādava King Kṛṣṇa. From the concluding verses of the anthology it is clear that it was compiled by Vaidya Bhānupaṇḍita or Bhāskara in S'aka 1179 (A. D. 1257) at the instance of Jalhana. For more details see M. Krishnamachari, op. cit., p. 385f.

रामः—अनुगृहीतोऽस्मि ।

पाकारिप्रमुखैः स्वयं सुखैरार्यस्य दत्ते वरे

संसुप्तेष्विव वानरेषु ।

The MS. opens in the middle of verse 8 of Act V and breaks-off towards the end of the last Act.

The play was printed in the Kāvya-mālā (No. 55), Bombay, 1896.

The author is the son of Kṛṣṇasūri of Kaunḍinyagotra and lived at Palmaneri in South India. A well-known contemporary of the celebrated South Indian writer, Nilakaṇṭha Dīkṣita, he must have lived in the 17th century A.D. According to Keith (Sanskrit Drama, Oxford, 1924, p. 247), the introduction in this play of the figure of the Vidūṣaka is unique and "contrary to the rule in Rāma dramas."

The play was printed in the S'āṅkara-gurukula Series (No. 10), Srirangam, 1944.

The author appears to have been called Bhūminātha also. His father is Bāla-candra of Kausika gotra. As a pupil of Rāma-bhadra Dīkṣita, he too must have lived in the 18th cent. A.D. Among his other works are the Dharmavijayacampā and three more plays, the Subhadrāpari-ṇaya, the S'ṛīgārasarvasabhāṇa and the Cittavṛttikalyāṇa. For fuller details, see M. Krishnamachari, op. cit., p. 680 f; Introduction to the Printed Edn., pp. 3ff.

The MS. breaks off at the end of the Sambhogaprakaraṇa. C. Browning (Catalogue of Sanskrit MSS. existing in Oudh, V. 10) mentions one MS. of the work in Oudh.

The work appears to be nothing more than an adaptation of the Ujjvalanīlamani of Rūpagosvāmin to suit as an invocation to Rāma. The author is called Nārāyaṇamuni in the Oudh MS. Probably, he is a follower of the Rāmānanda sect. Since it is known that Rūpagosvāmin's literary activity extended as far as 1550 A. D., the date will be the terminus a quo of the present work. For fuller details, see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, December 1941, pp. 190 ff.

Many MSS. of the commentary are known.

The real name of the commentator appears to be Raṅgasāyīn, Gurijāla being the name of the village in Palnāḍ Taluk, Guntur District. The grandfather was Cilakamarti Veṅkaṭācārya and the uncles were three, Anantaprabhu, Varadācārya and Raṅgārya. The commentator's preceptor was Vādhūla Mahācārya. Our commentator is known to be the author also of a S'ṛiṅgāralaharī and many music compositions, especially Padas for dance, and, as a Padakūra, he appears to be as eminent as Kṣetrajña.

In his gloss on the Rasamañjarī, the Parimalā of S'eṣa Cintāmaṇi is very frequently subjected to severe criticism. On this and other corroborative evidences, V. Raghavan (S'ṛiṅgāramañjarī of Saint Akbar Shah, Hyderabad, 1951, p. 13) places him in the first half of the 17th century A.D.

MSS. of the work appear to be available in Mysore.

M. Krishnamachari (op. cit., p. 235) identifies our author with Ratnakheṭa S'rīniyāsa Dīkṣita, father of Rājacūḍāmaṇi Dīkṣita. But he is really a later author, identical with the author of the Sumanoranjana-kāvya described above
 (No. 713). For details see H. G. Narahari, Adyar Library Bulletin, October 1951,
 p. 143 f.
